Radium Drive

A drive to provide the Palma Hospital with a small supply of radium for the treatment of those who need that rarest of elements has been begun by the Diputacion, the governing body of the Province.

During its sessions last week, it was decided to open a public subscription to raise the money and to appeal to individuals and corporations to contribute towards the fund. No definite amount has been set, but many thousands of pesetas will be required to purchase the minimum amount of radium that can be of any use.

In deciding to make a campaign for the fund, the Diputacion has taken into account the fact that its own financial resources are limited, and that if it should try to purchase radium from its own treasury, there would have to be a delay of many years before the Hospital would benefit.

The proposal to appeal to the charity of Mallorca has met with approval on all sides. It is pointed out that those who will benefit most will be the poor of the island. Wealthy sufferers from cancer, skin troubles and other ailments which radium treatment relieves can make the journey to some other city where radium is available. The poor cannot, and the Diputacion hopes to receive contributions from the Ayuntamiento of every town.

Foreigners resident in or visiting the island may also join the campaign if they are interested. In fact, the list of donations is headed by that of a foreigner, being that of slightly more than 1,100 pesetas which was realized by Mlle. Nadine Lang from her benefit performance for the hospital. To this is added the Diputacion's own contribution.

One means suggested for raising the rest is a lottery, and the proposers express confidence that the central government would permit such an expedient for such a worthy purpose. However, this will be considered only if the public subscription fails. Contributions may be sent to «Sr. Presidente de la Diputación Provincial de Baleares.»

The Derby

TWENTY-three horses will go to the post for the start of the Derby at Epsom Downs next Wednesday, and twenty-three of the foreign residents in Mallorca will await the result with particular interest.

The greatest race in the world, on which more money can be won than on any other, will be won by Orwell if the betting means anything, but favorites seldom win the Derby, and Orwell is a very hot favorite indeed at 15 to 8.

Mr. C. A. Street of Son Serra has drawn Orwell and the other twenty-two horses, with the names of those who have tickets on them are:

Cockpen	R. G. Van Sant
Miracle	Mr. Pond
Portofino	Miss Sybil Sutton-Vane
Dastur	W. Pulz (Barcelona)
April 5th	Carmen and Dunday
Hesperus	Lady Constance Matthews
Andrea	Joe and Banks
Wyvern	James B. Gilmer
Jiweh	L. M. Burgess
Firdaussi	A. Ford
Bacchus	E. B. Lyon
Buckle	H. Bowie
Celebrator	Gem
Corcy	Jenks, Len, Joe and another
Jackdaw II	Wylor
Leighon	A. Ford
Peter Planet	Miss Camp and M. Jenkins
Royal Dancer	Mrs. Fawkes
Summer Planet	Burgess and Jenkins
Sunnyborough	Mrs. Alden
Spenser	Mr. Dunday
Totaig	Burg and Jenks

Some of the chances can be estimated by the latest news of the betting in England. Miracle is 10 to 1; Cockpen 13 to 1; Dastur 18 to 1; Hesperus 14 to 1; Andrea and Wyvern 40 to 1; Firdaussi and Portofino; 33 to 1, April 5th 25 to 1; Jiweh 100 to 1.

over the world will be waiting to hear the result, and so will a great many race followers of other nationalities. The winners will be posted at Joe's Bar in Terreno as soon as the names are received.

One of the great thrills for those who cannot see the Derby run is to have a ticket in a sweepstakes on the race. There is always an enormously lengthy entry list, and then the ticket holder has the fun of watching to see if his horse has been scratched.

This year there were two last minute withdrawals that surprised and disappointed a good many speculators. Burnt Mint, owned by Sir Victor Sassoon, was scratched to prevent, so it was said, any doubt as to which horse Steve Donoghue will ride. He will be on Firdaussi, one of the Aga Khan's horses. The other withdrawal was Rolling Rock, which was supposed to have had a fair chance.

Theatre Guild Meets Monday to Reorganize

The Palma Theatre Guild will hold a general meeting on Monday evening, May 30, at the Information Office, 5 Calle Gomila, at 9 o'clock. All members are urged to be present as the business will be Constitution and Officers.

The Executive Committee has adopted a Constitution, as drafted by the appointed committee after numerous meetings. It provides for nine officers with clearly defined duties and reclassifies the Guild membership.

With the adoption of a constitution and with officers for the ensuing year, the Guild will be ready to tackle the next stages of its development.

At the general meeting last Sunday the Treasurer reported that all the expenses incurred in the last production had been met.

