Fascism-The Eternal Theme

of the announced «Fascist» rally made a deep and perhaps unexpected effect on the Spanish political mind. The agitation that was caused was more anticipatory than anything else, since the act itself did not fulfil the expectations of its promoters, leaders of the «Juventudes Españolas».

All over the country, strikes were called as a protest against what was expected to be a dangerous demonstration, both politically and numerically.

Actually, several of the protest meetings, held the same day, had a greater attendance than the Escorial itself, where some ten thousand men and women gathered to hear the pronouncements of Sr. Gil Robles, their Parliamentary leader. The rain and snow that fell during the meeting did not serve to dampen the ardour of the orator nor of his audience, and the stirring speech calling upon every patriot to do his bit in helping to make a New Spain was received with great enthusiasm.

The general census of opinion in the country is to the effect that any semi-military organisation is necessarily an evil, and that the youth of Spain is being, as it were, «led up the garden» to the sound of martial music and exalted oratory. This opinion would seem, however, to be contradicted by the reports that the average age of the attendance at the Escorial meeting was 45, which suggests that the organisation «Juventudes Españolas» is either a misnomer or else that the «rejuvenation of Spain» is being taken seriously by men, who, whilst still in their prime, are not likely to be carried away by boyish enthusiasms.

The Land of the Free

It has been said very truly that Spain is the freest country in the world and there is no doubt that the Spaniard loves and will fight for his personal liberty, so that any person or organisation suspect of dictatorial ambitions is immediately a subject of anathema to the general public.

Possibly, however, Sr. Gil Robles and his party have been victims of Press persecution to the extent that their motives have been misconstrued and the label of «Fascists» given them willy-nilly, just as the British Labour Party were forced by the Press into becoming the socialist Party, a difference in political terminology that lends itself to manoeuvres of the hair-splitting variety.

In these days of parliamentary agitation, when scandal after scandal is being exposed and the natural trend of patriots is to abandon all faith in time worn political structures, it is natural that the youth and the thinkers of the world should endeavour to take the matter into their own hands on the principle that the cure lies in the theory of new wine in new bottles. Whether they are successful depends, as has been seen, on the various circumstances and temperaments with which they have to deal, but in every case their path has been made more difficult by the constant application of the Fas-application of the Fascist label.

At one time, the word «Bolshevik» became almost an epithet in national politics, now it has been dethroned by the implied insult «Fascist», a term which is indiscriminately applied to any sort of cleaning up movement, no matter whether it be of Left or Right tendencies. A study of the methods of Italian Fascism should be advocated to every lover of generalisations, who would thus discover that any movement he was condemning as being Fascist might probably be entirely opposed politically to the aspirations of Mussolini.

One may well say, «What's in a name», but in this case it really does matter, since the application of a name may have the unfortunate consequence of damning for ever a movement that may turn out to be for the Public Good.

The pronounced bumptiousness of new Movements to-day may denote the first symptoms of a political change-of-life; it could also be taken for a manifestation of mass hysteria coming as a relief from the pent-up emotions attendant upon political bewilderment.

REVIEW OF THE WEEK'S NEWS

Another step in the process of Reich reform which is taking place without greatly altering realities, is the relinquishment of the post of Prussian Minister of the Interior by General Goering. The post, which is being taken over by the Reich Minister of the Interior, Dr. Frick, is an extremely important one; the Minister of the Interior has complete control of the Prussian police, the most powerful force in the country after the Reichswehr, and the power to order arrest and imprisonment throughout Prussia. At the same time, a new Ministry of Science, Education and Popular Instruction has been formed.

New Regime in Austria

On May lst in Vienna, celebrations were organized on a grand scale to inaugurate the new era which has been introduced by the creation of a new corporative Austria. Last Monday the Rump Parliament of the old democratic Austria met for the last time, after a suspension of 14 months, and quietly did all that was required of it by granting Herr Dollfus's Government full powers for the drawing up of the future corporative Constitution of Austria, and then as quietly was dissolved.

Japan and China

The Japanese reply to the recent British note to Japan has been received, and was announced to the House of Commons by Sir John Simon on Monday. The British note was sent owing to the increasing tendency of Japan to act alone in Chinese affairs, and to resent any other power or powers having anything to do with China.

Japan now replies categorically that she adheres to the Nine Power Treaty, and will put no obstacle in the way of any power wishing to assist the Chinese, or to develop markets or industries in the country. A great deal of peaceful development is going on in China, and the throwing open of the vast and hitherto untouched Chinese market would immensely add to the prosperity of the West, as well as in large part solving Japan's economic difficulties.

It's nice to think that the poor old depleted British Navy has got one or two modern ships.

May Day in Russia

A Military Parade on a large scale formed part of the May Day Celebrations in Moscow. The parade was more particularly a demonstration of Soviet air strength and included a formation flight of military aeroplanes in which a squadron of Turkish aeroplanes visiting Moscow took part. The programme also included a flight by the new «Maxim Gorki agitation» aeroplane, said to be the biggest land machine in the world.

Hunting a Killer

One of the greatest man hunts in history is under way in the United States. John Dillinger notorious bandit and killer has been at large now for several months since his escape from jail. The chase has spread through five states with the quarry often cornered but fighting his way free each time. Found in a road house last week, the federal authorities lost two dead and four wounded and the killer escaped. Martial law is being urged in Minnesota.

