

The Gadarene Descent

(This is the second of two articles by Mr. William Bell dealing with the economic depression).

THE present situation in Europe is eloquent of the fatuity of our alleged statesmen fumbling with their contradictory solutions to the planetary puzzle. Every reason but the correct one has been used to «explain» the muddle into which our antiquated monetary system has brought us. The universal slump has been fathered on things celestial as well as terrestrial, on factors as varied as sun-spots and the world-war. Yet nobody laughs, except the New Economists.

Sacrifices to the golden calf of the Money Monopoly have been dutifully made in order to balance the budget, as if that expedient were the linchpin in the wheel of the industrial cart in which we now ride to our doom down the Gadarene slope to the next war-to-end-war, the war to make the world safe for Bankocracy. Reducing interest rates payable on State loans; reducing wages to a level more in accord with those of our less-advanced competitors: reducing man-power by installing multi-horsepower machinery; reducing hunger by the tightening of belts: consume less, produce more: where can this game of see-saw land us but into another war?

It is arithmetically impossible to reduce the total purchasing power and at the same time to increase the total sales, either at home or abroad: for every country on the horns of a similar dilemma is following the same plan, like a puppy chasing its tail. This is an axiom, a statement of fact, not a matter of opinion. It is based on the demonstrable fundamental that under the existing Financial System the purchasing-power at the disposal of every community is chronically insufficient to buy the whole of production. Yet our myopic politicians proudly point to the «success» of their latest stunt when the number of unemployed rises half-a-dozen or drops only six!

Hypnotised by figures, they seem not to be aware of their confusion in objectives. The leaders of every political party, Right and Left alike, have their own pet plans for providing work for all. As if that were still the greatest virtue in a world bulging with machinery for doing it for us! As if they, speaking the language of the Stone Age, were unaware that in this Power Age our best brains are gradually eliminating the necessity of work for all! Bedlam politics! Bedlam economics! Bedlam electors for permitting Bedlam politicians to connive at the deeds of «Sane Finance»! What an idea!

Since the politicians have tried unsuccessfully for over a decade to solve their problem of unemployment, there is danger in their coming at last to the conclusion that the only comprehensive solution to their problem would be another war. There are, indeed, good grounds for believing that the money monopolists are prepared to send the world to war again rather than surrender their control of the issue of credit. The last war cost Great Britain eight thousand million pounds of which at least ninety per cent was created costlessly by the Bankocracy on the security of the real credit of the Nation—our credit. Having lent us our money, the Banks have been charging us over 300,000,000 a year interest on it ever since! Hence another war would be a «paying proposition» for them, besides solving the «problem of unemployment» for their servants, the politicians, as well as staving off the threatened world-revolution.

In the U.S.A. there is a growing body of supporters of the Douglas Social Credit Proposals, a body growing in proportion as «recovery» recedes further into the background behind the New Dealers. As one of the earliest adherents to the Douglas Economics I say with all possible gravity that I believe the trend of events is swinging in the direction of his proposals being accepted as the only satisfactory way out of the economic morass. A prominent publicist in England has well-said that all the phenomena of the existing economic system have behaved during the past fifteen years as if they were in the pay of the New Economists of the Douglas school, a school entirely non-party in that it is neither Conservative nor Liberal; Socialist nor Radical; Fascist nor Communist; nor any other 'ist.

The Douglas S. C. Proposals have a strong following not only in England, but in Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and Canada; also in the U.S.A., not to omit that they are permeating the economic thought in the capitals of the world. It only remains to be seen which country will be the first to adopt and apply the Douglas remedy for solving the problem of Scarcity amid Plenty. The future must be with that people which is bold enough to cut off the dead hand of the Old Economics still throttling this Power Age with a vigour that derives from the galvanic spasms of a dying financial system now apparently on its last legs.

REVIEW OF THE WEEK'S NEWS

The first visit of a British Minister to Soviet Russia was concluded early in the week when Mr. Eden left Moscow for Warsaw. Mr. Eden found upon arriving in Moscow that it was necessary for him to endeavour to allay the suspicion of the British attitude which he found had grown up in Russia. Due to the activities of several private but prominent persons and the attitude of some of England's Press the feeling is growing in Russia that England is fostering the idea of war. They believe that the British are behind every threat to the Russian frontier. Mr. Eden in his talks with M. Stalin emphasised the fact that Britain's policy was one of peace. The men parted with an increased mutual esteem which, without doubt, will lead to a better understanding between the two nations. They discussed frankly the German question, Mr. Eden believing that there was now less danger of war than in 1914 and M. Stalin holding that there is at present considerably more likelihood of a clash.

