DANZIG ELECTIONS MOVE ENGLAND'S AR OF TROUBLE

of Doctor Rauschnig, Danzig Senate Head,
removes England's Fears
from Nazi Victory.

London, Wednesday—It is reported here that the conciliatory sentiment of Doctor Rauschnig, National Socialist president of the Danzig Free City senate, removed fears in England that Nazi's sweeping victory in Danzig might involve international complications.

Rauschnig's assurance that his party would respect the rights of minorities has made an excellent impression, but despite that in some places here that the Danzig senate will hold about the position as one of the go-betweens or Statthalter, appointed by Chancellor Hitler; and that through the Treaty of Versailles Danzig's independence from Poland has remained theoretical.

the rule of the National Socialist government will in reality be purely theoretical.

Children Of Foreign Colony Invited To Social Club Opening

The Mallorca Junior Club, a social club for young people of the foreign colony: American, English, French, German and Spanish, will open Thursday in its attractive quarters at 37 Calle Abril 14, (entrance gate Short's Tea Room).

All children are invited to this first meeting at 3 p. m. to-day, when a committee will it is hoped, be formed mainly of young people for the purpose of assisting in the club's affairs.

The large room offers plenty of space for assemblies and dancing, and the library and workshop, to say nothing of the kitchen, will provide a youth-centered environment for the many interests and activities of children. It is planned to give one afternoon each week to the more particular character of each nation represented—assistance in language to be included with young people as hosts and hostesses.

Membership to the club is to be by election but will be entirely free; as is the use of the reading and club rooms generally.

BINGHAM ASKS FOR U. S.-ENGLISH UNION AGAINST WAR FEAR

U. S. Ambassador To England
Calls For Anglo-American
Co-operation In Solving World Difficulties.

LONDON, Wednesday—A powerful call for Anglo-American co-operation in solving world difficulties and in banishing the widespread fear of war from the face of the earth was voiced by Robert Bingham, U. S. Ambassador to England, at the annual Pilgrims Club dinner.

«In this greatest crisis of human history,» Ambassador Bingham said, «I believe the world's foundation for hope lies in the wholehearted and concerted action of Great Britain, the British Commonwealth and the United States in safeguarding world peace.

«This is no time for bargaining between nations or for seeking for any form of advantage one over the other. I don't believe that two such nations as the United States and Great Britain, with the traditions that they have, can fall themselves and mankind in such a grave emergency as this.

«I am given reason to hope for improvement by the facts that at last America is prepared to lower its high tariff barriers so international trade can move again, and that President Roosevelt's pledge to support world action against an aggressor nation has gained the loyal and enthusiastic backing of congress and the people to a degree unequalled in American history since the time of George Washington.»

Final Performance Of Chopin Festival To Begin Saturday

Mr. Juan Thomas will bring to the music lovers of Mallorca the concluding half of the Chopin Festival program on Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday evenings.

The world famous Madrid Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Señor Arbos; the noted American concert pianist George Copeland, and the renowned Capella Classica de Mallorca will pay the last tribute of 1933 to the great Chopin.

The first concert will be rendered in entirety by the Madrid Symphony Orchestra and will include selections from Haydn, Bach-Hubay, Moussorgsky, Richard Wagner and Manuel De Falla, the famous Spanish composer.

The second concert on Sunday will include selections from Debussy, Ravel, Hindemith, Brahms, Oscar Espla, Albeniz-Arbos, with a closing one by Manuel De Falla.

On Monday night the orchestra will share with George Copeland, who will render numbers from

ROME AMBASSADOR PRESUMABLY WILL SIGN ON THURSDAY

Strong Opposition To Pact
Still Exists In French
Parliamentary Circles; Say Pact Is Supplement To Locarno One.

PARIS, Wednesday—As a result of a French cabinet meeting which was held in the president's palace on the Champs Elysee to subject the text of the four-power peace pact to a final examination, it is concluded that the French Ambassador to Rome, Henri de Jouvenel will, presumably on Thursday, receive the necessary instructions which will enable him to sign the pact on behalf of the French government.