Where is the President?

A delicate point in international law will be brought up when ex-president Machado of Cuba is found in the United States. Extradition has been asked and authorities are searching throughout several states for him. There is an extradition agreement between Cuba and the United States but as to whether it applies to political refugees or not is not clear. Machado is wanted on a charge of murder.

Interesting Madrid Marriage

A large congregation witnessed the marriage at the British Embassy Church on Sunday of Miss Margaret Robinson, formerly the popular teacher of the Sunday School and sister of Miss Ruth Robinson, the actress, to Mr. Frederick Swanton. The Civil ceremony had been held on the previous day at the British Consulate. The Rev. H. Pentin, M. A. made an excellent and moving address and a reception was held aftewards at the home of Mrs. G. F. Moore, which was attended by many members of the British colony including Sir George Grahame, the British Ambassador. The couple afterwards left for the Costa Brava and Andorra.

No. 4. Victor's

Victor is with us once again, after a long sojourn in the wilds of Pollensa. In the words of the song: «They buried him deep in a hole in the ground, but you never could keep a good man

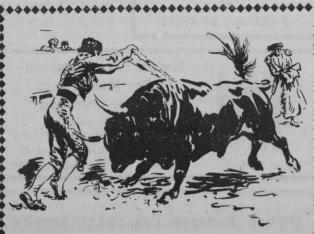

Victor started his career at sea — he holds a second mate's ticket — and he brings a suggestion of ocean breeziness into any place he runs. His new place is an amusing and intimate little bar opposite the Lonja — the sort of place in which three look a crowd — and there you will find Victor in his white coat, beaming disarmingly at you, and displaying all his old dexterity either with the shaker or the dice box. He has amusing ideas too — like giving the man who orders the thirteenth drink of the day his spot of something for nothing.

Quite a lot of people have taken to dropping in there, and in the evening there is often somebody with a guitar. It's good port of call after the movies, and in the morning it is flooded with sunshine.

Victor has recently acquired adjoining premises, which he will soon open for dancing, so soon we shall have another bar where you can dance, and which has a real Bohemian atmosphere.

The excursion leaves Palma at 9.30 a.m. returning to Palma at about 6 p.m.

A good many tourists would only make this excursion for the purpose of having a round of golf. For these, the management is organizing every week a trip called the «Golfers' Special,» the exact day of which will be advertised next week. This excursion will go direct to the Golf Links.

From a Japanese boy's Essay on the Banana:-

«The banana are great remarkable fruit. He are constructed in the same architectural style as sausage, difference being skin of sausage are habitually consumed, while it is not advisable to eat wrapping of banana. The banana are held aloft while consuming; sausages are usually left in a reclining position. Sausage depend for creation on human being or stuffing machine, while banana are Pristine Product of honorable mother nature. In case of sausage, both conclusion are attached to other sausage; banana on other hands are attached to one end to stem and opposite termination entirely loose. Finally banana are strictly of vegetable kingdom, while affiliation of sausage often undecided.»

In the Terreno Shop

If you are very very sylphlike, but it must be very—you can indulge in a pair of Honolulu shorts. They are a great deal briefer than their name. And if you are not, why not try a course of Slimvite, that marvellous preparation that really does peel the fat off in rolls?

For golf or tennis there are some charming finely striped heavy washing silk dresses, and heaps of patterns to select from if you have a special fancy for a particular style.

Although it's getting a little late for woollies, it is hard to pass by the coloured hand-knitted jumpers, and two or three piece sets. Very smart hand knitted bathing suits are on hand also. In machine knit, there is a variation on the pirate-like striped short-sleeved jerseys, which seem to be natives of Mallorca. Fine string of different hues, has been knitted into attractive garments too.

The Terreno Shop keeps in stock many beautifully hand embroidered underclothes, at extremely moderate prices. There is an amusing collection of feminine joys in the way of necklaces, rings, earrings, etc. And a thing that is particularly interesting to those who care for perfume is the small glass tubes and wicker-covered flasks of Mallorca's special scents, made from the natural flowers; one is of orange blossom, and the other of almond.

In a corner of the shop stands a colourful screen painted by Mr. John Georgii. When the lucky purchaser takes it away, it will be sadly missed.

Party's Over

If there are not distinct signs of something approaching a wreck in the home, well, it wasn't a good party. It's amazing the number of mothers who have clumsy children, especially when the children have grown up to be our dearest friends and guasts.

Dear old George—«frightfully amusing, my dear»—but not so amusing when he tips the contents of his dry Martini into the piano's inside under the impression that he is helping to binge up the felicitous rendering of The Lost Chord, by that charming little Miss What's It.

And then the rings—how they do accumulate on the furniture. The effect is rather as though angels had decided to play a very vague game of deck quoits. Cigarette burns will happen. Although one cannot completely restore the effect of these minor damages, one can cover up their nakedness.

For rings on varnished furniture, a shovelful of hot charcoal held over, not on, the wood—otherwise it will scorch—The wood should then be lightly rubbed with a piece of flannel while it is warm. If you have any, moisten the rag with a few drops of linseed oil.

A more modern way of doing the same thing is by using a not too hot electric iron over some thick brown paper. Whatever you do, don't press the iron down hard. Finish off in the same manner.