Scientific Adventure:

One of the most romantic and intrepid characters in Spain to-day is the famous explorer, Captain Don Francisco Iglesias, of the Spanish Air Force. During the expedition he organized to explore the Amazon, the Captain traversed that river for weeks on end in a small Brazilian canoe, now on exhibition in Madrid. The Spanish government has built him a floating laboratory, the survey ship Artabro, especially for study in connection with the second

Amazon expedition which the Captain is starting in September. In consequence of the fact that the ship carries a small plane, calling for large supplies of liquid fuel aboard, special precautions against fire have been called for. After the trip, the Artabro is to be used as a survey ship, and for other scientific

Court News:

The latest plans for the King of England's Silver Jubilee includes Thanksgiving Service at St. Paul's Cathedral on May 6th, which will be broadcast all over the Empire by B.B.C. The King himself will speak over the radio to his Empire the same evening. During that week His Majesty will proceed in state to Parliament to receive addresses of congratulation, there will be a state dinner at Buckingham Palace, and a drive through North London. The following week there will be a state ball at the Palace, and a drive through South London. A second state dinner is scheduled for the third week, a ball at the Guildhall, attended by their Majesties, and drives through East and West London.

Happier France

The monetary panic in Belgium, caused by the «reattachment» of the belga to the gold standard at 28 per cent under its former parity, has had its repercussions in France. However, in a statement to the «Matin» yesterday, M. Germain-Martin, the French Minister of Finance declared that there was no reason for prevalent fears about the future of the French franc.

Treasure

We, personally, are always interested in unusual or ancient matters, but, like most normal people, seldom consider spending a morning in a museum. (Now, don't be put off. Let us tell our tale.) The temporary return to damp and chilly winter last Wednesday caused us to seek shelter within the portals of the Lonja — that beautiful fifteenth century hall of commerce situated on Palma's waterfront. In a distant corner were two or three quiet figures bent over what seemed to be a prostrate body laid out on a pile of straw. On reaching the little group we found, not merely one recumbent figure, but three—two ladies and one man, a soldier. The unfortunate ladies had lost their heads, and the soldier his arms and legs as well.

Yes, you've guessed it—Greek statues, and some of the best it has been our privilege to see anywhere. Of fine Carrera marble, the beauty of workmanship, particularly in the folds of the women's chitons and himations, and the interesting design on the breast of the soldier, is well worth seeing next time you find yourself in the vicinity of the Lonja. Between curious looking crates were several large patches of straw-covered cement which attracted our attention.

They were groups of thousands of pieces of mosaic, which, together with the statues and other objects, had been dug up a few days ago right on this island of Majorca.

The work of excavation is continuing. Last year the government gave five thousand pesetas for it, and it is hoped, in view of these recently discovered treasures with promise of more to come, that a further ten thousand pesetas will be forthcoming. In case you feel like taking one of these gorgeous spring days off for a trip with the thrill of a treasure hunt thrown in, let us inform you that the site of the interesting work is in the grounds of a finca near the church in Alcudia, the old «Pollentia». Some of the metal instruments were dug up from a layer of earth below the mosaic, and had obviously been almost destroyed by some fierce fire. Bones, thought to be those of deer, are now in a glass case in the Lonja—deer were and are absolutely unknown on the Island. Human skeletons excavated have only sections of gold Greek jewellery still hanging to them, showing traces of Arab sabotage, and the head and limbs of the statues are certainly missing through vandalism.

An exquisite bronze statuette was found by a local peasant, and sold by him to the experts—one only of several objects, all dating from before the Christian era, so beautiful and interesting that Madrid has sent down to acquire some of them for its museums.

The excavations are in charge of D. Juan Llabrés and D. Rafael Ysasi (Académicos de la Historia) and D. Lorenzo Cerdá, (Director Académico de San Fernando).

Tribute

Through the kindness of Mr. Richard Harter's sister of Cleveland, Ohio, we are able to print here-with the tribute to him which appeared in the Canton, Ohio, Repository, the paper with which Dick was connected before coming abroad. To those of us who knew and loved him here it comes as a comforting thought to know that on "the other side of the water" he will be equally missed and remembered.

"For more than a year, ever since Americans who had gone abroad to take advantage of exchange rates started coming home, we who had known Dick Harter when he was on The Repository staff had been expecting to look up and see him shoving through the editorial room door. His sojourn in Majorca was to us an idyllic adventure, a temporary thing. The Balearic Islands seemed an admirable place to visit, but never a place for Dick to adopt as his home.

