A Campaign Against Contraband Tobacco

A more rigid campaign against contraband tobaccos and other smuggled commodities has been begun by the Carabineros, whose duty it is to check the distribution of such wares. From now on, it was explained to the MAJORCA SUN at the Comandancia de Carabineros, that corps will exercise its rights of search and both Mallorquins and foreigners are warned so that they may not suppose the uniformed men are exceeding their authority.

In the old days most of the contraband was carried about in sacks on the shoulders of men, and it was quite easy for a Carabinero to spot and overhual suspects. But the automobile has changed all that. The contrabandistas now use automobiles, and a goodly cargo of tobacco on which no tax has ever been paid can easily be concealed in the body of a car.

The recent rise in tobacco prices made the illegal article much more attractive, and in preparation for the intensified drive of smugglers to meet the demand, the Carabineros have been given orders to exercise greater vigilance.

More than one member of the English-speaking community in Mallorca has been somewhat startled at being stopped by a Carabinero and asked if they are possessed of Contraband. So far there is no record of any having to give unsatisfactory answers. However, if you are signalled to stop, it would be wise to do so whether or not you are carrying contraband. The Carabineros never work singly; there is always a patrol about a kilometer beyond the man who signals for a halt, and all these gentlemen are armed.

By a recent order of the Civil Governor, the Carabineros can be identified at night by the red cross which they wave as a sign to stop. The cross is made of glass, which will reflect the headlights of an approaching car, so the excuse that you didn't see the Carabinero will hardly pass.

There has always been a splendid market in Spain for contraband goods, especially tobacco, the general public attitude being much the same as most Americans display towards the prohibition laws.

Not so long ago, a considerable crimp was put in the sale of contraband tobacco in Barcelona by notifying the foreign clubs, firms, etc., that possession of contraband was a serious offence, and it would be extremely embarrassing to all concerned if a foreigner of standing were caught.

The Guild Opening

The Dover Road, first offering of the Palma Theatre Guild, will have its premiere matinee on Wednesday at the Bellver Theatre in Terreno, and will be played again in the evening. Capacity houses — about 300 for each performance — are practically assured.

Many who have hesitated to become members, preferring to take their chances on sales at the box office, are likely to be disappointed. It has been said in some quarters that financial obligations may attach to membership, but this is contrary to the whole guild idea in the theatre. As was stressed at the organization meetings of the Palma Guild, the whole purpose of this form of management is to do away with the necessity for an angel. Productions are financed by the theatre goers, who are called upon for no more than the price of their subscriptions, as Mr. Norman Jacobsen, who helped organize the New York Theatre Guild, explained to the first meetings of the local enthusiasts.

Reservations for the Wednesday performances may be made at the Grand Kiosk in Palma or at the Tourist Information Bureau, Calle Gomila, Terreno.

Palma and Literature

Work on the first issue of Story to be published in Spain has begun this week, according to the editors, Whit Burnett and Martha Foley, who arrived in Palma a few weeks ago to make their home here. In its year and a half in Vienna Story, the "only magazine devoted solely to the short story," achieved an enviable critical success and enjoyed the distinction of having more stories from its first number reprinted in Edward J. O'Brien's Best Short Stories of 1931 than have been chosen from any other magazine in the sixteen years which O'Brien has been editing his anthologies. An even greater record is expected this year, judging from the reviews of the magazine accorded its various numbers, the latest of which (No. 7) has just appeared in some of the Palma bookstores. No. 7 which contains works by such writers as Manuel Komroff, some of whose short stories are already American classics, and by the Roumanian writer Mihail Sadoveanu, also has stories by several new writers, including one Helen Todd, whose story is unconventionally laid in a public lavatory in a small French town.

Story, as its foreword says, "has no theories and is part of no movement and presents short narratives of significance by no matter whom and coming from no matter where". It has run some of the best recent work of Erskine Caldwell, Kay Boyle, Peter Neagoe, Komroff, Eugene Jolas, José Garcia Villa, and translations from the Russian of Mihail Zochtchenko, the Hungarian of Ludwig Biro, the Austrian of Musil, and works of Swedish, German and Roumanians.