However it is very probable that the cabinet's ratification of the instructions will not take place for some time yet because of the strong opposition to the pact in several parties of French parliamentary circles.

Semi-official comments have been made about the four-power pact which described it as a kind of supplement to the Locarno pact, which guaranteed peace on the

Boys Will Wear Military Capes, Not For Looks, But To Combat Gas Attacks

By United Press
KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Small military capes probably will be in vogue during the next year, but they will have a far different purpose than to improve the appearance of troops.

Col. A. Gibson of Fort Leavenworth explained the purpose of the capes in a speech here under the auspices of the local chapter of the Reserve Officers Association. They are to be used as protection against poison gas.

«The capes will be sprayed from fast-moving airplanes in the next few days,» Gibson said. «It will be gas instead of vapor and the drops will be large enough to soak into clothing.

«A small cape impervious to gas drops has been devised for infantrymen. The capes, however, will have to be discarded after being subjected to the gas spray. Soldiers will have to carry several capes.»

Gibson said gas was more humane than machine guns and high explosives, adding «it knocks men out without killing them.»

«He said he hoped to live to see the day when evacuation of towns could be forced by use of harmless vapors such as tear gas.

Trio Of Advanced Students Are Awarded Fellowships To Begin Long Research Work

By United Press
SAN MARINO, Cal.—Three advanced students engaged in specialized research have been brought to the Henry E. Huntington library by means of international research fellowships, according to Dr. Max Farrand, director of research.

The three are Dr. Sanford V. Larkey, assistant professor of the history of medicine at the University of California; Dr. W. Lee Ustick, recently associate professor of English at Goucher College, and more lately doing independent research work at Harvard University, and Francis R. Johnson,

Old Latin Quarter Given New Impetus By Young Germans

By SAMUEL DASHIELL

PARIS—The Latin Quarter of Paris, one of the last refuges in this mechanically muddled age for the free and liberal spirits of all nations, recently has been enlivened by a new exodus from Germany.

The cries of Hitler grated on the ears of the young Bohemians of Berlin; the strict regime of the Nazis disturbed the pleasant med-

Director Our Gang Movie Comedies Gives The Lowdown On His Child-Players Group

People never really grow up. They just get a little wiser,» said Robert McGowan, who has directed the Our Gang comedies ever since the beginning of that series of popular short features, and who left for London to join Hal Roach who is already there.

People don't use sense until they are over thirty-five,» he said. But his kindly smile and the patient expression of his weather-beaten face bely this criticism of the human race.

McGowan has had to be patient and kind to carry on with the successive groups of child players who have appeared in the Our Gang comedies.

Perhaps no director in Hollywood has attained greater success in a specialised field than McGowan, who is now in his eleventh season with the Our Gang youngsters. Not long ago McGowan directed his 125th Our Gang comedy, which have all been produced by Hal Roach. For the past seven years they have all been released by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Obviously the personnel of Our Gang has changed many times during the course of the years. New discoveries have been made, new three or four year old aspirants for stardom have come to fill the shoes of veterans of ten or eleven. In all these years McGowan has not only proved himself a capable director but has also maintained the confidence and affection of all the youngsters with whom he comes in contact.

«All these little kiddies are a bunch of young barbarians,» he said, and then went on to tell of BERKELEY, Cal.,—Increasing use of Esperanto as the language of exchanging international thought eventually will lead to its general usage throughout the world, Fred L. Warff, Berkeley Esperanto expert, believes.

During the past month Warff has demonstrated the facility of the language in overcoming the barriers of foreign languages. Warff received letters and documents from six different European countries, all written in Esperanto.

Most interesting of the exhibits assembled in the short period by

PLAIN FIGURES

This is not a fashion article. It is a reaction from a plaint made by a Britisher the other day.
They don't Palma trades people
plain figures.

As a retired business man
from London, England who landed in Palma two months ago, fell in love with the Island and intends to stay down here permanently.

Our readers may remember,
I have referred to this topic on many occasions. We do not apologize for bringing it up once again as it is obviously of importance both to local traders and to the foreign colony.