He didn't come back. Instead, we had to be satisfied with meagre reports of what he was doing, working on a newspaper in Palma and living a Mediterranean version of the life of Riley. He was still "Thinking It Over" for readers in Majorca's American colony. We wondered if his copy still came in late, if his desk was as untidy as ever and if he still played his tin flute afternoons when the last edition had gone to press. We imagined so.

Thursday morning we got news of Dick's critical illness. Before noon we had verified a report of his death. Majorca seemed close for a few minutes. Sympathy bridged the distance.

Dick was a character. Not a strong character nor a weak one. Not an exemplary one and certainly not an imperfect one. He was a combination of qualities and the absence of qualities which made him stand out above the ordinary run of human beings. Some persons are pleasant to be around. They give living a zest it doesn't have ordinarily. That's probably why we kept waiting for Dick Harter and probably why we will go on waiting even though we know now he isn't going to come".

To Bridge Fans

To those of our readers who while away the hours around bridge tables we hope that the enclosed card with the new scoring will come in handy. Keeping up with the continual changes in Bridge Laws is a nuisance but all we can do is make the best of it because there is always at least one out of every four that wants to play the "new rules".

About Barcelona

Consul General and Mrs. Dawson left Barcelona last night for Palma, where they will embark Monday on the Exochorda for New York. They expect to spend most of their two months' leave of absence in South Carolina, where they will be joined by their son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Dawson, of Kansas. Consul General and Mrs. Dawson plan to return to Barcelona the latter part of June or the early part of July.

Others sailing for America on the same ship with Consul and Mrs. Dawson are Mrs. Eddy and Mrs. Breyfogle.

We learn that Stainer's "Crucifixion" will be sung by the Choir of St. George's Church, Barcelona, on Sunday, 14th April, at the 11 a. m. service. The soloists will be Messrs. S. Latta (tenor) and J. W. Weber (bass). Organist Mrs. D. Frost.

Mrs. and Miss Steele, of New Haven, who have been spending the winter in Barcelona, left recently for Valencia, where they saw the Fallas de San José before going on down to Altea, where they plan to stay until time to sail home in May.

Mrs. Noble, Miss Buntly Noble, Miss Frances Sauvalle, and Mrs. Charles P. Mills have just returned from a two weeks' motor trip through the south of Spain.

Among the many parties given recently in honour of Consul and Mrs. Dawson on the eve of their departure for America have been Mrs. Hobbles' tea on Tuesday, and last week, Mrs. Hill's cocktail party on Thursday and Mrs. Braddock's on Friday.

Mrs. Whitmore gave a large bridge tea at her home on Friday last.

The American Club held its monthly lunch on Thursday at the Ritz, when the guests of honour were the two American tennis players, Henry Culley and Wilmer Hines, who played a series of matches this week with the Barcelona Lawn Tennis Club in Calle Gan-Duxer, Bonanova. They represent the Los Angeles Lawn Tennis Club. The match was one of the preliminaries for the Davis Cup. The final meeting between the American players and the local representatives will take place today, Sunday. A brief talk was made by Sr. Macaya, President of the Barcelona Lawn-Tennis Club, and a few remarks were also addressed by Colonel Harmon. About fifty members and guests attended the luncheon.

Mrs. van Lier has left Barcelona for a lengthy tour of the south of Spain, after which she plans to go by boat from Gibraltar to Palma, where she will spend some time.

The Saturday afternoon tea dances of the British Club bid fair to become one of the most honoured institutions of the English-speaking colony in Barcelona. This week's party was even more successful than those which had gone before it.

Miss Pamela Davy and Miss Astrid Hagvig recently went to Mallorca for a stay of some time.

Mr. John H. Jordain recently returned from a trip of several weeks in France.

The Business Men's monthly lunch took place this week, in the Restaurant Miami. There was a large and interested attendance, although no special features were offered.

We learn with regret that the English Players have been unable to make satisfactory arrangements for a season in Barcelona this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Cross were hosts at a large cocktail party at their home last Wednesday in honour of Mr. and Mrs. Dawson. Mr. Dawson was unfortunately prevented from attending by a touch of the grippe. The American tennis players, Mr. Culley and Mr. Hines of the Los Angeles Tennis Club, were present at the party, together with Sr. Macaya and Mr. Witty of the Barcelona Club.

Mrs. George St. Noble, Jr. has as her guests for a short stay her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Menhinick, and her brother, Mr. John Menhinick, of London.