The first Palma number (No. 8) will probably be printed by Empresa Soler, printers of THE MAJORCA SUN.

Exhibits

A number of well executed and interesting paintings are being exhibited at the Galerías Costa. They are the work of the members of an organization known as the Friends of the Arts in Barcelona, and include several studies of still life as well as street and country scenes.

Juan Duch has lent a modern touch in the selection of his subjects. One is called La Cursa and portrays a motorcycle race course with but one figure in the foreground.

A character study of a Catalonian peasant, painted by Ramon Roig, is more than just a type; it is a sincere sympathetic study of character. The opening of the exhibition was well attended and it is expected to run for two weeks.

The shawls from Granada and Dr. Arnold Schultze's flower paintings are still on exhibition at the English Tea Rooms in Terreno.

At Victor's Bar there is a display of paintings of local scenes done by Señor A. Lillo, as well as a few choice specimens of Granada art in the form of some lovely shawls

* * *

Major R. H. Fletcher, U.S.A. American Military Attaché in Madrid, arrived in Palma early last week with his family for a stay of about two weeks. During the two years Major Fletcher has been in Spain, he has visited nearly all of the peninsula, including Portugal, to which he is also accredited. Valencia and the Balearic Islands were the only parts of Spain he had missed, and now he is rounding out his record.

Mallorca, he thinks, lives up to its reputation for beauty and charm; he was quite prepared to be disappointed after hearing superlatives lavished on the Island, but he has not been disillusioned. The Major is accompanied by Mrs. Fletcher, their two children and his father, Capt. Fletcher, U.S.A. Retired. They are residing at the Hotel Victoria

The Need for U.S. Consul;

A Mallorquin Point of View

To the Editor:

I have followed with interest your articles and replies from your readers regarding the need for an American Consul in Palma.

It is undoubtedly true that it would facilitate matters for individuals, but as a business man primarily interested in shipping, and particularly interested in exporting to the U.S., I am convinced that that which will really interest the powers that be more than the individual's occasional need, is an official representative of the U.S. Government stationed in Palma, whose province it would be to facilitate and increase the commercial relations between Mallorca and the United States.

In view of the foregoing, please permit me to say that the efforts of Mrs. Loomis and of your paper are not only most commendable, but decidedly worthy of success.

E. MANERA.

Manager, Agencia Schembri, S.A.

Improved Postal Service

The Post Office authorities hope soon to have installed at convenient intervals in Terreno and further outlying districts of Palma, mail boxes from which there will be a late collection.

At present, residents of Genova, San Agustin, and even parts of Terreno have no convenient way of posting letters. The hours for collection from the boxes in the various estancos scattered here and there, vary with the amount of business the postman may have to attend to en route. In case of transatlantic mail, this often results in letters missing a fast boat and delays the service by several days, sometimes even a week.

It is proposed that definite collection hours should be instituted and a late collection made every evening around 7 o'clock by an authorized employe of the Post Office. The Postmaster and the Secretary are working hard to meet the increased demands made by the influx of foreign visitors. However, all such matters must be referred to Madrid.

Was Palma's Last Winter Worse Than Unusual? Figures Give a Strange Answer

DESPITE appearances to the contrary, the winter that persistently lingers on was no colder than the previous one, according to the records kept by Col. R. E. Molesworth; who lives in Españolet, but a short distance from the heart of Palma. He claims—and his charts prove—that the average temperatures of the winter months were pretty nearly the same, but that the cold winds blowing from the north made the early months of 1932 seem more severe than those of preceding years.

In the recess of a window facing north, Col. Molesworth has hanging outside his house a thermometer which registers the maximum and minimum temperatures of the day. He tests the instrument each morning to be sure it reads true. The recorder is so placed that it is protected from the direct rays of the sun, nor is it affected by ground radiation. Col. Molesworth has kept charts of daily recordings since April, 1929.