A study of psychology plays a large part in successful business everywhere. A portion of the globe. When you are selling real estate in London, fish and chips in London, groceries in Glasgow (when Jimmy Lipton started) your anxiety is to create goodwill with your clients and yourself.
The quickest way to do this is to create uncertainty and convinced and sundry that you are giving a square deal.

As a trader you are dealing constantly with foreigners,
the importance of marking up in plain figures becomes self-evident. Strangers in strange land are naturally suspicious and tend to credit the native with an inherent desire to «do» them.
They gravitate, naturally, to the shops whose proprietors are independent enough to announce their prices in such a way as to be reasonably understood. Many Palma shopkeepers realize this and, in consequence, grab a large slice of «extra» custom.

In many parts of France and in other trades, there is a law demanding publication of price lists.
Especially so in the cafe
business. What a pity a similar law is not enforced here.

Everybody knows that prices
vary in different cafes in accordance with their class—in other words, you pay for your surroundings. Still, it is distinctly annoying to go into an insignificant
cafe, where they ask top prices simply because you are a stranger.

This is not a grouse about the

PARIS—Four crystal walls do not a prison make, nor silver bars
a cage, for any but the most exotic of birds with brilliant plumage to be used as the modern hostess' table decoration for the formal dinner. A very chateau-ish crystal cage—with wings and turrets and everything—is the last word in bird houses for decorative purposes.
In the center of the cage is a tall crystal tree in full bloom with tiny pink crystal peach blossoms, while perched in the top, pecking in vain a lifelike green crystal leaf, sits a gorgeous green-gold parakeet! He drinks his water out of carved silver goblets and pecks his particular seed from an elegantly etched silver basket. He has a silver swing, and silver corners hold his crystal cake together.

AND that's not all. Around the cage, poised in the most amusing manner, is a whole family of crystal and silver cats looking enviously at the handsome bird in his crystal palace. One is crouched, ready to spring; one is on his hind legs with his front paws against the side of the cage; another is whispering about the affair to a neighbor, while a fourth seems to realize the uselessness of getting all disturbed about the matter—he reclines rather resignedly on the sheer, lovely damask of the white satin tablecloth.

WE'VE talked about the bookends that also are vases, lamps that hold flowers and shed perfume with their light. Now comes the new vegetable dish with a rim around the edge wide enough to hold water and short-stemmed posies that blend or contrast artistically with the spinach, cauliflower, turnips or carrots being served at the moment.
The new salad bowl has a vase trick that is rather neat in that it is shaped, in shimmering china, like four leaves of lettuce, with a small lake in the center on which floats a real waterlily used for strawberries in summer, or heaped high with mousse or ice cream.

INDIVIDUAL prints are becoming more and more popular—and by that we mean frocks that are printed with some personal design such as your own country estate up in Maine or down on the French Riviera, or with dozens of your favorite Scottie, wolfhound or great dane. If you're a golf or tennis champion, or a would-be champion, there are prints of golf clubs, tennis rackets and nets—to say nothing of a range of swimming prints, hockey and ski scenes, and others showing journeys over land and water, featuring trains, automobiles, boats and airplanes.

If YOUR friends are having new babies, be sure and give them one of those little half dresses that are such a joy to the mothers. As one told me recently, «The top half of the baby is the only part that commits, from the visitor's point of view, and that little half dress you sent me makes it possible for me to have Susie ready in a jiffy to receive callers—I just slip it right on over her other things and she looks as sweet and dressed up as though I'd spent all day grooming her!»

Cupid May Bring Britain Another Net Star

By ROBERT C. DOWSON
United Press Staff Correspondent

LONDON—Cupid may be responsible for Britain gaining a woman lawn tennis star at the expense of France.

This presentation, adding one more to Britain's list of net queens, is made possible following the recent marriage of Mlle. Doris Metaxa, dainty French star and Wimbledon favorite, to Peter Howard, stalwart captain of the British rugby football team.

If Mrs. Howard wishes to remain a French player she must,
according to the rules, declare her desire within six months of her marriage.

The majority of business people in Palma, quite the contrary. There are many houses who have built up worthwhile business by crediting the foreigners in their midst
with intelligence and discrimination.