Copeland Concert June 7

There is another treat in store for music lovers in Palma. On June 7th, Mr. George Copeland, the pianist, will give a recital at the Teatro Principal beginning at 9.30 p.m. The details of the program will be published in the next issue of THE MAJORCA SUN.

The proceeds of the concert will go to the Capella Clássica for the furtherance of good music in Mallorca. Tickets will be on sale at the hotels, kiosks and tourist agencies in town.

Prosperity's Pilgrims

A few weeks ago there was a run on books about Mallorca in a bookshop on Wall Street, says the Publisher's Weekly. There was some wonderment among the employes, until it was revealed that the customers were all brokers. A cruise for gentlemen of their profession is being organized to bring them to Mallorca where they expect to live on three dollars a week or less, about all that a refugee from the Stock Market can afford.

Another New York bookshop, however, reported that an even more poverty stricken group of former riders of stock market prosperity are reading up on the South Sea Islands, where the cost of living is put at ten dollars a month.

Walker Beats Uzcudun

Mickey Walker, giving more than twenty pounds away to Paulino Uzcudun, won a close decision from the powerful Basque fighter. It was one of the hardest fights seen in N.Y. in a long time, and did a good deal to revive hope that there is life in the game yet.

Both fighters whaled away at each other recklessly, and both were badly damaged before the finish came. But neither could even score a knock-down much less a knockout.

The decision was a close one, but it gives Mickey Walker a claim to meet Sharkey for a possible elimination match to decide a challenger for the champion, Schmeling.

OF PERSONAL INTEREST

Before Mrs. H. P. Loomis left here on Wednesday last she took definite steps to urge the appointment of an American Consul for Mallorca. Having interviewed the Local Authorities, she wrote a personal letter to her nephew, Henry L. Stimson, the American Secretary of State, and also one to the Consular Service at Washington pointing out the vital need for a representative here.

Mrs. Loomis was accompanied by Col. Malevsky-Malevitch, who is completing his book, Russia U.S.S.R. which he hopes to have ready for publication simultaneously in England and America in the Autumn.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Saunders of Lausanne, Switzerland, have taken a house in Terreno. Mrs. Saunders is an Australian and an old friend of Mrs. James Lindo Webb. She is anticipating the arrival of her daughter Shirley, from her school in Switzerland in July.

Mr. Louis M. Gourd of New York is contemplating a prolonged stay on the Island. Mr. Gourd with his wife and two children are at present staying at the Mediterraneo.

Lady (Ian) Malcom and Lord and Lady Bray arrived in Palma on Monday last on the SS Orontes. After a brief tour of Palma with Mr. Ivan Lake, the British Vice Consul they rejoined the ship the same day and sailed for England. Lady Malcom is the daughter of Lily Langtry.

A party consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Jones, Mrs. Edwards and her daughter and Mr. and Mrs. Andretta, all of San Agustin, went over to Ibiza on Friday's boat. They plan to return tonight (Sunday).

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Balch of Boston, enjoyed their stay in Palma so much last year, that they have already written from the States to make arrangements for a house for next winter.

Mrs. Frederick Chamberlin, accompanied by Miss Carmen Short, will leave shortly for a tour through France on their way to England where Mrs. Chamberlin will join her husband who is busy in the British Museum collecting data for his next book, The Life of Leicester.

Have yourself and children photographed in Mallorquin costume. It will be a highly appreciated souvenir.

Miss Grace Hatheway, who recently spent five days in Mallorca, hoped to return for a few days more in order to compile additional data for a book she is writing. She has found, however, that she cannot pay the island another visit, but nevertheless expects to include in her book chapters on life here. There will be other chapters on France, Northern Africa, the Canary Islands and the West Indies, all devoted to telling where and how the owner of a small income can live cheaply and well.

Prof. and Mrs. J. Galbraith left Palma last Thursday for a tour through Spain prior to returning to the United States where Prof. Galbraith will resume his duties at Williams College, Williamstown. Miss Mary Parsons, whose work as nurse in the British Army and later in Vladivostok gained for her many distinguished honors, accompanied them.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Russell have signified their intention of spending the summer in Mallorca by taking Prof. Galbraith's old house, Ave Maria, La Portassa.

Mrs. Noble Clay, Mrs. H. Jenkins and a party of friends left for England last Thursday. They will stop in Barcelona for a few days on their way north.

Mr. Cecil Alden, the English artist, is planning to leave Mallorca early in June for a short visit to England. He will stop in Palma for a few days before.