He has come to the conclusion that our meteorologic conditions in Palma tally with those in the north. Back in August, 1929, Palma experienced a deluge tropical in its intensity. The main thoroughfares from the Rambla through the Borne, down to the docks were practically all under water. Homes on the street level were badly damaged, and an odd assortment of household effects was seen floating down the stream which the day before had been Palma's favorite promenade. That same day there was an unwonted snowstorm in London.

When the mercury here rose to 99 degrees F. on the 12th of June last year, several people in London were prostrated during the heat wave that lasted for two days in that city.

Storms in the north eventually find their way down to the Mediterranean although they have usually exhausted some of their force on the way. Barometric changes do not vary with latitude to the extent that is popularly believed, and cold spells are always felt all over Europe tempered, no doubt, by the time they reach the southern countries. Heat waves spread in the same impartial manner and earthquakes, no matter how slight and how far away, have an effect upon the impressionable ball of mercury.

The earthquakes in South America ten days ago were followed in Palma by a drop of 24 degrees in temperature in one day — an unusual phenomenon for this equable climate — this also according to Col. Molesworth's charts.

His figures show that all through the winter of 1931-32 the minimum temperatures were almost invariably lower than for the corresponding days of 1930-31. For example, the minimum recordings for the 31 days of December in these two winters were:

1930	1931	1930	1931
59°	52°	48°	42°
59	50	50	42
55	46	52	37
53	48	46	37
55	50	48	37
60	50	50	39
57	52	43	41
52	53	46	44
52	52	46	47
54	50	50	44
57	46	53	44
59	46	53	43
57	44	59	43
50	44	59	37
47	44	53	36
48	44

According to many old residents, there was a longer period of bad weather during last December than most of them could remember.

Perhaps this winter seemed so much worse than it really was because the daily fluctuations in temperature were so much greater. In December, 1930, the greatest variation in a single day was 11 degrees while in December, 1931, the temperature varied 18 degrees on two occasions. In January, 1931—14 degrees; January, 1932—20 degrees. In February, 1931—20 degrees; February, 1932—23 degrees. In March, 1931—18 degrees; March, 1932—25 degrees.

The lowest temperature reached this last winter was 36 degrees on December 31st, 1931, as against 34 degrees on the previous January 11th. The highest winter temperature this year was 72 on March 12th; the highest for last year was 70 on March 4th.

Second Palma-New York Sailing

The SS Excambion of the American Export Lines, second of the ships on the direct Palma-New York run, put into this port yesterday about 11 o'clock carrying sixty-three passengers, but because of her limited stay there were no shore excursions. Customs restrictions prevented all but a small party from going out to inspect the Excambion. Those who did go were enthusiastic about her.

Eight passengers joined the ship at Palma, making a total of seventy-one sailing for the United States. Those who embarked here were Mr. and Mrs. John B. Parker, Mrs. Clara A. Swift, Mrs. Mary Powers, Dr. Percy D. Russell, Miss B. R. Swaby, Señora Salazar, and Sr. F. L. Pimentel. The last two came over from Barcelona especially to join the Excambion.

The Etheric Body

When interrogated in connection with the Mrs. Morris case, Sir Oliver Lodge stated that he asked "Power" (Mrs. Morris's control) for information about the composition of the etheric body.

What is the Etheric Body? The terms "Body & Soul" or "Body and Spirit" are familiar to us all, but few people in this country believe in the existence of more than one body.

As a result of experiments made by Hector Durville (Le Fantome des Vivants) very detailed information has been obtained in regard to the etheric body, and it has been found possible to photograph it. The filmy shape which appears in the photographs bears a marked resemblance to the classical "ghost" but the circumstances under which the photographs were taken place them under a category quite distinct from that of "spirit photographs".