It is to the small minority that we appeal and we hope the Chamber of Commerce or equivalent organisation will take the matter up and bring them into line.

Should she fail to make her declaration she will, as far as the British Lawn Tennis Association is concerned, be regarded as a British player and automatically will become eligible to play for Britain in international matches
including the all-important Wight man Cup contest, between Britain and the United States.

Mrs. Howard's six months grace expires about the end of May and hundreds of her British admirers
sincerely are hoping that she will decide to take her husband's nationality on the courts for, in addition to strengthening considerably the British women's international teams, she will be a great asset to the country's galaxy of pretty sportswomen.

As Mlle. Metaxa, Mrs. Howard was twice junior champion of France and represented her country in international matches. In 1931, partnered by her Belgian friend, Mlle. Josane Sigart, she reached the final of the women's double at Wimbledon and last year the pair won the final from the Californians Elizabeth Ryan and Helen Jacobs by 6-4 6-3.
Mrs. Howard is 21.

Rhine river, while the four-power pact makes a similar guarantee for the eastern frontiers.

This conclusion was drawn, it is said, from the fact that Germany, with the signing of the pact, could not undertake a thing for the next 10 years without the consent of France, Italy and England.

The other countries' main objection to the pact is that France's signing of the pact will cause it to renounce none of its rights, yet in doing so it will obtain new protective guarantees.

Gluck, Scarlatti, Debussy, Nin Infante and Lecuona. The orchestra has chosen Beethoven, Stravinsky, Bacarisse and Rimski-Korsakoff selections.

The concluding concert on Tuesday evening will bring the Cappella Classica de Mallorca to the audience with a Manuel De Falla composition. The orchestra will open the program with selections from Bach, followed by Beethoven and Richard Strauss numbers. The closing group and grand finale of the 1933 Chopin Festival will be from Albeniz and Richard Wagner.

The performances will begin at 9:30 p. m. each night and tickets for the complete concert or individual ones are on sale at the Teatro Principal.

Lottery Players, This Is What Happens When Your Little Ticket Wins Or Loses

By EL SANDALIO

To both those who have won or lost in Spanish lotteries, it may be interesting to know just how the lucky numbers are drawn.

In a small room in the National Mint in Madrid, not far from the Prado Museum, the soul of Spain is located on drawing days, especially if it be for one of the several grand lotteries held each year.

The dark little room holds but 200 spectators, mostly nervous ticket holders who have invested their all or nearly their all in a ticket. In addition to them there are several dozen newspapermen with their runners to rush the major winners to their papers to be flashed over the country. Some tally clerks, the assistant and chief director, and a dozen very important boys from an orphanage comprise the rest of those present.

A stage, occupying half the room holds a battery of brackets with 500 numbered balls on each bracket, 55,000 balls in all, each carrying a number to correspond to a ticket. At about nine o'clock in the morning, at the ring of a bell, all the balls are dumped into a vat and mechanically mixed. After ten minutes of mixing, that vat is ready.

Then additional racks, much fewer in number but marked with the amounts of the prizes being given out that day, are hung, and these dumped into another vat and mechanically mixed. At no time during the procedure of mixing are either of the two classes of balls touched by human hands.

When both vats are ready, the orphan boys step up on the stage. In turn, the boys stand near the small door in each vat through which a single ball at a time is released. One calls out the number, the other the prizes it gets. For a long time the prizes are small, a few thousand pesetas, fifty thousand, seventy-five thousand. Then, perhaps, the boy calling out the prizes hesitates, gulps, and fairly screams. «Fourteen million pesetas!»

That, however, isn't the end. The grand prize has merely come along with the others. There are thousands of numbers to be drawn, and it isn't all over until later in the day.

Rarely does a member of the actual audience or of the packed crowd outside the Mint yell out and dance with joy at having won a big prize. Mostly they wait, fingering their tickets with damp hands, and then, when all hope is lost, they mutter and tear up their ticket. Never again until the next time.