If you have a very delicate surfaced wood that has been badly scratched, odd as it may seem, the finest pumice stone, rubbed on it with a circular movement will work wonders. If the surface is French polished, and dimly marked, rub round and round with a small piece of cotton wool on which you have put a few drops of methylated spirit. Before using, wrap the cotton wool in a bit of soft cloth. To test the quantity of spirit, put the pad close up to your lips. You should feel a tiny cold draught from it. It must not be wet.

It the stain has been bad enough to need a little colour to bring it back to its original perfection, get some clear polish from Brunswick brown and apply a few drops onto cotton wool with an outer covering of soft material. But don't forget to go round and round.

George himself will have to cope with the inside of the piano!

My Lady's Garden

It is practically impossible to have a permanent lawn in a Southern garden, without a great deal of trouble and expense. But a refreshing patch of grass can be had for several months of the year.

As soon as the first September rains have made the ground workable, dig over deeply your proposed lawn, and incorporate a generous amount of manure, as grass is a rank feeder. Level and rake smooth the surface. Then sow thickly and as evenly as possible some good quality lawn grass seed. Water thoroughly, and beat down the surface with a flat piece of wood. The grass ought to be up in a fortnight, and in about six weeks should be cut for the first time, and after that regularly. Water during any period without rain.

In this manner a presentable lawn can be had from November till May, but after that it is quickly burnt up by the summer sun, and must be remade every September.

HOW TO UNDERSTAND A BULLFIGHT

By Aficionado

When you go into the Plaza de Toros to see your first bullfight, you will find yourself in the midst of a vociferous, expectant, jostling crowd, while a band will be playing exciting sounding music in paso doble time. Soon a motor water cart will drive into the ring, to damp down the sand. It is received with cheers. Men will be raking the sand over, and there will be a bustle of preparation among the bullring servants in the narrow passage way between the barrier and the first row of seats

Punctually to the minute, and a bullfight is the one thing in Spain that is never late, two Alguaci-les, or municipal officers, will ride into the ring, clad in delightful costumes dating back to the time of Philip II, and will doff their hats to the president, who has just entered his box. They ride away, to return a moment later at the head of a procession of all the toreros who are taking part in the fight. Immediately behind them will be the three matadores, or swordsmen, walking abreast, their gorgeous capes furled, one arm folded, glittering in scarlet and gold. Behind them march the banderilleros, usually in silver braided costumes, then the mounted picadores in yellow, peones or servants, and last the triple mule team that drags out the dead bulls. All salute the president. They retire, except the men who are to handle the first bull, who take the fighting capes, and station themselves round the ring, close to the barrier.

One of the Alguaciles rides in again, and hat in hand asks for the key of the toril, or bull pen. It is thrown down to him. If he catches it in his hat, the crowd cheers; otherwise it whistles. He gallops off with it.

Enter the Bull

A tense silence. The trumpets blare, and the first bull rushes into the ring. It is a heart thumping moment. Remember that the bull is a wild animal, who has spent his life on an open range, who has been tested for courage and ferocity.

You will notice the matador who is to kill this bull standing behind one of the little wooden shelters close to the barrier. He must watch to see if the bull charges straight and frankly, with which horn he prefers to hook. Capemen will flutter their capes once or twice at the bull, and run him across the sand. Then the matador steps out with his cape, cites the bull to charge. He then makes a series of passes with the cape. If perfectly done, these should combine a maximum of grace with a maximum of danger to the man. The bull should be passed as closely as possible to the body, the cape swung slowly. These passes have various names, the verónica and the media verónica being the most common. The series usually ends with a rebolera, a swirl of the cape behind the man, which almost brings the bull to his knees—as the Spaniards say, «using the bull as a waist band.»

And now the Picadores

The president's handkerchief flutters, the trumpets sound again, and two picadores ride into the ring. Capemen play the bull onto the horse. At last the bull charges, and as he does so, the picador leans over and sticks him in the great tossing muscle with his spear. The object of this part of the game, is to tire the shoulder muscles of the bull, so that when he comes to be killed he will keep his head down. Otherwise, no man in the world could kill him properly. This is achieved both by the punishment of the pic in his shoulder, and the effort of getting under and lifting the horse.

The horse is now protected by a heavy leather mattress, and it is rarely that a horse is gored. But usually both horse and rider go down. One of the matadores then steps up, and draws the bull away with the cape. Watch this, called the quite, rather than fallen horse and man. Some of the most brilliant and spectacular work with the cape is done in executing the quite.

The bull is usually piced three or at most four times. The picador's spear should go in only in the shoulder muscle. If he pic's the bull too far back, it is bad work, and is usually greeted with a storm of derisive whistles. The object is to wear the bull down gradually, without seriously damaging him, or impairing his powers of attack.

Next week we shall discuss the placing of the banderillas, and the final act of the tragedy, when the matador faces the bull alone, with the square of red cloth called the of red cloth called the muleta, and the sword.

Slow Death

When we were children, we heard of leprosy for the first time as our mothers read stories from the Bible to us. We were told that leprosy cannot be healed by the doctors and that it slowly eats up a person's hands, feet and face until he dies. Since those happy days of early childhood we never thought much about leprosy, it remained a horror, indescribable and unreal; many of us thought it to be one of those diseases which were a plague in old times, but which modern medical science had since extirpated.

