On the Island

By ELIZABETH DRURY

Did you get out extraordinarily early this morning? And have you seen him? I did and have. I felt very much red, white, and bluish, of course, with more than a tinge of red, yellow and purple.

If you wish to meet interesting people, you must go to the Theater Guild meetings. More and more people are becoming enthusiastic Guildites and subscribing members. Last night they struck a new lode—apparently, a very active and important person had come all the way from New York, not only to join, but to help actively. He may not have known it when he sailed, but here he is. You will hear from him soon. Meanwhile donations and subscriptions are coming in.

Don't you think that a clever idea of Mr. Jean du Bouillier, of Santa Barbara, California — a gentleman famous for ideas — to have a pent house on the roof of the Hotel Royal converted into a studio? Since he is so happily installed, he may remain indefinitely. After travelling about in different countries for the past six months, and finding nothing that compared to his California, he happened to stop here on his way home and succumbed. While here, Mr. du Bouillier will finish a book of verse and design costumes for a new play. If an ordinary mortal were installed up there with a sea of blue above and a blue sea below, he would just sit, and sit, and sit, or perhaps just float off in reverie.

There were so many friends at the The Dansant, that if I do miss anyone, I do hope I will be forgiven. It is rather bewildering you know, to look around and try to recall everything, when some of the refreshments have been downed. I do remember Mrs. Gómez del Val and Mrs. Martin Burges, Miss Emily Camp, Mrs. George Alden, Mr. and Mrs. John McCarty, Mrs. Lillians Edwards, Mr. du

Warwick Troth Broken

LONDON — The social world received a jolt with the announcement that the engagement between Miss Margaret Whigham and the Earl of Warwick was broken.

The couple became engaged only 27 days ago, and the match was looked upon with favor.

Explaining the reason for the broken engagement, Miss Whigham's mother said that her daughter did not care sufficiently for the earl, and that too great a difference in age separated them

New Clue Gives Fresh Hope of Finding Lindbergh Child, Kidnaped 29 Days Ago

HOPEWELL, New Jersey — The little knot of reporters which watches here in continuous contact with Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh were given an anonymous communication which police said might lead to the eventual discovery of the infant.

The letter came from the little town of Grafton, Mass. as was thought to be authentic because there was no attempt to disguise the handwriting, though a signature was missing.

The writer explained that people well-known in the town had suddenly acquired a child with explanations to their friends which were sufficiently unconvincing to cause comment and considerable private talk.

An immediate checkup with the police of the village brought no definite answer.

World News Briefs

DRONTHEIM — The little idyllic village of Vaerdaelen was the scene of a terrible tragedy yesterday. A peasant youth of 21, believed to have been fired by some sort of religious mania, and armed with an axe, killed an entire family—father, mother, three children aged four to twenty.

FRIEDRICHSCHAFFEN — The Graf Zepelin moored here yesterday on its return from South America at the completion of first trip of the regular service.

LONDON — A new issue of £1,500,000 in stocks for the London and Home Counties Joint Electricity company was over-subscribed within ten minutes after it was offered.

VIENNA — Jan Kubelik, whose fame as a violinist has taken him all over the world, filed a petition in bankruptcy here.

LONDON — Two golfers and a caddie were struck by lightning in a thunderstorm which broke over Maidenhead Golf Course in the afternoon. One golfer, an old man, and the caddie were instantly killed by the bolt; the other man was taken to a nearby hospital suffering a partial paralysis.

MUKDEN — The new republic decided to introduce gold currency. Banks were asked to turn all revenues from taxes over to the government, in spite of protests from the government of China proper.

STOCKHOLM — Prospective winners of Peace Prizes and the other benefices to be derived from the Nobel fund, will now receive less for their efforts than

Fire Horror in Croat City

AGRAM, Yugoslavia — Scenes of horror took place in this city when a great fire started and got almost completely out of control before fire brigades could stop its devastating sweep.

The fire started on one of the biggest buildings in town and could not be prevented from reaching the second floor where great quantities of inflammable films were stored.

The explosion which followed the ignition of the films rocked the town. The building itself sprang immediately into flames, and neighboring edifices caught fire.

With the whole building in flames it became impossible for the firemen to save all the inmates. They rushed to windows and tried to escape from the burning prison by whatever means they could.