Elsewhere the Nazi victory in Danzig was called an event of international importance because it was the first definite expression of a wish by a preeminently German community outside the frontiers of the Reich for inclusion in the Reich.

It is thought that Hitler will doubtless instruct Doctor Raushnning to continue the administration of the free city as heretofore and above all not to make any difficulties with the Poles living in its territories.

The relationship between the Danzigers and the Poles will be difficult enough as it is just outside of Danzig the Poles are constructing a new harbor to compete with the one in the free city.

Parental Influence Bad, Doctor Says

By United Press

MILWAUKEE—Children must break away from parent influences if they are to develop into a normal adulthood, Dr. George K. Pratt, of the Milwaukee Mental Hygiene Council, believes.

«In order to grow to emotional adulthood, an individual must break away from dependency on his parents,» said Dr. Pratt. «That is one of the bad results of the depression upon youth—although he is eager to live his own life, he is deprived of the chance because of the lack of a job.

«The thousands of wandering youths of today, unwilling to add to the burdens of home, have indicated a rebellion against having a psychological monkey wrench thrown into their mental development. But bad as is the condition of these wanderers, the jobless adolescents at home are in still more danger of losing their mental morale.»

Eva Tay Presents Modern Dances At Mallorcan's Fiesta

Several Foreign Colonists accompanied Eva Tay, exponent and instructor of expressionist dancing, to the country house of Senor Sebastian Sabater Mayol Sunday night, where they not only were privileged to attend a typical Mallorcan fiesta, but also to witness two of Miss Tay's dances.

The fiesta took place in the patio of Senor Mayol's home, which is located on the Pont Inca road. The entertainment was informal. A buffet supper with accompanying drinks was served to the onlookers and the dancers, who twirled upon walks around the sides of the patio. Music, mostly of the American variety, was furnished by an orchestra. Green grape vines made a tracery between the heads of the dancers and the dark night sky.

Miss Tey was introduced by Herr Werner Schulz, who also spoke briefly on expressionist dancing. He said that this type of dancing had completely taken the place of the older, classical interpretive dancing along with the progressive march of all branches of modern arts. Expressionist dancing, he declared, was not only beautiful, but it was an expression of the soul.

Miss Tay was accompanied at the piano by Senor Jaime Roig, She maintains a studio in Palma, where she conducts her dancing classes.

Superstitions Balk Health Authorities

By United Press

EL PASO, Texas—Superstitions handed down by Mexican peons cause El Paso health authorities much worry.

Dr. L. T. Cox, assistant city health officer, found many mothers who wrapped sick children in cabbage leaves to drive away the illness.

Stomach-ache strings are common. Just a plain string tied about the waist is supposed to cure the ailment.

Those aren't as bad, Dr. Cox believes, as the superstitious ones who put broken eggs in saucers under beds of fever-stricken patients—especially after the egg has been there for nine days as was the case at one home visited.

New Fly Mortifier Electrocutes Pests

By United Press

LEIPZIG, Germany—The ancient problem of catching flies has been solved by electricity.

The method used for centuries has been to lure the fly with some bait, which catches and holds it, despite its struggles, until death. This ancient form of fly trap does not always catch its prey, and is unsanitary.

The new electrical fly catcher, which was shown in operation at the Fair, consists of a metal container. The trap is baited with some sweet-smelling substance covered by a wire screen, which is in turn charged with electricity. When the fly alights on the screen, it is electrocuted. The fly catcher can be plugged into any house circuit and is shockproof.

Dilatatory Train Clips Whole Two Hours Off Andalusia Trip

Prospective travellers by train through southern Spain may well jump with joy at the announcement that two hours have been clipped off the time for the trip through Andalusia. This may mean nothing, unless the trip has been taken or described, until experienced. One train a day each makes its usual way across the bad lands between Alicante and Granada. Formerly, from this end, the train left Alicante about seven o'clock in the morning and took 16 hours to arrive less than 250 miles to Granada. It changed engines half a dozen times and conductors even were often. At the provocation of the houses in a group it stopped for half an hour, with much more affectionate visits at towns. At times it visited for upwards of an hour. Occasionally the engineer stopped and stopped the train in the virtual desert to talk with a shepherd standing near the rocks. There was no diner on the train during any part of the trip, and the still isn't. Food is snatched from wayside stations during the stops. And such food! Cold meat sandwiches. Greasy sausages. Rotten apples. Now the train has been made into a virtual express, clipping two hours off the schedule, landing in Granada only half dead at six o'clock in the evening instead of almost completely dead at seven o'clock.