This is not the case, however. As statistics show, leprosy is even spreading. In 1911 there were about two million leprous people in the world, in 1927 there were more than five millions. Leprosy exists in all tropic and subtropic countries; China, India and Africa are the most infected countries and from there leprosy has spread. The Chinese took it with them to California, Mexico and South America, the Indians infected Australia and from Africa the disease spread to the West Indies and Southern Europe. France has a certain number of leprous people, Italy has many and Spain has over a thousand.

Leprosy is a disease the origin of which is still a mystery. Women with leprosy have sometimes lived for years without infecting their husbands, diseased mothers have had healthy babies, have touched them every day and given them to drink from their leprous breasts - the children have not got the disease. Nurses and doctors who look after the sick in the leprosy asylums, are very rarely infected. Leprosy is a mystery, once a person has it there is practically no escape from a slow and cruel death. At the first sign of the dreaded disease, human society turns its back upon the unfortunate victim who from that time on is counted among the dead and left to his fate.

In Spain only about five hundred of the thousand leprous are shut up in asylums, the rest walk about in freedom among the healthy. There is not enough room for all in the few places that receive people affected with the disease. Not so much in northern Spain, but all along the Mediterranean coast and in Andalusia the traveller can see them, most of them beggars and poor people who live in the slums of the coastal towns, of Seville and of Granada.

About three hundred of Spain's leprous people live in a little town of their own. A Jesuit, Padre Ferris, gave his life to help the poor diseased who lived in caves in utter poverty and abandon, and in 1908 he succeeded in obtaining the Spanish Government's support for his project to build a little town for them in the province of Alicante not far from the sea coast. He called it Fontilles and it is now a real little town with its own church, theatre, cinema and estanco. It is surrounded by walls and only inhabited by leprous people, doctors, nurses and a priest. There the diseased live a normal life, nobody flees from them, nobody despises them. In this little town there are no beggars and outlaws, all have their work and their amusements.

Dr. Montañès is in charge of Fontilles since Padre Ferris died. He is the idol of the inhabitants of the little town, and mayor, judge and doctor all at the same time. His only wish is to find a cure for the disease by which he could restore his patients to society and save them from the most horrible of all deaths.

BALLET RUSSE

THE Ballet Russe of Monte Carlo, after a triumphant tour of America, has arrived in Barcelona for a short season. To realize what a tremendous gap was filled by this ballet in the hearts of all dance and art lovers, one has only to know that their first season, in London, which was to last three weeks, went on for five months, and this before crowded houses.

The Ballet Russe is a revival of the Serge Diaghileff Ballet which toured the world in triumph for over twenty years. Serge Diaghileff, because he was not a dancer, but a connoisseur of all the arts, was able to make the ballet a complete artistic success. The greatest painters designed costumes and decor for the ballets. The name of Leon Bakst is irrevocably bound up with the Russian Ballet, as is that of the modern painter Picasso. Spain was also represented by the artist Pruna, and Polunin and Gontcharova were two of the most famous Russian scene and costume designers, for whom the Russian Ballet was a never-ending source of

Of the great composers whom Diaghileff introduced to the public must be mentioned Tschaikowsky, who wrote many ballets for it, and belonged to the Bakst, Nijinsky, Pavlova and Karsavina era, and Stravinsky, many of whose ballets such as Petroushka, Les Noces, etc. are often given at concerts for their purely musical value. Fokine, one of the great Diaghileff ballet masters, produced Les Sylphides after music by Chopin, and other classical composers represented were Handel and Schumann, whose Carnaval made an unforgettable ballet. Both Carnaval and Les Sylphides are in the repertoire of the Ballet Russe, and will be given during their Barcelona season. An evening with the Russian Ballet was always an education in modern music as well as a delight. Besides the above mentioned the audience was treated to Debussy (L'Apres Midi d'un Faun), Borodin (Prince Igor), Milhaud, Rieti, de Falla, Poulenc and Auric. On the famous first nights, with H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught in the stalls, as well as H.G. Wells, Bernard Shaw and other literary and stage stars, the Sitwells looking very arty in a box, and the gallery a swaying mass of humanity, Stravinsky or Goosens would often be conducting.

Diaghileff's Gift

Serge Diaghileff's great legacy to the art of dancing was that, due to his complete indifference to the female members of his company, he was able to devote his attention to the artistic development of the male dancer. Up till the time of the Russian Ballet, the male dancer had been doomed to supporting and lifting the ballerina through her difficult variations, with an occasional solo of jumps and pirouettes «en air,» or a bit of «mime» which consisted of very pointed and crude gesturing. In the modern Diaghileff ballets, the chief parts were nearly all in the hands of the male dancers, and were worked on entirely new lines. Anton Dolin, Serge Lifar, Georges Balanchine and Leonide Massine were some of the young men who benefited by this new division of roles.

Anton Dolin has his own ballet now, and has become an idol of the English stage. Serge Lifar is ballet master and first soloist at the Paris Opera. His ballets reflect Russian Ballet atmosphere. Balanchine and Massine carried on as ultra-modern choreographers, and the latter is a member of the Ballet Russe company, producing and dancing in it.

When Serge Diaghileff died, and shortly after him Anna Pavlova, the art of dancing suffered a most severe setback. Anna Pavlova was an irreparable loss to the dancing world. There were various attempts made to revive the Russian Ballet, which were doomed to failure due to the differences among the greater member of the company. Only the firm hand of Diaghileff had been able to keep in hand these artists with their varied ambitions and difficult moods.