The late Coronel de Rochas demonstrated by means of a series of experiments reported in his book L'exteriorisation de la sensibilité that, although a subject in a trance does not feel pinpricks, cuts, or blows, the same motions performed on the empty air in the place occupied by the etheric body will elicit cries of pain, and sometimes a scar appears on the carnal body in the corresponding position.

Under these circumstances the physical tenement is, to use the words of a subject, "like an empty sack" and, as the etheric body, the seat of sensation, is now outside she can only feel pain when the etheric counterpart is directly acted on.

The position of the etheric body can be indicated by any other sensitive present, who can actually see it connected to its physical counterpart by a kind of fluidic "cord", the severance of which would produce death.

Occultists maintain that when anaesthetics are administered previous to operations, a part or the whole of the etheric body is driven out, and in some clinics hypnosis now replaces anaesthetics.

One of the most remarkable characteristics of the etheric body is that its shape can be moulded by the thought of the indwelling ego, or even by that of another entity. Thus the appearance of «weir-wolves» in countries where the inhabitants believe in transmigration can be easily explained.

When particles of matter from the physical body of the sensitive, from that of another person, or from the surrounding atmosphere, enters into the composition of the etheric body, it becomes visible even to non-sensitives, and, as already mentioned, it can impress photographic plates.

(This article is published as a matter of general interest, not necessarily because the editors agree with it).

Advanced English Course for Spanish Students

First Lesson

Interrogative, Relative, and Demonstrative Pronouns, Adjectives and Adverbs.

Who?	Where?
Whom?	When?
Which?	How?
What?	Why?
Whose?
Which	Que (para cosas)	That which (lo, que)
That		What
Whom	Que (para personas)	Whose (cuyo)
That		Where (donde)
		When (cuando)

The above words have various uses in the English Language. As the student is presumed to have a knowledge of Grammar it is not necessary to go into details regarding their various functions. The above table shows especially that "que" in Spanish corresponds with many words in English, and it is necessary for the student to give them attention.

Below are some examples of their uses:

Who came in just now? The man to whom we spoke a moment ago.

Which book is yours? The one that (which) has the red binding.

What did you say to him? What you told me to say to him.

Of whom are you speaking? Of the man whom (that) we saw a moment ago.

How did you come? I came in my brother's car.

Why did you come? I came so that I might be able to see you.

To whom did you give the book? I gave it to the person to whom (that) you told me to give it.

Whose is that hat? It belongs to the man whose car is at the door.

Of whose brother are you speaking? I am speaking of your sister's brother.

What does he want? He, himself does not know what he wants.

Did you say that? No, I did not say what (that which) he said I said.

"There was" says Walter Scott, "a boy in my class who was always at the top, and I could not with all my efforts supplant him. Day came after day, and still he kept his place; till at last I observed that, when a question was asked him, he always fumbled with his fingers at a particular button on the lower part of his waistcoat while seeking an answer.

I thought, therefore, that I could but remove the button on the quiet, the surprise at not finding it, might derange his ideas at the next time for questioning the class, and give me a chance of taking him down. The button was therefore removed without his perceiving it. Great was my anxiety to know the success of my measure, and it succeeded only too well.

The hour for questioning arrived, and when this boy was asked his question he sought as usual, with his fingers, for the friendly button, but could not find it. Disconcerted he looked down, but the button was gone, his ideas became confused, he could not reply. I seized the opportunity, answered the question, and took his place, which he never recovered, nor do I believe that he ever suspected the author of the trick.

I have very often met him since we went out into the world, but never without my conscience reproaching me. Frequently I resolved to make him some amends by rendering him a little service, but the opportunity did not present itself, though I fear I did not seek one with as much ardour as I sought to supplant him at school.

What did the boy do when asked a question?

Did he succeed in keeping his place for a long time?

Did Walter Scott succeed in finding out his talisman?

What happened when he found the button was gone?

Did the boy in question regain his place in class?

Why did his ideas become confused?

Did he suspect Walter Scott of being the author of his Downfall?

Did Walter Scott meet him afterwards?