BARCELONA NEWS JOTTINGS

Sunday's bullfight was marked by a welcome change for the better in the quality of the cattle. The five bulls of Don Celso Cruz de Castillo, though it was difficult to get them to notice the horses, offered no serious difficulty to the footmen. The sixth, of Alipio Pérez Taberero, was tame, but without subtlety. El Estudiante had the misfortune to be caught by the third, not a serious injury, but enough to leave the rest of the program to La Serna and Solorzano. They did well, but not so well as the enemy deserved. La Serna, weak with the cloak, put up two excellent shows with the muleta, being awarded the ear of his first. The tame number six he treated with too much respect, and killed badly. Solorzano also removed an ear, and might have had a second if he had chosen. He tailed off to the extent that he was hissed for the way he finished the Estudiante's victor.

Sunday morning the Penya Rhin held the tenth motor hill trial on the Rabassada. A large crowd gathered to see a number of records set up. Among them were 4 min. 36.75 sec. or 63.744 km. per hour for sidecars, by A. Ramos (B. S. A.), 4 min. 45.69 sec. for touring cars up to 3,000 c. c. by F. Arderiu, (Lancia), and 3 min. 42.96 sec. or 87.22 km. per hour by E. Tort (Nacional Pescara), best time of the day for racing cars from 2,000 to 3,000 C. c. and for all categories. * * * At San Cugat Golf Club on Sunday, the competition under handicap against bogey was won by Mr. P. Soler who was 1 up. Mr. Batillo, who came next, was 2 down. The club championship will take place next weekend. Eighty people bearing all manner of victuals invaded the Noble home on Saturday and made merry all over the house and garden. The Nobles themselves did not seem to object. This was the first of a series of parties with which the «younger set» are diverting themselves. The Misses Parsons gave a party on Wednesday, and on Thursday came the turn of the «lodgers» at Alcoy 15. * * * Mr. C. O'Day left on Wednesday to try to catch the Rex. He will remain only a few days in New York before going to Caracas, Venezuela, as American consul. * * * Miss Diana Hatry has returned to England after spending a few months in Barcelona. * * * Mr. «Jock» Thompson left on Friday for a holiday among the haggis. * * * The Tshudys, much to the regret of many, have now been sent off to Honolulu and are not expected to return.

Women Are More Active Economically

By United Press
WASHINGTON—Women have begun to take a more and more important part in the economic life of the nation, according to the Department of Labor. The women's bureau of the department said, however, that in 1930 seven out of every nine wage earners were men, whereas in 1910 for every 100 women «wage earners» there were 373 men, in 1920 the ratio was 100 to 387 and in 1930, 100 to 354. Some of the occupations, in which women yet have to be employed, are boilermaker, puddler, structural iron worker, locomotive engineer, «soldier, sailor or marine» said the bureau. In 1930 they had a «toehold» in strikingly masculine occupations. For instance four women were mining engineers, 41 were factory machine oilers, 66 earned their living as airplane pilots, and 11 as veterinary surgeons. Twenty-one were inventors. «Women operators and laborees outnumbered men in 12 manufacturing industries in 1930,» said the bureau, listing these industries as silk mills, knitting mills, cigar and tobacco factories, and candy factories.

Birds And Aviators Engaged In Battle

By United Press
DETROIT—Birds and birdmen are waging a battle here for supremacy of the sky lanes near the City Airport. The birds are flocks of pigeons making their homes at the port. Pilots of incoming and outgoing planes fear the pigeons which fill the air as ships land and take off. Officials have made repeated efforts to rid the port of its unwelcome guests. To date all efforts have been in vain. The birds multiply as fast as they are killed by whirling plane propellers.