Noble Patrons'

Very few people realized that the Serge Diaghileff Russian Ballet was under the patronage not only of H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, but also of the Prince of Monaco, and it was in Monte Carlo that the Ballet rested and worked up new repertoires. It was to Monte Carlo that soon most of the members of the company found their way again, and here Basil was finally able to reorganize the entire company, and start them on tour again with much of the old repertoire and some new ballets.

Of the old company will be seen Danilova,

Woizikowsky and Massine. Many of the soloists have been recruited from the younger stars of Egorova's famous school in Paris, by which Basil is bearing at the District of the soloists. is keeping up the Diaghileff tradition of giving the young ambitious band of working dancers a chance. Algeranoff, Anna Pavlova's first character dancer, a young English boy, is also in the cast, and one can once more revel in the arts of dancing, painting and music, all embodied in one great theatrical enterprise the Ballet Brown in the cast, and one terprise, the Ballet Russe of Monte Carlo.

Cinemas

COLISEUM—Night After Night (Noche tras Noche) in English (Mae West still asks people to see her «some time») tomorrow: Guilty As Hell (Todo Lo Condena) in English (it's called a dramatic comedy; a gangster film with a funny touch).

URQUINAONA-Dancing Lady (Alma de Bailarina) in English (we keep on telling our readers that the film is on, but all the while M.G.M. spite us by keeping on Greta Garbo in Queen Cristina. It's now the fourth week and after one nobody went. What's the joke?)

FANTASIO—Ne Soyez Pas Jalouse (No Seas Celosa) in French. (With Carmen Boni and André Roanne. We saw some pictures in the lobby of the theatre which showed a generous display of ladies underwear).

FEMINA—Melodie der Liebe (Centinela de Amor) in German. (Richard Tauber, the idol of German flappers, will sing himself into your heart, if into anybody's)

TIVOLI-By Candlelight (A la Luz del Candelabro) in English. (We spoke more at large about this film last week) Wednesday: Footlight Parade (Desfile de Candilejas) in English. (See cinema page).

CAPITOL-Fluechtlinge (Fugitivos) in German. (It is not about Fluechtlinge who came to Spain, but deals with the Chinese - Japanese war).

CATALUÑA—Dos Mujeres y Un Don Juan in Spanish. (We were right in being sceptical. José Buch, the director, has a nerve to show us such rubbish). Tomorrow: Les Voix Sans Visage (Papa) in French.

KURSAAL—Pas de Femmes (Elixir de Amor) in French. (To make up the programme) and Reifende Jugend (La Segunda Juventud) in German. (The latest effort - and a good one of Hertha Thiele of Maedchen in Uniform fame). Tomorrow: La Chienne in French and Kriss explained in Spanish. (The latter is a picture about native life in Inner-Africa. In the afternoons, also Cabin in the Cotton in English. METROPOL—The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi (La Novia Universitaria) in English. (A picture about University Life in the United States).

ACTUALIDADES—News reels and reportages. PUBLI-News reels and reportages.

Reprises

PATHE PALACE-Ladies Must Love (Mujeres de Postin) in English. (A musical show with a lot of girls and corresponding legs) tomorrow: La Cruz y la Espada in Spanish (With José Mójica).

EXCELSIOR—Same programme as Pathé Palace.

AVENIDA—Tonight is Ours (Reina el Amor) doub-led in Spanish, and Un Fils en Amérique (Un Hijo en America) in French (comedy with Albert Préjean and Anabella).

RAMBLAS-Doña Francisquita in Spanish.

VOLGA-Doña Francisquita in Spanish.

GOYA—What No Beer? (Queremos Cerveza) in English (with Buster Keaton and Jimmy Durante «Schnozzle») and The Power and the Glory doubled in Spanish.

PARIS-Madison Square Garden in English and The Devil and the Deep (Entre la Espada y la Pared in English.

Amusements

Football — This afternoon at Montjuich Stadium: Spanish Cup Final between F.C. Madrid and

F.C. Valencia.

Bullfight—This afternoon at Las Arenas bullring at 4:30, six novillos of Villagodio for Charlot's Chispas (Funny bullfight).

Concert-Don Cossacks under Serge Jaroff at the Palau de la Musica Catalana on Thursday

Dancing—Tomorrow night and Wednesday after-noon at the Teatro Barcelona: Antonia Mercé «Argentina». Juanito el Dorado and Casa Manquet—Saturday nights: Flamenco singing (cante jondo) and dancing.

Fronton Novedades—The Spanish Ball Game pe-lota vasca or jai alai (pala variety played with a bat), daily at 4:15 and 10:15 p.m.