Did he make an effort to make amends?

Did his conscience trouble him afterwards when he met him?

You are requested to answer these questions in writing and compare your answers with those which will be given in the next issue.

Questions relating to idiomatic phrases and grammar will be answered. Send your questions to Plaza Cataluña 3, 2.º Box No. 127.

Contract Bridge Rules and Problems

By Felix

This week I print laws 60, 61, 62, 63, 64 and 65 of the Portland Club, knowledge of which will help to solve many of the petty quarrels which take place during a rubber, quarrels which arise in many cases through ignorance of the rules.

The following is a very tricky little problem, which I give for the amusement of my readers:

N

Hearts Q. 7.
Spades K. 6.
Diamonds K. 8. 7. 2.

W

Hearts J. 5.
Spades Q. 5.
Diamonds Q. J. 10. 9.

E

Hearts 2. 3. 8. 9.
Spades 2. 3. 7. 9.

S

Hearts 4. 6.
Spades 4. 8.
Clubs 2. 3. 4. 5.

Clubs are trumps. South leads a club and makes all the tricks. Solution next week.

Agreed Time Limits

60. If a rubber has been started under an agreement that play shall end at a specified time, or if the players agree during a rubber that any particular hand shall be the last, the score is made up at the end of the hand in progress at the time agreed upon, three hundred points being added to the score of a side by which a game has been won.

Players Obligated to Retire

61. Any player who is obliged to leave a table before the rubber is concluded may, with the consent of the other three players appoint a substitute. If such consent is not given, or if it is impossible to obtain a substitute, the score shall be made up in accordance with the provisions of the last preceding law.

Damaged Card

62. If any card has been torn or so marked that it can be identified from its back, it must be replaced by a fresh card, or a new pack must be obtained.

Calling for News Cards

63. Any player after a hand has been played and before the pack is cut for the next deal may call for fresh cards at his own expense. He must call for two new packs, of which the player about to deal takes his choice.

Dealing, etc., for Partner

64. A player may not shuffle, cut or deal for his partner without the permission of the opponents.

Requesting Bystander to Decide

65. Any question may, by agreement amongst the players, be referred for decision to a bystander.

A Correspondent Writes

To the Editor:

In conversation with a very well known Spanish sportsman last Sunday at the Hipodromo, he said to me: "Why is it that a sport such as horse racing, which is so eminently English, is so little patronised by the English residents in Barcelona? The remark calls for a little reflection and casting my mind back, it is a fact that I do not remember at any time during the last nine years or so seeing more than perhaps a half a dozen English or American people at any race meeting here. It would be interesting to have your readers comments on this. It is true that we do not see racing as one sees on an English course, but here, after all, it is practically in its infancy, but with proper support could become a feature.

The racing here is now under the aegis of Barcelona Turf Club who took over from the Real Sociedad when they decided that owing to lack of funds and lack of foreign support, they would not continue this season.

I am of the opinion that you could dedicate a certain space in THE SPANISH TIMES to promulgating the sport of kings and I am sure that you would be given every facility by Barcelona Turf Club to this end. The Mallorca contingent was very much in evidence last Sunday owing to the fact that certain horses and jockeys had been brought over from Mallorca, the Spaniard showing how he will support his own. It was not pleasant to hear the English resident spoken of somewhat disparagingly in this respect.

(Editor's Note—We see no reason why the English resident should be spoken of disparagingly because he fails to attend the race meetings.)

Anglo-American Dance Committee

A very enjoyable dance was arranged by this Committee at the Hotel Ritz last Saturday. Dancing commenced at 10:30 p.m. and continued until long after two. About one hundred people were present, and the music supplied by the Hotel Ritz Orchestra was, in the opinion of many dancers the best we have had this season. Mr. C. L. Jones was in charge of the band.