Work Started On Santa Margarita's New Hotel Project

The project of a second golf-course and a large hotel along Formentor lines, reported several weeks ago in this paper as planned at Santa Margarita, on Alcudia Bay, has now become a fact. Work on the project was begun last week. The company behind this venture, which will rival Alcanada and the Puerto de Alcudia golf-course and hotel, is not yet ready to announce the name of its bankers but it evidently means business with the importation from Catalonia of workmen. One hundred and twenty-five men are now at work at digging foundations and laying out the extensive grounds. Many of these are Mallorcans, but many others are Catalans supposedly trained to work faster than the local men. Besides the hotel and golf-course, a casino will be constructed near the shore of the bay. Private houses will be built around the golf-course. A good many plots of land for these have already been sold, and on each waves the flag of the nationality of the purchaser. With speedy construction it is planned to have the work well along by August. With the completion of all the projects on the far side of the island, that part of Mallorca is making a strong bid to become the most important section, especially in the matter of sports.

itations of embryo philosophers, painters and poets, who preferred Goethe to Goehring, Heine to Hitler, Nietzsche to Neurath; and so they have migrated.

The Moses of all this dizzy and brilliant tribe, not all of whom are Jewish, happens to be of feminine persuasion, also she smokes cigars and in her calmer moments puffs a pipe. This new leader of the exiled Bohemians is Fraulein Lunte, known in Berlin and beyond simply as Die Lunte. She kept a Bohemian cafe which was known as Die Lunte, which means The Fuse. Accordingly no one knows what Lunte's name is, so they all call her the Fuse in German.

Herr Hitler never will dim the spark that lights Lunte, for already the Latin Quarter crowds are calling her La Lunte, admitting the slight Frenchification of the article alone.

Lunte is now basking on the terraces of the Dome and the Rotonde, of the romantic Closerie des Lilas, at the Select, the Deux Magots, and others. She is carefully considering where to establish herself in a place similar to the one in Berlin.

«It is pleasant here,» La Lunte said at the Dome. There are no soldiers, no verboten regulations; I can smoke, a cigar or pipe; the tobacco is not so good, but the freedom is better. We are going to enjoy life here and perhaps we will do something good, perhaps not. It doesn't matter.»

La Lunte hopes to find a cheap little cafe where she can set up her rendezvous for artists, writers and dreamers and all the teeming category of youthful sinners whose pardonable enthusiasm seeks expression in creative work, or inspiring indolence.

In Berlin her place was frequented by the successful and the impoverished; by those who had eaten and by those who had not. Lunte provided food and reasonable drink. They paid then or when they could. She believes in the Christian conception that the human race is essentially honest. And for every one poor wanderer who forgot to pay her for his Krugel of beer, a dozen paid her for 20, and thus Lunte maintains her popularity.

ART IN REVIEW

By CLAIRE VAN SCOY

Forty sketches in water color, by Delgado, are to be seen until May 7 at the Costa Galleries. Most of these are clever and decorative; a few are somewhat commonplace in color and over-emphasize the artist's leaning towards poster-art. In fact, the artist has taken numerous prizes for this type of work in Toledo and Buenos Aires. His drawings of peasants and fore-dors are charming. At times he adds a humorous touch, which combined with the delicate lines and stylized forms, produces a convincing and amusing effect: Tomando el Té (10) is an example, or La Primavera (8) or Después de la Merienda (6).

When the artist takes his subject matter too seriously and dips into symbolism (as in No. 40) his work develops unnecessary detail and is not so interesting.

The other Costa exhibition is one of landscapes in oil by Manuel Ramirez.

These are the typical Mallorcan scenes of which one sees so many and is apt to grow a bit tired. There is also a lack of variation in color, and, strangely enough all the pictures, large or small, are framed exactly alike. This is a pity because some of the smaller paintings, with their pretty bright colors, would be quite saleable, I think, if they were matted and framed tastefully.

Señor Ramirez is not without a knowledge of color, drawing and the facts of light and shade in nature, but this knowledge does not, in my opinion, begin to make up for his definite lack of organization and originality. I am inclined to think that in this case, as in the cases of many other professional artists, painting is more of a pastime or a "chosen vocation" than an irresistible, creative urge towards self expression.