Dick Powell and Ruby Keeler in Footlight Parade (Warner Bros)

The New Barcelona Films

Lloyd Bacon, who directed 42nd Street, has now produced a new screen show for Warner Bros, which is said far to surpass its predecessor in originality and the beauty of its ensembles, in its hilarious comedy plot, its songs and its romantic love scenes. It is Footlight Parade, and will come to the Tivoli on Wednesday. The story is one of back stage life, but entirely different from anything before screened. It deals with a young musical comedy director who loses his job when talking pictures supplant ordinary movies. There is a well knit plot with some extremely funny situations. Two teams of lovers, James Cagney and Joan Blondell, and Dick Powell and Ruby Keeler, furnish plenty of remance with Claire Dodd and Banda With romance with Claire Dodd and Renée Whitney as the gold digging, dangerous damsels. A quartette of famous comedians furnish a large part of the hilarity. They are Frank McHugh as the dance director, Guy Kibbee, as the theatrical magnate, Ruth Donnelly as his wife and Hugh Herbert the company's milksop censor. Two of the big surprises in this picture are the singing and dancing of Cagney, who started his career as a hoofer. Four great musical numbers, which he states surpass anything he has yet done, are staged by Busby Berkeley who created and staged the ensembles for both 42nd Street and Gold Diggers of 1933. They include a unique cat number in which scores of beautiful girls and chorus boys dressed in feline costumes frolic in the moonlight and make love on the backyard fence. The scene by a waterfall is a gorgeous spectacle in which more than a hundred swimming girls take part. This scene takes place in a large swimming pool with shots taken from beneath the water. The Honeymoon Hotel and Shanghai Lil numbers are equally effective. The catchy songs in Footlight Parade were written by Warren and Dubin (Honeymoon Hotel, Shanghai Lil) and Fain and Kahal (By a Waterfall, Sittin' on a Backyard Fence, Ah, the Moon is Here). Everybody who has seen the film, will be humming these songs for months and drive the whole family mad by not being able to keep them out of his mind.

May Day in Barcelona

The first of May usually evokes reminiscences of revolutionary manifestations, of the swinging of huge red flags and posters, of shouting and singing by menacing crowds. In some countries this way of celebrating the day is still customary. In Paris, for instance, the communists erected barricades in a district called Jean d'Arc this week, and succeeded in defending it against the police for a whole day. In Germany the firm hand of the Nazis organised the fiesta in a new fashion with swastikas instead of the traditional sickle and hammer. But in Barcelona it was a day of peace without any mass meetings or speeches or revolutionary spirit. Since the country became a republic the day has almost become a religious fiesta in honour of Santo Tra-

The life of the large city stopped for a day, the streets were deserted, not only the shops but also the restaurants and bars were closed, no trams, no buses no taxis were on the streets, and the few people who were abroad seemed to be lost in this solitude, to have no destination. The railway trains were the only means of transport that made an exception from the general holiday, and they had a busier day than ever. Already in the early morning Barcelonians got ready for a day in the country. They stormed the trains to the coast, to the surrounding hills, to Montserrat, so that by midday Barcelona was drained of its population. The most popular places for all day picnics are the slopes of the Tibidabo and other hills of the range of mountains which surround the town on three sides.

Though these outings are called excursions, walking plays a minor part in the schedule of such a day. Most important is the meal, then come games, dances and songs, but physical exercise consisting in marching mile after mile is not considered necessary. Sometimes a hundred yards are found quite sufficient a distance to march, so that around the stations the conglomeration of people was something extraordinary on Tuesday.

The only discord in the day's general happiness was the nasty accident which usually accompanies a big holiday like a dark shadow. A train which came round a bend surprised a large party of holiday-makora and a surprised a iday-makers on a narrow bridge and, unable to stop, killed three, wounded about a dozen people; some of them received their injuries when they jumped from the bridge.

About Barcelona

On Thursday Rev. C.H.D. Grimes will hold an at home at the Villa Maria del Carmen beginning at 4 o'clock, when the Rev. Rainey of the British and Foreign Bible Society will speak on «The Sale of the Bible throughout the World». Afterwards there will be tea in the garden. On Sunday next Rev. Rainey will preach at St. George's Church.

Mrs. Latta who gave birth to a son on April 13th is making rather slow progress towards recovery.

The Empire Day sports will take place on Saturday May 20th at San Cugat as usual. In past years Mr. Loveday used to be responsible for the organisation of the event, but as he has now left Barcelona, Mr. Freddy Witty has been asked to take his place. Mrs. Moles and Mrs. Strang will look after the refreshments. In previous years Mrs. Leman was always very helpful with this work.

On Sunday last a golf match between the San Cugat Golf Club and the Pedralbes Golf Club was played on the links of the latter. In the singles each club scored four points, but in the foursomes Pedralbes scored 31/2 while San Cugat got only 1/2, so that Pedralbes was leading on the day's play by 3 points. The return match was to take place on Tuesday May 1st, but on account of the very heavy rain it was postponed until today. It will take place on the links of the San Cugat Golf Club.

The annual Chamber of Commerce luncheon will take place tomorrow at the Ritz Hotel. Mr. Alexander Adams, Commercial Counsellor at the British Embassy in Madrid, arrived on Friday to be present at the occasion and there is a rumour that the Ambassador, Sir George Graham, will also be present.

Mr. and Mrs. Dudley A.C. Bennett who got married on Saturday last in London, are spending their honeymoon on a motoring trip through Spain. They arrived in Barcelona on Tuesday night and were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. L.P. Warner until this morning when they left for the north coast of Spain. Mr. Bennet used to be Mr. Warner's assistant in the Barcelona branch of the Dunlop Rubber Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Hammond are expected these days in Barcelona and will stay a week with Mr. and Mrs. Warner before going to England on leave from East Africa. Mrs. Hammond (née Molly Sier) was for years at the English School and very popular with the Colony.

On Sunday May 13th a match between the Spanish National team and Sunderland F. C. will take place in Bilbao.