On the road between Santa Maria and Buñola their car overturned and Mrs. Coventry suffered severe shock and body bruises. Mr. Coventry was bruised and cut about the knee. They hope to be able to sail for England via Marseilles, next week.

LATEST NEWS

Washington.—President Hoover's proposals to resume payment of international debts to the United States, interrupted by the recent moratorium, are meeting general approval. The plan is for payment over ten years, and the measure has been favorably commented upon in London, accepted by the Italian Government and signed by the Germans.

Meanwhile, the economic crisis has become so bad that the President appealed to a meeting of newspaper publishers, called by him for the purpose, to tell the administration what to do. His faith in the ingenuity of publishers is not shared by many.

London.—Extraordinary forces of police were necessary to restore and maintain order when a crowd of women stormed Westminster Hall to hear evidence given at the trial of a clergyman accused of immoral behavior. Several persons were hurt in the rush to gain admittance.

Geneva.—The disarmament conference continues to demonstrate the difficulty of reaching any sort of agreement. Each nation keeps insisting that its pet weapons are purely defensive and all others offensive and subject to strict limitation. The latest dispute is over tanks. France, with many large tanks, claims they are for defense while England, which has concentrated on smaller tanks, says the big ones are offensive. And so on.

Palma de Mallorca.—A squadron of Italian warships, two cruisers and eight destroyers, will visit this port for six days commencing June 26th.

BIG GAME HUNTING IN MALLORCA

All the Thrills of the African Jungles and of the Deep Seas Are Experienced by the Intrepid Nimrods of the Island.

TROPHIES of the chase, packing cases full of them all ready for mounting and hanging in ancestral halls, will be going back to England and America with those intrepid big game hunters who have led expeditions into the wilds of Mallorca, who have penetrated the hills of the hinterland and plumbed the monster-haunted depths of the coast.

What can they know of Mallorca who only Victor's and Joe's and the Café Alhambra know? Certainly they know nothing — well, very little — of the thrill of the chase as it can be experienced by those hardy souls who venture forth with beaters and gun bearers to brave the Unknown.

Following the well defined elephant or woodcutters' trails deep into the interior, the hunter will reach, after many perils dared and hardships overcome, the pools where the wild bullfrogs lurk. From far off he will hear the ominous roar of the great animals calling to each other. As he approaches nearer the sport begins.

There are two methods of bringing down the giant bullfrog. The first and most typical of the country is employed during the daytime, but it requires nerves of steel, a quick eye and perfect muscular co-ordination. The novice will be well advised to practice with hop toads and tame cowfrogs before venturing to match his skill against the wild beast of the pools.

Playing the Bullfrog

The hunter approaches the edge of the water warily, being careful to select a stretch of shore where the footing is secure, and if possible with a large tree close enough to dodge behind at strategic moments.

Having selected his ground, the hunter gives the signal to his assistants, who set up a chorus in imitation of the prey. As the bullfrog rises in response to this challenge, the hunter waves his red-lined cape. The fury which this arouses has given the animal his name, and with a bellow of rage he charges his foe. With a graceful Valenciana or mariposa, the hunter sidesteps and turns to meet the return charge.

The Spanish bullfrog must be played carefully and long, for this exercise is very good for his legs and makes them more succulent when he is finally brought down. Pawing the water in baffled ferocity, he will spring time after time until he is too exhausted to move. And at every spring, the hunter must beware, for the powerful hind legs can inflict a dangerous wound if the animal lands.

The true sportsman will not wait until the bullfrog is so weary that he can be easily slaughtered. An old hand can run his sword into a vital spot when the bullfrog's rushes become slower, and the stroke most admired by connoisseurs is a thrust down the gullet as the panting beast advances open-mouthed.

Less peculiar to Spain is the night method of stalking. In this case the old tiger or lion hunter will be at home. Armed with a searchlight, the party creeps up upon the pool, deafened by the roars of the King of the Jungle. Maddened by the sudden glare of light, the fearless beast will spring, and all who are not expert marksmen should have taken cover. If tragedy is to be averted a single shot from the hunter's high-powered rifle must lodge between the bullfrog's eyes, and the charge will end with the animal dying with convulsive kicks at the shooter's feet.

The Deadly Octopus

Those who prefer the perils of the deep to the treks overland get their excitement in killing the octopus and the squid. From tiny boats, hardly more than cockle shells, the octopus fighter carries on his deadly contest with the terror of the sea.