Origin Of Unusual Names Are Traced

By United Press

PORTLAND, Ore.—How do the West's mountain lakes and trout streams get their unusual names?

Oregon has its Ginkgo Creek, Jumpoff Joe Creek, Mudpuppy, Tumtum or Mugwump lakes.

Washington's map contains such titles as Humptulips, Dunk and Hoh creeks. Ryegrass and Hem creeks in Idaho cause tourists to wonder about their origin.

Legend has it Hem Creek was named after an old goldminer, who cleared his throat. They called him «Old Hem» and the creek he panned «Hem.»

Humbug Creek gained its name when an old Oregon prospector sold his valueless quartz claim to another miner. Joe McLaughlin, son of the famous Dr. John McLoughlin, fell off a bluff into a small southern Oregon stream, which since then was known as Jumpoff Joe. He died of his injuries.

Fondness of Indians for gambling gave a name to a little rivulet at Plush. One redskin drew a «flush» in a card game, but in his excitement called it a «plush.»

DIRECTOR OF OUR GANG TELLS ABOUT CHILDREN

the innumerable ways and means they have of annoying a director. «But if they weren't full of fun, they would be of no use to me. I have to have children with a lot of spirit. That's what people want to find on the screen.»

In January of 1922 Hal Roach developed the idea of making a group of comedies with child actors. Juvenile players who had filled in for small parts around the Roach lot were assembled for the first picture, which was, frankly, an experiment. When two comedies had been made and released, Roach had no further doubt about the public reaction, and completed plans to make twelve comedies a season.

In the Our Gang line-up at present are Dickie Moore, who made such fine headway that he was chosen for the title role in Oliver Twist; Stymie, the ebony-faced lad of seven; Spanky, the chubby little tot, who is the baby of the troupe; Dorothy De Borba, known as Echo, a golden-haired little girl; Tommy Bond the pug-nosed little scrapper; Breezy, freckled, rough and ready; Spud, a freckled tousled-headed youngster; and Bouncy, the fat boy of the Gang.

«I think it's much harder to direct children than adults,» explained McGowan. «It is not merely the problem of undeveloped mentality, but it is also a question of getting their confidence and cooperation. If you don't have those you might as well turn the job over to somebody else. There are many problems associated with the making of children's comedies that don't crop up in other kinds of directing. Of course, the kiddies tire quickly and you can't afford to keep them on the job if they show the least signs of fati-

Expert Avers Use Of Esperanto Will Become World-Wide

Wharff was a package from Kladno, Czechoslovakia, the birthplace of the late Mayor Anton C. Cermak of Chicago.

Recently Wharff noticed a newspaper photograph of the cottage in which Cermak was born in Kladno. He mailed a letter, written in Esperanto, to Emil Kreibich of Kladno requesting additional data.

From Kreibich, the Berkeley man received a package containing a two-page letter of information written in Esperanto, a translation into Esperanto of a 460-word article about Cermak in a Kladno newspaper, Esperanto translations of letter by Cermak to his relatives in Kladno and Esperanto translations of other Czechoslovakia newspaper articles about Cermak.

Neither Wharff nor his Kladno correspondent understood the other's native language. Both being familiar with Esperanto enabled them to correspond.

The Universal Esperanto Association has a paid-up membership of 8,651 persons in 78 countries. It has for 25 years maintained a system of «services» for its members, through a corps of official representatives stationed in cities and towns throughout the world. The association issues a directory of its official representatives, which makes it easy for persons to communicate with persons in foreign countries through the medium of Esperanto.

Then, too, it is hard to get them to settle down to picture-making as a serious business. You want to preserve the carefree spontaneous spirit with which they start out, but, on the other hand, you don't want to retake a scene a dozen times simply because the youngsters have been careless about details.

«Naturally, dialogue has added to the problem of making Our Gang comedies, although I sincerely believe that the comedies are better now than they used to be in the days of silent films. At first, the transition was hard.