Though in Spain the Cup Final is not such a national affair as it is in England, it is assured that today's match between the Madrid F.C. and the F.C. Valencia will be a great event. The match will take place at the Montjuich Stadium and special trains will bring fans from all over the country to Barcelona. The odds are five to one in favour of Madrid.

Madrid Report

The First of May Gored in the Ring

May Day passed off in the capital without any disturbing incidents, in fact with the cessation of traffic, the streets became a children's playground. Their shouts and cries could be heard everywhere, and roller skates, hockey sticks and balls, footballs and rackets appeared as if by magic.

For the fiesta, Gipsies came in from the country, with their tambourines, drums, monkeys and performing goats. Card parties took place on the pavements, the players squatting like Moors, with the inevitable *bota* of wine beside them.

This May Day scene in Madrid is probably one of the most curious in Europe. A city of nearly a million inhabitants was paralysed so effectively, that there seemed no raison d'etre for all the paraphernalia of modern city life — tramways, omnibuses, newspaper booths, shops, cafes and cinemas. Even the police might have been given a holiday, so orderly were the crowds.

«The new Cabinet won't last longer than a pudding in a school yard,» predicts the Conservative newspaper Luz. Conspicuous absentees from the new Ministry are Don Alejandro Lerroux, the retiring premier, and Don Salvador de Madariaga, famous diplomat and writer. Little optimism is displayed over the prospects of the new Government.

Application of the new Amnesty law, recently passed by the Cortes, is proceeding rather slowly. However, the soldiers who took part in the revolt of August 10th 1932, together with Generals Sanjurjo, Cavalcanti, Fernandez Pérez and others, were set at liberty at the same time as their chiefs.

Nicanor Villalta, the valiant Aragonese Matador de Toros, received a terrible horn wound in the stomach at last Sunday's corrida. He is doing as well as can be expected. It is wonderful the power of recovery of toreros from deep and septic wounds. Count Palugay, who was an interested spectator of the bullfight, told your correspondent that a sword wound even in a vital spot, is far less dangerous than a cornada, which makes a terrible hole, and requires special knowledge on the part of the surgeons in order to effect a cure.

Among recent arrivals in Madrid are Mr. James P. Cruikshank and family, of Cincinnati, Ohio. In his younger days, Mr. Cruikshank used to be a great traveller and explorer in Central Africa. He has shot white rhinoceros on the upper reaches of the Nile, and is the author of a monograph on the habits of the gorilla. Mr. Cruikshank believes that Malaria is not caused by the bite of the mosquito, but is due to a congested state of the blood. He asserts that he has cured himself in twenty four hours of severe attacks of fever simply by taking large doses of castor oil.

We hear that Lord Fitzgibbon, the well-known cattle breeder, is staying in Madrid for a few days. He has the intention of purchasing several Miura bulls, with which to infuse new blood into his herd.

Dancing at the Principal

A delightful evening should be spent by all those who go to the Teatro Principal tomorrow night at 9.30., when Miss Nadine Lang, and thirtythree of her pupils, will give a dancing programme in aid of the hospital. Miss Lang is a dancer of repute, and she has the gift of imparting her art to her pupils. Among the more interesting numbers on the programme is a Pavane pour une infante défunte, by Ravel, danced by little Spanish girls; A gymnastic exhibition to music of Schubert's, done by a group whose spirited leader is a little girl of six; Typical Mallorquin Dances, by Señorita Flora Riera, a lady wellt known in Palma society, and Señor Jose Humber-Moya, the best dancer in Mallorca; also a charming valse number, with Señor Mas Porcel at the piano, done by four little girls of different nationalities, and Miss Lang herself.

Nobody should miss this unusual and attractive programme, especially as all the proceeds are for such a good cause.

One day last week suddenly and without warning, somewhat like an attack of the Measles, the Puerto was completely covered with sailors and officers, and officers and sailors. There was no forgetting that the Spanish Navy had four ships sitting out in the bay. Notwithstanding the mob, there was no disorder, and only the most favourable impressions were created.

C'an Anet had a big dance for the officers, with real music from an honest-to-goodness band! The place was crowded, and as happens so seldom, there were at least four males to every female.

The Wallaces, the Hutchinsons, Mrs. Jacob and her daughter, Miss Howse Miss Wildner and Captain Bodell were invited to visit one of the ships, and had, according to the younger members, a «perfectly divine» time — Cocktails, dancing, and of course a tour of the ship with all its mysteries explained.

Two very charming guests have arrived at the Mar-i-Cel this week, Mr. and Mrs. J. Philip Lane from Boston, who are here on their honeymoon. Mrs. Lane, formerly Miss Eleanor Cook, was at the Puerto last year on a quest for folk-songs. She is considered the leading expert on folk-lore and songs in America, and has travelled extensively to collect her material first hand. We asked her if she were going to continue giving recitals when she returned home, to which she replied that she felt being Mrs. J. Philip Lane would take up most of her time — and Mr. J. Philip Lane beamed! They are keen about the Port, and have already procured bicycles, pyjamas, native shoes - and of course, the inevitable big straw basket.

Colonel and Mrs. Hey and Miss Dorothy Dennis left this week after a stay of over nine months at the Mar-i-Cel, returning to England, but promising to come back next year, if possible.