This is entirely night work, preferably moonlight night work. The game is found for the most part along the northern coast of the island, especially out of the ports of Sóller and Pollensa.

A perfectly smooth sea is an essential, and if the wind is from the north, the expedition must be abandoned, for the boat will drift onto the rocks among which the octopi lurk.

If the weather is favorable, the small boat can glide along close to the jagged shore-line, and in the light of the moon or a searchlight, the octopus will be seen, his long tentacles waving gracefully in the water, his eyes gleaming wickedly.

Armed with harpoon, hook, knife and perhaps a metal tube to serve as telescope, the huntsman draws near. He may either catch the octopus with the hook or harpoon him. In either case he is in for a life and death struggle as he drags the squirming mass of tentacles towards him. At any moment, the beast may give up resisting and attack, and as his reaching tentacles come over the boat's side, reaching to draw men and vessel down into the depths, the hunter must strike hard and true. The knife goes home between the eyes, and the struggle is over.

Another method of dealing with the octopus is to hook him into the boat, and while he is getting a good grip — the beast is dangerous only when he can attach one or two of his tentacles to something solid and have a foothold — turn his hood inside out and smother him.

Two Doctors Named Scott

English newspapers reaching Palma last week gave in considerable detail reports of the death from an overdose of morphia of a registered nurse, and figuring prominently in the hearings was the name of one Dr. F. Gilbert Scott. Many who knew Dr. Scott of Terreno were under the impression that he is the physician referred to, but this is not the case.

The medical man who was severely criticized in England for employing a drug addict as superintendent of a nursing home for other drug addicts was Dr. Frederick Gilbert Scott. The physician known to Mallorca is Dr. Francis Gilbert Scott. They are distant relatives, and this is not the first occasion on which there has been some confusion resulting from the similarity of names and the nature of their work.

Dr. Frederick, according to the testimony at the inquest, had for a short time employed Dr. Harold Ernest Gamlen, Jr., as superintendent of a nursing home, although he had treated Dr. Gamlen as a drug addict. Later Dr. Gamlen went to live in Kensington with his nurse, Doris May Brumpton, as man and wife, and in their home the young woman was found dead of an overdose of morphia.

At the inquest, it was expressly stated that there was no question of murder, and an open verdict was recorded, after Dr. Gamlen and Dr. Frederick Gilbert Scott had testified.

It was widely known in Palma that Dr. Francis Gilbert Scott had returned to England a few weeks ago especially to testify in a case that was coming up soon. When the papers containing the reports of the morphia poisoning case arrived, there was considerable confusion in the minds of many, a confusion which was perhaps natural in view of the similarity of names, the fact that Dr. Francis Gilbert Scott was also in charge of nursing homes in England and that he had recently gone to England to appear as a witness.

As a matter of fact, the case upon which he was called involved an automobile accident of several years ago which is now in litigation. Dr. Scott treated one of those injured in the accident.

The Dr. Frederick Gilbert Scott, with whom his name was confused, is not in general practice, he testified at the inquest. He has written a book on the cure of drug addicts and described himself as a specialist in the treatment of such unfortunates.

Palma Museum Plans

Tentative plans for the establishment of a real art museum where all—or at least the great majority— of the treasures of the island could be collected together were made at a meeting last week between representative Mallorquin gentlemen and D. Jerónimo Martorell of the Department of Historical Monuments.

All deplored the absence of such a museum in the capital of this province, declaring that the lack of such an institution is felt more and more every day, an indirect tribute to the island's increasing tourist traffic.

It was the general opinion that the logical home of such a museum as is planned would be the Al mudaina, for it is one of the oldest buildings in the Balearics and more closely associated with Mallorca's history than any. It also has the advantage of being most conveniently located. The proposed institution would not, it was said, conflict in aims or exhibits with the museum of folk lore and popular arts which is planned for Bellver Castle.

During the meeting, Señor Martorell promised to use his influence to secure state aid for continuation of the restoration of the cloisters of San Francisco, which was begun by the local Commission of Monuments.

Bicycle Races

The Palma bicycle racing season opens this (Sunday) afternoon at four o'clock with three races and an attempt to beat the course record of the Velodromo. All the contestants have been in rigorous training on the track for the last week.

The first race is of twenty-five laps. The second is an «Australian Race» (elimination) and the last a free for all of twenty-one laps. Before the last race Bartolomé Flaquer, the local favorite, will attempt to beat the course record held by the former champion of Spain, Miguel Bover.