Mrs. Paul D. Brown entertained at dinner on Tuesday night for Mr. and Mrs. Wendell, who are visiting her from Madrid.

Several members of the foreign colony were seen at the delightful dance recital given on Friday by Joan Magrinyá.

Donald Francis Tovey, the distinguished English pianist, will be the soloist at the Sunday afternoon concert of the Orquesta Pau Casals, at the Palau de la Música Catalana, today.

Messrs. Henry Culley and Wilmer Hines, representing the Los Angeles Lawn Tennis Club, are playing against the Barcelona Lawn Tennis Club this week in the preliminaries of the Davis Cup matches. The last games in this series of matches are being played today, Sunday, on the courts of the Barcelona Lawn Tennis Club.

OF PERSONAL INTEREST

The nicest of buffet suppers was had last Sunday evening at the home of Mrs. Ann Burns. A bridge game started along about four thirty and went on throughout the evening. Norman Jacobsen and Major Lee playing as North and South took a considerable beating, grand slams being bid like nothing at all. The supper was something to write home about and altogether it was a grand evening. In addition to Mrs. Joan Malcolm who is Mrs. Burns' house guest there were Comm. Griffin, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Brierly, Mr. Norman Jacobsen, Mr. Ashley Day, Major and Mrs. Lee, Mrs. McClintock and M. R. Boutet de Momvel.

All kinds of things have been going on at Lena's. Lena cut her hand badly when a siphon exploded, the cut was clipped together but failed to heal and it had to be opened again and sewn. The new kitchen is about to be inagurated and meals will be better than ever and served much more quickly. The kitchen is a dream for those that are interested in things culinary. It has a tremendous coal stove, gas stoves, plenty of hot water and sinks and things. The ceiling of the back room is to be removed, as is the wall dividing the front from the back, and one long, high ceilinged room will result. In the midst of all this activity Lena hied herself to Cala Ratjada for a bit of well earned rest.

Passing through Palma during the week were Mr. and Mrs. R.R.Mander of Alicante. They have long been residents of Spain spending much time in Ibiza. Mr. Mander owns the motor-yacht Success and has a most interesting collection of photographs of his various wanderings through the canals of Europe in his craft. The Manders are en route to England and are returning to Spain in August.

Among those winning prizes in the paper chase last Sunday at Palma Nova was Mrs. Dorr E. Newton who galloped home in third place. Altogether more than a thousand persons attended the affair with about fifty astride horses.

Mr. Kevin Kavanagh is dashing about through Spain on a bicycle in the interests of the MAJORCA SUN. So far he has only missed one boat and has been gone almost a week.

A number of Doris Cameron's friends had a surprise party for her last Saturday at the Restaurant Parisien. It was a grand dinner and while the suprise part may have left something to be desired (can you imagine having a secret on this island) it was a good party. The crowd went on later to the Trocadero.

Word has come of the marriage of Mrs. Sarah Waterbury to Mr. Samuel Welsh of Chestnut Hill. Mrs. Welsh was divorced last year from Mr. Fred Beckman whom she met here on the Island and to whom she was married for about six months. While here she was one of the most popular of hostesses and a charming member of the foreign colony.

We've had a letter from Bert Mullin who almost everybody will remember as the best piano, bridge and poker player that has visited our shores in recent history. He is in Chicago and didn't tell us much about himself except that they have had a terrible winter over there and he is homesick for Mallorca.

Out at the Plaza de Toros this afternoon the bugles will sound the official opening of the bull-fighting season. As usual it is a novillada with six bulls and no horses but it should be interesting to those who have spent the winter reading Hemingway. Maybe they'll be able to recognize some of the passes and be able to cry olé with the best of them.

The Pension Marie Antoinette lists some notable people among its guests. Staying there at present is Mr. L. Deutschmann, a member of the Secretariat of the League of Nations. He is well known as an authority on hygiene and is a statistician of note. Also at the pension is Mrs. Seidler and her two boys of New York City. Mrs. Seidler's husband is one of New York's best known surgeons.

The American Consul-General of Barcelona, Mr. Claude I. Dawson and Mrs. Dawson are spending Sunday in Palma prior to embarking tomorrow on the Exochorda for a holiday at home. This is their first visit to Palma in some little time.

Lt.-Comm. Alan Hillgarth and Mrs. Hillgarth left for England Tuesday night. They plan to be gone for a couple of months. In the meantime Mr. George Sawood is in charge at the British Vice-Consulate.