PERSONAL INTEREST

Although in Mallorca, as in the rest of Spain, a State of Alarm had been declared as a precaution against possible demonstrations, May 1st, Labour Day, passed off quite peacefully and happily in Palma. The only «demonstration» was the very cheerful one of the town's annual exodus to the country, or as nearly country as one could reach without the aid of trams and buses. All the main roads leading from the city were one seething mass of burdened humanity bearing loaded baskets and bags containing the wherewithal for the preparation of the enormous feed, which is the average Mallorquin's idea of a picnic.

Mr. Francis, who recently received a letter of thanks from the Alcalde of Palma in appreciation of articles he has published in America in favour of Mallorca, left Palma on Friday's Export boat with Mrs. Francis.

The Rev. J. de B, Forbes left Palma on Saturday, so there will be no more services in the English church until next autumn. Donations for the new premises can be sent to the Hon. Mrs. Hill-garth, c/o British Vice-Consulate, calle Morey 24, Palma.

Friends of Mrs. Richards of Bonanova will be glad to hear that she is making good progress after her recent illness. Mr. Peter Richards, her son, was one of the few lucky people to succeed in procuring a taxi down to the Barcelona boat when he left Palma last Tuesday night.

A new and modern gentlemen's outfitters, Casa London, is opening during the week in the calle San Nicolás, nearly opposite the church. They will specialize in well cut shirts of the latest designs, sweaters, hosiery, etc., and will have a large selection of bathing suits and caps for men and

The Championship of Mallorca will be disputed in the open tournement which starts at the Tennis Club in Son Alegre on Tuesday May 15th. There should be some interesting matches to watch as the standard of play in the club as gone up considerably since last year.

The Yacht Saoirse was in Palma on Wednesday. On board were Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien, who have been living for some time in Ibiza, and Mr. Jordan. Mr. O'Brien is an adventurous yachtsman, and has been round the world, including the passage of Cape Horn. Once when in New Zealand, he started off for the Tonga Islands with a scratch crew from Auckland. The crew went mad, and he had to hire Tonga boys to get back to New Zealand. One of the boys accompanied him to England.

Just now he is bound for Crete and Santorin by way of Malta.

Over fifty people left Palma on the Watussi last Sunday. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Ballantyne, two of Palma's most faithful winter residents who have been coming to the island for the last six years and who have been staying at the Hotel Alfonso; Mrs. R.C. Walker of La Portassa, former president of the Society of Arts, and her sister Miss M.R. Wilson; Mr. and Miss Gibson; Lady Mercer; Mr. and Mrs. Davidson; Mr. and Mrs. Boyle; Miss Cooper and Mr. L Wolf the Dutch architect and his wife. The departure of the steamer was delayed over three hours owing to the tragic discovery at the last call-over that a missing member of the crew had hung himself.

Strict police regulations played havoc with a romance last week when, on the eve of his wedding to a little Mallorquin dressmaker, a young Italian interpreter was informed that his papers were not in order and that he must leave forthwith for Barcelona. The little dressmaker followed him a few days later and the marriage took place over there. The couple are still waiting for the necessary official consent before returning to Palma and their respective posts.

If you should want to charter a yacht for a three month's cruise or hire a rowboat to take the girl friend out for a spin, the old mariner Captain J.A.V. Cook is the man to consult. You will find him in the office of Estela Estela on the corner near the mole. He is looking for recruits now to help bring a boat here from La Coruña which should be a wonderful trip.

Besides being a national fiesta, last Tuesday was the nineteenth wedding aniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Dorr E. Newton. They invited about twenty guests to their home, Son Vich, to share a marvellous luncheon after which deck tennis and all sorts of games were played. The Newtons leave on the Magallanes of the Spanish Line on the 17th for the United States where they will attend their son's graduation from St. Marks. They expect to bring him back here with them for the summer.

The Spring Festival at the Mallorca Junior Club last Saturday was such a success that the entertainment was given over again on Wednesday afternoon. Songs and dances from many different nations, in corresponding costume, made up the attractive programme and carried out the international spirit and character of the club. Little Renate Klepper, daughter of Herr Klepper, Prussian Minister of the Interior in the Social Democrat Cabinet which was ejected by Von Papen two summers ago, was an outstanding figure and showed great talent in her dancing.

Baleares in Photography

One of Palma's most pleasing attractions for this week is the exhibition of photographs, taken by Mr. Francis D. Steen, at the Salon Mateu in the Calle Pelaires. The exhibition, which was opened last Thursday by the Alcalde, Don Emilio Darder, and Sra. Darder, is made up of views taken in the three main islands of the Baleares group, Mallorca, Ibiza and Menorca and a few of the typically Moorish town of Fez, Morocco. Mr. Erwin Hubert, the Austrian painter whose pictures of Mallorca are so well known, was an interested visitor on the opening afternoon and was particularly impressed by Mr. Steen's gift of composition. Other artists have also shown keen interest in the exhibition for this same reason.

The photographs which excited special comment were No. 10 on the catalogue, a cleverly taken view of Sta. Eulalia, Ibiza, showing the only river on the island; No, 22, an original view of Palma Cathedral taken from the Borne; No. 37, Sunset near Palma, which was awarded a certificate in a London Exhibition last month; and No. 60, Calle de Ciudadela, a study in curves and shadows. The Salon Mateu made a particularly attractive setting for a small exhibition of this kind.

Mr. Steen has exhibited in London and in Brussels and many of his photographs have been reproduced in the London weekly press.