Among those trying to escape was an old woman whose screams were heard by the rescuers in the street, though they could not see the victim herself. She was finally induced to jump to the safety of a fireman's net, after she had thrown breakable valuables onto the street.

The firemen finally managed to get all the people out of the burning structure, but many of them were either dead or dying. The mortally injured totaled 47.

First estimates of the fire placed the losses at several million dinars.

formerly. This fact was announced yesterday, with the explanation that the fall of sterling and the Kreuger débâcle have caused a depreciation which this year's increased allotment does not replace.

Extranjeros Join Mallorquins in Gay Fiesta

The harbor, the streets, the strange little crooked ways of Palma all were in their gayest, most flamboyant dress today, — for —

El Presidente de la República is to arrive in Palma at 9:30 a. m.

It is a time of greatest gaiety for the Mallorquins, a fete of unrivalled picturesqueness for the extranjeros.

There is—for example—the anecdote wholly true — of the captain of the English boat moored at the Palma wharves, who wished to "dress ship" for the gala occasion.

And after sending one after another of his crew on the same mission, found to his dismay that not a single flag of the Spanish Republic could be borrowed for the event. Every last one of them had been engaged, and will flutter over the heads of the assembled, cheering multitudes today.

This is the gayest day of the year for Palma. A holiday has been declared.

The facade of the City Hall (Ayuntamiento) is decked out in colorful banners. The windows, the balustrades, the portals, all proclaim the festivity of the reception. Plush banners with coats of arms and devices of state hang from every convenient place.

The streets are lined with garlands of myrtle, interspersed with electric light bulbs. The shops and factories have brought out their banners. All proclaim the spirit of festivity, of reverence, of welcome.

An official closing request has been issued. All the shops and financial houses will be shut from 9 a. m. until 11 a. m., but it is extremely doubtful if anything can be purchased before 2 or 3 p. m.

Every ship in the harbor will be festooned with its flags of many colors. even the small fishing craft will put on their best clothing, holystone its decks, clean out the whistle, and lie in wait for the arrival of the Cruiser Almirante Cervera.

Devalera Made Lenient by Canadian Note

Erin Delegates at Ottawa Barred Sans Oath

LONDON — The Irish communication on the oath of allegiance was received today and its contents carefully guarded. Nothing of the interchange will be made public by the Government until the question is settled.

DUBLIN — Eamon Devalera received an unexpected shock today and set about revising his plans.

The shock came from Canada whence a note was sent to the effect that Irish representatives would be refused entrance to the Ottawa conference on empire trade if the Irish persisted in their refusal to take the oath of allegiance, and by so doing resigned their position in the British Commonwealth of Nations.

Reliable reports on Devalera's day stated that the receipt of the note only a few hours before he in turn was to send a note to England defining Ireland's position, changed the leader's mind and caused him to change the wording of his communication.

Legal opinion on the status of Ireland has been that the removal of the oath would automatically place them outside the empire and discredit all the representatives of the government in the cities of the world. It would have to begin all over again to establish diplomatic relations.

Mrs. Lorenzo Semple gave a luncheon yesterday at the Auberge du Chateau, in honor of Mrs. J. D. Williams, of Cala Ratjada. Mrs. Semple is leaving for the Riviera very shortly, where she will spend a few weeks with her daughter and son-in-law Philip Barry, the noted playwright. She hopes to convince them of the superior charms of Majorca, and bring them back with her for an extended stay.

We are sorry to learn that Miss Leilah Belknap, of Philadelphia is leaving the Island. Since this is by no means her first visit, it is more than likely she will obey that impulse to come back again.

Mrs. Nora MacDonnell, of Country Cork, Ireland, is one of the new arrivals. Mrs. MacDonnell has been paint-

I was every much pleased to witness, a day or more ago, a quaint old Majorcan religious custom—the blessing of a house, by one of the local curas. This very fine looking priest, in white linen overblouse trimmed with rare old lace, and with an exquisitely embroidered stole over his shoulders, was accompanied by a small boy in religious garb. The boy carried a little silver vessel partly filled with holy water. The two entered the doorway, and the cura, after reading a few benedictions from his prayer book, in a low voice, dipped a brush into the water, sprinkled the floor, made the sign of the cross and departed.

Yesterday, in the Grand Hotel, Lady Helen Sheppard, who lives in Fornalutz, had the grandest collection of pink posters I have ever seen. U. S. and N. D. L. Lines Reduce Rates

NEW YORK — Announcement was made today by the officers of the U. S. Lines that rates were to be reduced immediately on three of the line's biggest boats.