BARCELONA

Old Spain

Professor Bosch Guimpere lectured last Tuesday evening at the Athenaeum Club before a large audience on Spain in Roman and Pre-Roman Times. The Professor, who is the Dean of the Faculty of Arts at the Barcelona University, spoke in English and illustrated his remarks with lantern slides.

The lecture was arranged by the Anglo-Spanish Committee.

Prof. Bosch Guimpere said that some of the earliest examples of Spanish art, which are to be found in the Caves of Altamira, have a value which places the dwellers in these caves on a level with the great creators of mankind. But for the fact that these paintings represent pre-historic animals, the expert would have put them at a much later date in the history of the world.

Later the speaker showed how cultural influences from Spain had flowed to the South of France, to England and to Ireland.

Discussing the various invasions of the Phoenicians, Greeks, and Carthaginians, which Spain was subjected to, he said that when the Romans came, Spain was better able to receive what they had to bring than any other western nation, and as a consequence their influence in this country was more permanent than in other parts of the Empire.

He pointed out that Trajan and Hadrian, the two Spaniards who rose to wear the purple, brought the Roman Empire to its apogee, and thus Spain gave back to Rome some return for what she had received.

In the audience were, among many others, Mr. Norman King, Mr. and Mrs. Braddock, Mr. and Mrs. A. Witty, Mr. J. Parsons, Mrs. G. Lawrence, Miss E. Deeble, Sr. P. Rius, Sr. J. Plans, Mr. Cretchley, Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong, Miss Field, Mr. D. R. Darling and many members of the London Club, including: Mr. and Mrs. Hobbes, Miss Siar, Mr. F. Witty, Mr. H. S. Gardner, Miss J. Witty, Mr. W. Parck, Mr. P. C. Richards and Sr. Luis Bassols de Clement.

The lantern slides with which the Professor illustrated his lecture showed the development of early Spanish art from the time the stone age men first traced their drawings on the walls of Altamira until the Romans had completed the Aqueduct at Tarragona.

Summer Snow in the Mountains

Snow fell during the week in the mountains around Lérida, and the unseasonable storm was followed by even greater fall in temperature than snow seemed to warrant.

However, summer is greatly delayed all over Europe this year.

The Cretchley Putter

A challenge golf match was arranged for last Thursday between the staffs of the Anglo Bank, the Royal Bank and the International Banking Corporation, all of which combined to select a team to play golfers of the Riegos y Fuerzo del Ebro.

The match resulted in a tie. The contest consisted of twelve singles over eighteen holes, all played on the San Cugat links of the New Barcelona Golf Club for the trophy which was presented by Mr. E. E. Cretchley, Vice President of the New Barcelona Golf Club.

Unfortunately neither team could summon «that little bit extra» which would have gained a win, and the trophy will now remain the joint possession of both teams until next year, for it is hoped that there will be enough support to permit the match to be held as an annual event on the San Cugat course.

The results of Thursdays play were as follows:

E. E. Cretchley of Riegos beat W. Newman of the Banks, 1 up.

F. W. Schaefer of the Banks beat C. L. Jones of Riegos, 2 up and 1 to play.

H. L. Cagnon of the Banks beat H. St. J. B. Strang of Riegos 7 up and 5 to play.

R. B. Gwynne of the Banks beat H. F. Olivant of Riegos, 4 up and 3 to play.

R. J. Breyfogle of the Banks beat H. G. Dennes of Riegos, 5 up and 4 to play.

P. H. Whitmore of Riegos beat H. C. Leman of the Banks 3 up and 2 to play.

G. Currell of Riegos beat J. V. Webb of the Banks, 4 up and 3 to play.

R. R. Wightwick of Riegos won from R. E. Palmer of the Banks, w.o.

W. Hall of the Banks beat G. Pearson of Riegos, 7 up and 5 to play.

C. Wallace of Riegos beat E. V. Cawdron of the Banks, 7 up and 5 to play.

W. C. Rew of the Banks beat C. Hughes of Riegos, 3 up and 2 to play.

I. M. C. Burne of Riegos beat J. C. Cotton of the Banks, 7 up and 6 to play.

Total, Banks, six wins; Riegos, six wins.

Police Ready for Strike

The police have redoubled their usual preparations against the activities of communists and anarchists, and the police heads have been in conference to consider measures for preventing any trouble during the general revolutionary strike which has been called for today.

It is said that some extreme radicals have collected arms, and several arrests have been made. Several bombs have also been found, but the authorities are so well prepared that no serious trouble is anticipated.