On Friday, April 12, there is to be a sale in Short's Tea Rooms in Terreno. The proceeds of the sale will go to the British Church Fund and there will be all sorts of things to buy; cakes and candies and little novelties. The doors will be open from 10:30 to 1 P.M.

Mrs. Julia Grant and her sister Miss Cleaver are leaving today for the Continent. They are taking their car with them and will tour most of Spain before returning.

Madame Roosmale Nepven who was well known among the San Agustin colony last summer paid a flying visit to the Island on Wednesday to repack her trunks and to say that she and her family cannot return to Mallorca.

Galerias Costa have added a further contribution to the world of art with Mary Lake's English translation of the famous book, «The Tranquil Isle,» by that great friend of Alphonse Daudet, Santiago Rusiñol. The book is well written and full of appeal to lovers of Mallorca.

This week has been a gay one along the main stem commencing on Monday with a gay cocktail gathering which included Miss Dorothy Root, Rear-Admiral Cumberlande and Mr. Michael Cumberlande, Miss Nan Wooler and Mr. Henri Total. The Admiral was busy explaining to a newcomer that little «Mistral» was not his grandchild, but his younger son. He threatens to present Mistral with several brothers and sisters during the next ten years. Mr. Michel Cumberlande braved the threatening weather of our tricky Mediterranean on Wednesday, and set sail for Naples, the Greek Isles and parts unknown. A gallant family... Señor and Señora de Urzaiz were seen enjoying one of their rare trips to town from Paguera, and Mrs. Desaulniers was «setting them up» for a crowd of friends; she carried off her house guests, Mrs. de Prizer and Mrs. Seabury, to Ibiza with her, last Wednesday, but promised to bring them back in time for the cocktail party at her Genova house Friday... Mrs. Bowman-Burns tells us that she is going to take over, at intervals, during the hot weather, the house Mrs. de Prizer is about to rent in Soller, the latter lady coming to Mrs. Burns' Terreno home during those intervals.

Again Colonel Riccard leaves us. This in itself is of sufficient interest to rate along with Germany's rearming and the Belgian decision. After a battle for months to get a berth on the Orford the Colonel won out and yesterday departed these shores. Lena's on Friday evening was the scene of a farewell party long to be remembered. Speeches were to be had for less than the asking and all obliged. The Colonel, mellowed by the cup that cheers, was at his best in replying to the many toasts offered him. At times there was not a dry eye in the place and Lena's long narrow room resembled nothing so much as the Wailing Wall. It was discovered by chance that Sven was also leaving and the fickle crowd had another hero. Sven in his boisterous way also spoke. The Colonel's final exit was a masterpiece of showmanship as he waved a fond farewell from the horizontal.

Let's Talk about Books

By Lieut. Col. C.H. Gurney D.S.O.

It is some mitigation to the regret I feel in saying farewell to my readers in this last of my talks for the present, that I have three such excellent books to leave in their custody. I must leave this isle for the time to look after my mother and I fear there will be little time for reading or writing. If any of my readers have enjoyed my notes I am more than rewarded as it has been a pleasure to have written them and to feel that even on my most asthmatical day there was some small niche of usefulness that I could fill.

For my shortcomings I can only throw myself on "the mercy of the court", pleading that at 53 it is very hard for an old dog to learn new tricks.

Among this week's three books I think pride of place should be given to, In This Valley by Michael Home (Albastross). It is not only that the tragedy of illicit country love moves forward so relentlessly to its appointed end, with a totally unforced psychology, but that the background of love for the land, in its fight with growing ambition, is displayed in scenes of glowing colours that makes the charm and force of this book.

Perhaps to anyone who has any knowledge of the peoples and politics of East Anglia it brings back more powerfully than most works of fiction, or fact, that curious struggle between Church and Conservatism and Non-conformity and Liberalism that is at the root of all politics and even social life in the Eastern Countries.

It is a pleasure to find so delightful a character as Abner Webster, shrewd, kindly and human and I can assure my readers that it is this type of hardy, independent descendants of Nordic raiders and Calvinistic settlers who have made East Anglia what it is today.

I should keep A Handfull of Dust by Evelyn Waugh for the day when your liver is a bit out of order. If this delightful tangle of social infirmities and life in the interior of South America cannot ease your worries you are indeed hard to please. Throughout the book one is continually torn between the desire to burst out laughing and break down and cry at the same time.

Another remedy of the same type for the bleak days is Soft Answers by Richard Aldington (Albastross). In these short stories on the social follies of today the psychology is rather more intense but a bit more muddled. If you can understand the story Stepping Heavenward I give you full marks. Occasionally there are in these stories what I consider breaches of good manners.