Many beautiful frocks were worn, and we will endeavour to describe a few. It was very pleasant to see Mr. and Mrs. Boyce. Mrs. Boyce was wearing a charming black lace dress with a magnificent Spanish shawl. Mrs. Eddy also looked charming in black lace with red slippers and belt. Mrs. Fred Parsons wore one of the prettiest dresses present, it being palest pink georgette with a sequin cape. Miss Eileen Parsons looked very youthful and pretty in pale green satin.

Mr. and Mrs. Napier, who are newcomers to the Colony, were exceedingly welcome. Mrs. Napier was wearing a beautiful red lace frock. Mrs. J. Evans of San Andreas was very smart in brown lace and Mrs. Allen in pale pink. Miss Barbara Cretchley looked very pretty in soft pale mauve satin. Mrs. Slade was wearing a beautiful pale green heavy georgette, Mrs. J. G. Thompson wore pale pink georgette with long black gloves and black slippers.

Mrs. Melville, better known as Mrs. Billie Williams, was very smart in a creation of black lace. Miss Pearl Witty wore black georgette with pale pink chiffon flowers on her shoulder. Miss David was pretty in soft white with red flowers.

Among the other dancers were: Mr. and Mrs. Angier, Mr. and Mrs. J. Webb, Mr. and Mrs. Bruyfogle, Mr. and Mrs. Bottomley, Mr. and Mrs. Lamb, Mr. and Mrs. Schaeffer, Mr. Meade, Mr. John Loveday, Mr. Surridge, Miss Molly Sier, Miss Joan Brakes, Miss Bett, Miss Katy Aguilo, Mr. Sanderson, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Houston, Miss E. Lawrence, Mr. G. Lawrence, Mr. Wynne, Mr. T. Witty, Mr. and Mrs. Latta, Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler, Mr. W. Powell, Miss Gifford, Mr. and Mrs. Currell, Mr. Newmann, Mrs. Moles, Miss M. Meyer, Miss Alexander.

The following members of the committee were present: Mr. Currell, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hughes, Miss Sanvalle, Mr. C. L. Jones, Mr. N. Foster and Mr. Whitmore. The attendance was so good and so many asked for another dance, that it is probable another will be given at the beginning of May in the Spanish Room of the Ritz.

The League of Nations

Last Tuesday at the Athenaeum a lecture on the League of Nations was given before a large audience by the Rev. C. H. D. Grimes, M. A. His talk was afterwards translated into Catalan by Señorita Casanova.

Mr. Grimes spoke of the League's organization and its achievements, describing first a day at the September meeting of the League Assembly. He told of the Summer School of International Relations, which is held every year at this time, and which is largely attended by undergraduates of both sexes, who learn at these sessions to lay aside their national prejudices and consider international problems from the other fellow's point of view.

These students see the Assembly at work—the delegates of fifty-five nations speaking on the most important topics. However, Mr. Grimes pointed out, the great work of the League is done by six Commissions.

The first deals with international law, seeking to bring some order to conflicting national laws and at the same time provide a code which the International Court at The Hague can administer. The second commission deals with finance and economics. This Commission worked out financial aid for Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria. It also deals with problems of health. Other commissions deal with disarmament, the slave trade and mandates, social questions such as drug and white slave traffic, and League finances.

Rhythmic Interpretation Of Famous Composers

Mlle. Nadine Lang will present her rhythmic interpretations of selections from the works of nine famous composers on the evening of Wednesday, May 11, at the Teatro Principal, she has announced.

Mlle. Lang is the exponent of a form of art which has never been seen in Palma hitherto. Her interpretive dancing was extremely popular in Switzerland, her native land, until a severe illness forced her to give up her work. She came to Mallorca to recover, and, although she was told she would probably never be able to dance again, she has completely regained her health.

In gratitude to the place which has done so much for her, Mlle. Lang decided to give an exhibition of her art for the benefit of the Palma Hospital, under whose auspices the affair will be held. The Diputacion and Señor Sureda of the Teatro Principal aided her, placing the theatre at her disposal free of charge.