PARADISE LOST

By H. Carmichael

One often hears that Mallorca is fifty years behind the times, that sanitation is a thing almost unknown, and that to ask for an efficient tram service is to ask for the moon. These and other similar remarks have frequently appeared in these columns, and I think it is time to come to the defence of the Balearic Islands.

The first question which arises is:

«If you find the Islands so uncivilised and objectionable, why do you live, or even come there?»

Is it not remotely possible that the first foreign residents on the islands liked them for their backwardness, calm, and freedom from modern improvements? They, poor things, would be turning in their graves still, were they not hardened to such sacrilegious comment; they, the pioneers, who first loved the peace of the Cote Basque and the Cote d'Azur, Oberammergau and Jerusalem, have seen the throngs swoop down on these fair places and turn them into what they are now. One could almost reconcile them to the scream of switchbacks on the Puig Mayor.

But Mallorca. «this land of such dear souls, this dear dear land..... is now leased out.» It can never be reconstructed, like Ypres' Cloth Hall — the damage is moral, as well as physical, and goes too deep for any hope of that. Where formerly one could rest in peace and enjoy the blessings of a tranquil existence in contact with simple, friendly people, today there are monumental hotels where one dresses for dinner, an increasing number of rather doubtful bars, and recently a stormy petrel forerunner of the end has appeared in the shape of amateur theatricals. Meanwhile, Ibiza, innocently dreaming in her blue waters, is being adorned in her turn for sacrifice on the altar of Progress.

The old Mallorcan families keep to themselves in the seclusion of city palaces and country estates, ignoring the rising tide of sentimental Baedekers written by emotional visitors, whilst the man in the street smiles, and welcomes the prosperity to which none would be averse. But that smile — if only the ladies and gentlemen could read the thoughts behind it — and now it is I who am asking for the moon.

Church Meeting

The General Church meeting of the Church of England will be held on Tuesday, May 31st, at 7 p.m. at Mr. Fraser Lawton's office, which he has loaned for the purpose. It is hoped that as many of the parishioners as possible will attend.

Legal Hints for Foreigners

This article is an introduction to a series, dealing with certain points in Spanish Law, of interest to foreigners, which will be published from time to time in these columns. Such subjects as Cedula, Inquilinato etc., etc., will be dealt with in due course.

Spain in keeping with its name for open armed hospitality, grants the same civil rights to foreigners as to the native Spaniard; certain political rights they cannot have of course unless they become naturalized, but in the civil, commercial and administrative life they enjoy privileges which foreigners do not possess in other countries.

This series will have for its purpose the guidance of foreigners in difficulties they may have, and points which are not readily understood will be cleared up if questions are asked.

As readers will understand it is not possible in a limited space to go into the details of the branches of law; Civil, Mercantile, and International etc. which cover the civil and administrative rights to which we have alluded, we will have to keep to salient points which affect visitors or resident foreigners.

Donde está su sombrero de Vd? Está en la mesa. Donde están mis (my) zapatos? Están debajo de la silla. Cuando estaba ella aquí? Estaba aquí esta mañana. Quien tiene mis calcetines? La criada tiene sus calcetines de Vd. Donde estan mi americana negra y mis pantalones blancos? Están en la silla en el otro cuarto. Tiene Vd. una corbata negra? No, pero tengo una azul. Tienen Vds. cuellos blancos? No, pero tenemos corbatas de color. Su sombrero de ella estaba en la mesa en mi cuarto. Su americana no está aquí. Ella estaba aquí antes de Vd. Nosotros estábamos aquí antes de ellos. Donde está mi carta? Estaba debajo de mi libro en la mesa esta mañana. Tiene Vd. zapatos negros? No, pero tenemos zapatos de color. Tienen Vds. trajes de señor? Si, y trajes de Señora también. (also) Cuando Yo estuve aquí esta mañana, él estaba escribiendo (writing).

Translation of Lesson 2. omitted for want of space in former issue.

Where is the girl's book? It is in the room. Where are the girls' books? They are on the chair. Where was the boy's pencil? It was in the room. When were you in the office? I was there this morning. When was the servant in the market? She was there this morning. When was the money on the chair? When I was in the room. Where is my watch? It is in my brother's room. Have you my pencil? I have not it, my brother has it. Had you my pen? Yes, I had it this morning. Have you the money? I have not it, the servant has it. The floor of the room is dirty. The floor of the room is not clean. My house is not near the office, it is far from the office.