The move followed the announcement of reductions by the North German Lloyd line.

The U. S. Lines boats affected are the Leviathan, the President Harding and the President Roosevelt.

These reductions were not agreed upon by the conference now taking place between the lines, but out of the conference reductions on some uniform scale are expected.

for them, as I know from my own experience with garden plays in Chicago and Boars Hill, Oxford, that the game is well worth the effort. The opportunity to give expression to one's talents and the discovery of latent ones, makes any similar project worthwhile. The principal in "The Rest Cure" is Mr. Dudley Dean Bigelow. Mme. Renee Mottez Eldese and Mr. Royden Wilkinson will furnish the music, and the folk dances are to be performed by Mrs. Bertram Wraith and Sr. Miguel Coll. The proceeds of the entertainment are to be given to a local charity, as small gift of appreciation of the Island visitors to their gracious hosts, the Malloccans.

Have you, by any chance, seen the very good oil paintings of Mallorca by Don Salvador Pensabene Oliver, son of the proprietor of the Mediterraneo Hotel? Some of the paintings are in the writing room of the hotel.

The first the dansant, inaugurated at Victor's yesterday afternoon proved a great success. The dances afford an excellent opportunity for people in the country to entertain and be entertained, and still have time to get home early.

Among the guests at Victor's were Mr. Michael M. Beuren III, of Morristown, N. J., and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ross, Jr. of New York. They are here for a few days, and will go back to Sóller here they are spending the rest of their vacation. Mrs. Ross' novel "Friday to Monday", was published by Liverwright in February of this year. Mr. Ross and Mr. Van Veuren have been studying modern architecture at Bauhaus, in Desseau, Germany, while Mrs. Ross completed her book of verses. Incidentally, Mrs. Ross looked very charming in her grey cape suit.

Other Things We Want to Know

What is "Kelly's",

Who were the revellers who went all the way from Palma to Sóller to discover "Kelly's"? And, being so mysterious, in it fair to assume that "Kelley's" is really a New York speakeasy which has been brought covertly into little Sóller?

Is it true that Mallorca's second largest industry at this season is the drawing up of plans, financial reports, etc., for new and vastly superior hotels? From our favorite statistician comes the report that out of it all will come one new pension de famille successfully opened and put under way, and one bar converted into a storeroom for unsold pictures and MSS.

Who is going around town saying that the "bright young things" are now banding together as the only means of protecting themselves against the activities of the "queer old people"? He wants to know, and so do we, if the new game of the B. Y. T. 's is known across the pond, or did it evolve from a critical observation of the Q. O. P.?

Are all the nice people now going to Cala Ratjada? (No new hotel has been proposed for this playa this week, but perhaps...)

Who is the enthusiastic girl guide who wants to organise a hiking party to force—march the Island, in so many days. An have her acquaintances of both sexes (we mean to say, of either sex) afforded her much support?

Has it really become the fashion for the more convivial extranjeros to allow themselves to be carried on to Marseille when seeing their friends off? And what, for instance, does the British consul in Marseille think about it?

U. S. HOUSE VOTES NEW TAXES

Luxuries Taxed In Bill For Deficit

WASHINGTON — The long battle for the new taxes ended in the day's congress session when the new bill was presented by the Budget Commission and passed by a rising vote.

As was expected in the Democratic House, the new bill hits the luxuries heavily and contains nothing about the proposed and contested sales tax.

The provisions of the bill call for rises in the postal rate, a 25 percent jump in the rate charged for stock transactions, a new tax on automobiles of three percent on cheap cars and five percent on the expensive, a tax on matches, on radio equipment, on phono graphs and on yachts.

The Budget Commission estimated that the increased revenue out of these taxes would be about $1,261,000. The deficit for which the new revenues are needed is $1,241,000.

Democratic journals in The States counted the bill a distinct victory, since it contains none of the threatened raising of income taxes in the higher brackets for which many congressmen had been calling for—nor does it come near the sales tax idea (it had been proposed that a minute percent be charged on each article sold) which had been decried by many leaders of the people.

The Speaker of the House in presenting the bill made a speech in its favor. He emphasized the necessity of passing the bill in order to restore the business of government to equilibrium. In the course of his address he stated that "the United States now finds itself in the midst of the worst financial panic of its history".