Mlle. Lang belongs to the same school which Mary Wigman made popular in England and America. She has herself been teaching here, and an exhibition by her class of little girls at the Circulo Mallorquin last December was so popular that she was urged to give a more finished interpretation herself.

Her program will include the works of Poldini, Rachmaninoff, Strauss, Sebelius, Debussy, Valentin, Sardena and Laserna. Her costumes were designed by the German painter, Frau Lene Schneider-Kainer, especially for Mlle. Lang's Palma debut.

The entire proceeds of the performance will be devoted to the Palma Hospital, as the services and equipment necessary for the show have all been donated. It will begin at 10 o'clock, and evening dress is requested.

Recital at Salon Mallorca

Señorita P. Alcaraz de Prieto, one of the best Spanish sopranos, will give a recital tomorrow (Monday) evening at seven o'clock in the Salón Mallorca under the auspices of the Asociación de Cultura Musical.

Señorita Alcaraz comes to Palma from a very successful concert in Madrid where she was acclaimed one of the best singers of lieder ever heard in the capital. She will sing the same compositions here. Although still quite young, Señorita Alcaraz possesses, according to Madrid critics, a beautifully trained, pure voice and sings with a deep understanding of both the lyrics and the music. She will be accompanied by Maria Rodrigo, herself a composer of some reputation.

As is usual with the concerts of the Asociación, tickets will be placed on sale at the hall thirty minutes before the recital begins.

The awkwardness of the hour, it has been pointed out by English-speaking visitors, makes the foreign attendance at these recitals comparatively small. Few foreigners dine as late as do the Mallorquins and are therefore unable to attend, although they would like to. It has been suggested that if the concerts could be arranged for an hour convenient to Mallorquins and foreigners alike, attendance would be greatly increased.

A Tribute to Señor Pensabene

Mrs. May B. MacLafferty, who has been living at the Hotel Mediterraneo for the last eight years, pays the following tribute to Señor Juan Pensabene, the late proprietor of that hotel who died ten days ago:

"Mallorca has lost a valuable citizen in the passing into the life beyond of Señor Juan Pensabene. Quiet, reserved but kindly, generous, attentive, in eight years I have never seen him lose the calm pose of the Spanish Christian gentleman. As host of the hotel, the care and comfort of his guests were his first consideration. He will long be remembered by those who were privileged to know him."

CHINA MISSIONARY

He was young, good looking and unattached, and his reputation as a ready wit and an ideal dancing partner had preceded his arrival. Almost before he had his bags unpacked at the hotel which he had selected for his temporary home in Mallorca, he had accepted an invitation to a select, formal dinner party where custom and tradition are closely observed.

His dinner partner had more than the average good looks and a manner that was generally conceded to be charming. On the face of his hostess could be discerned a look of intense satisfaction as she started the conversational ball rolling in the direction of her latest find. Despite her every effort that look changed somewhat when, from the folds of his table napkin the nice young man extracted a small but perfectly baked roll, cast a despairing glance up and down the table, and very solemnly deposited it in the pocket of his dinner jacket. From time to time he artlessly drew forth the somewhat battered piece of bread and broke off a portion—with a generous distribution of crumbs down his glistening shirt front. Back into his pocket went the roll until another morsel was desired, the while he carried on a pleasant flow of conversation with the fair young thing on his right.

At the end of the dinner, what was left of the baker's pride was ostentatiously deposited on the table amid the crumbs from the gentleman's pocket, which he emptied with deliberation and care before leaving the festive board.

His hostess pleaded a headache when he called to take her for a drive a few days later. But at the next formal dinner party in that home to which, incidentally, the young man was invited, bread-and-butter plates appeared at the left of each place.

It was learned that the gentleman belongs to an old and well known family in New York who have established precedents ere this. He belongs, also, to a company engaged in the manufacture and distribution throughout the world of china, and whose obvious mission it is to increase, subtly or otherwise, the number of pieces necessary to the correct layout of a formal dinner table. Internationalizing table etiquette, they call it.