My father was a doctor. My house in Madrid was high, and it had high windows and high doors. Here my house is small, and it has small windows and small doors. That watch was bad, this watch is good. Where were you? I was with my father in the office. Where was your mother? She was in the room with the maid. When was your father here? He was here this morning. Were you here when your father was here? No, we were with our mother. Have you your books here? No, I have them in the office. Have they your books? We have them.

(The next lesson will deal with the pronouns.)

Concerning the Hospital

To the Editor,

I have read with considerable interest the correspondence which appeared in the last two issues of your paper, referring to the so-called British hospital; especially so, as for the past four years (my term of residence here) I have from time to time heard it commented on, and I must say seldom commendably.

I have heard of Britishers who have been patients there, but who have had to pay through the nose for their treatment, and who have had to make extreme sacrifices so as to be able to meet the bill presented to them. I have NEVER heard of a Britisher who had received free treatment or treatment at a reduced fee (30 pesetas per day is surely not a reduced fee), and I have heard of some who were refused admittance through not being able to produce the desired amount.

Now, if it is a Spanish Evangelical Hospital, supported by Evangelicals, the case of course is O. K. but why is it generally known as the British Hospital (there should be one here) and for what reason are the mass of the subscribers Britishers of all Creeds? Many Britishers subscribe large sums of money regularly and do not seek benefit from it; what happens to this?

I would suggest that the money subscribed by Britishers be applied to a section for Britishers whatever creed, and that the British Colony support this section for their mutual benefit. I for one, a Catholic, would be pleased to give towards it. I have not been a subscriber up to the present for it seems to me there is muddling somewhere.

Mr. Lawrence's lengthy letter contains no supported facts and in it, it would seem that he has just been beating about the bush.

There are no R. C. (Catholic he means, I suppose) Spanish hospitals in Barcelona; patients are admitted without reference to Creed.

Yours truly

D. B. Bronlow
Diputación 52

P. S. Who compose the controlling body of this hospital? Is there a committee?

P. P. S. I would ask you in the interest of all of us to obtain some facts relating to it. What it really is? Conditions for obtaining admission to it etc., etc.

Empire Day Festival

The old farm house at San Cugat which the New Barcelona Golf Club have converted into their headquarters was the scene of a happy gathering of children on May 21st when the British Colony in Barcelona celebrated Empire Day.

Mr. Arthur F. Loveday was responsible for the various races, which went off without a hitch. In the morning the older and in the afternoon the younger boys and girls had their running races on a track especially prepared and marked out by Mr. J. S. Coulson, the Club's professional. Swimming and diving contests followed and the children later had their lunch, picnic fashion in a neighboring woods.

At 2:30 in the afternoon the Girl Guides and Brownies paraded for the ceremonial hoisting of the Union Jack, and after the singing of the National Anthem, Mrs. Norman King, wife of H. M. Consul General, distributed Empire medals to the children. Mrs. King also distributed the prizes and the Consul General made a short speech explaining the reasons for the Festival and the duty of the children to make themselves good citizens of the Empire.

New Barcelona Golf Club

Mrs. Frost won the ladies' championship last Sunday by defeating Sra. López Sert over eighteen holes by the decisive margin of five up and four to play. Last year's title holder was the Condesa de Salvoni.

Club Championship

Results of last Sunday's play at San Cugat for the Club championship, all matches being decided over eighteen holes, were:

Vizconde de Illa beat J. Wihl
E. E. Cretchley beat H. Eddy
C. López Sert beat E. Cañas
F. Witty beat A. Battló
P. Girú beat Vizconde de Illa

It is hoped to play the final round today (Sunday) over thirty-six holes.

Seaman's Institute

Corpus Christi Day

With less than the display of former years, Corpus Christi Day was celebrated in Barcelona last Thursday. There were a good many balconies decorated for the occasion, but the Host was not, as in the past, carried in procession through the streets of the city.

Many shops and offices were closed all day, and all of them were shut during the afternoon, making a complete half holiday.

Within the Cathedral, the procession which is usually held outdoors filed through the cloisters and the ceremonies continued until six o'clock in the evening.

There were no disturbances to mar the solemnity of the religious festival.

The celebration of Corpus Christi day here was typical of the ceremonies throughout Spain.

BOOM!

Residents of Sóller and the Puerto were surprised last week by a low rumbling and vibration of the earth that was unpleasantly reminiscent of an earthquake.

It proved to be the greatest dynamite blast that has yet been set off in connection with the improvement of the Port of Sóller. A large part of the cliff was blown loose making a beach on which the water breaks, thus permitting it to spend its force on the newly made tableland before hitting the road and the tram lines. Up to now the tram service between Sóller and the port has been frequently interrupted because of the wash of the sea in bad weather.

The charge of dynamite was so deeply placed and well distributed that although thousands of tons of loosened earth and rock slid into the sea, the explosion was felt rather than heard and none of the buildings in the vicinity suffered even the slightest damage.

On the other side of the little bay work is proceeding rapidly on the construction of the breakwater that will make Sóller an important port. Against a background of quaint rustic buildings, modern cranes are efficiently sliding huge concrete blocks into the water and divers are busy below the surface laying the foundations for this important engineering project. When that is completed, the trip from Barcelona to Mallorca will be a matter of only five hours. It is planned to inaugurate this service by the first of next year.

Exhibits

An outstanding feature of the exhibition which opened last Wednesday at the Galerías Costa, is the variety of artists and subjects. They are well selected and represent a number of painters who have never before exhibited here. Among them are such names as Sigui who has transferred to canvas some charming local scenes, the details of which show an intimate knowledge of his native heath. Other Mallorquin painters who are exhibiting are Caffaro, Cerdí and Barceló.

There are such familiar names as Frau Lene Schneider-Kainer whose portrait of the Alcalde, Señor Villalonga, shows the artist's ability to depict a comprehensive study of character. A full length portrait of a small child and another of a Mallorquin lass in peasant costume, proves that she has other and lighter gifts which are doubtless of more importance to the sitter—charm and grace of style.

Cittadini's landscapes, though not major examples of his work, are characteristic and attracted much attention.

The exhibition will continue for another week.

Expedition to Ibiza

Señor Costa of the Galerías Costa has definitely arranged to start his archaeological expedition to Ibiza in ten days. The expedition will continue researches which have been Señor Costa's hobby for the last thirty years.

The leader of the party says he will take a few foreigners with him if they are sufficiently interested in the pursuit of prehistoric and early historic relics of Balearic civilization.

For the Orford's Passengers

One of the attractions planned for the passengers of the SS Orford of the Orient Line on their Mediterranean cruise, is a dinner and dance at the Hotel Formentor when their ship puts in at Puerto Pollensa on the afternoon of June 5th next. At midnight she will lift anchor and steam around to Palma from where the passengers will start on the regular shore excursions. The Oxford will proceed to Ibiza at midnight of June 6th.

The Fight of the Year

The most expensive bull fight of the season — and, it is hoped, the best — will be held next Sunday, and bull fight fans have been saving up for months to see the show. The prices range from twelve to forty pesetas, huge sums for Mallorca, but the ring will be crowded to capacity to see Lalanda, Ortega and Barrera.

The Beach and the Ballroom

Every dip you take this summer will mean a decided improvement in your dancing next winter. Those who learn to swim before they take up dancing invariably have less difficulty in controlling their feet in the intricate movements of the modern dance—classic or popular. The professional dancer is perhaps benefited in this way more than the amateur. Dancers who are also swimmers do not tire so quickly, and acquire perfection in technique with less effort. The secret lies in the fact that swimming increases endurance while diving gives a muscular control gained in few other forms of exercise.

Good dancers always have strong lungs and know the trick of breathing deeply and regularly. No matter how great their dexterity, they must have the endurance to exhibit it and in this nothing helps so much as swimming. Even when most exhausted, the swimmer must breathe evenly or he will swallow water at every stroke. In the same way, dancing requires steady, even breathing for continuity of movement and balance.

Weather Report

Summer is officially here. The glass doors that protect loungers from inclement weather have been removed from the front of restaurants and cafes; movie houses offer as a special inducement, ice-cooled air, and stiff straw hats may be seen on the heads of the more conservative Mallorquin gentlemen as they parade along the Borne of an afternoon.

A further indication that the outdoor season is well under way is the formal opening on June 5th, next Sunday, of S'Aigo Dolça, the bathing beach in Son Alegre—just at the beginning of Terreno. This attractive playground where one can enjoy a swim and a fresh or salt water shower after a toss of the medicine ball, has a tennis court and other less strenuous amusements as well as tables for tea, and a bar.

Out on the road towards the bull ring and the race track, near the Hotel Ingles, can be found another form of outdoor entertainment. Luna Park opened its gates to the public last night (Saturday). Gay colored chairs and small tables are placed around the ground so that the variety show that starts at 9:30 in the evening can be seen while sipping a cooling drink. Later the chairs are removed from the centre of the pavilion and the performance is continued as a cabaret.
