Para THE MAJORCA SUN.

Considero muy acertado la idea de publicar un semanario inglés para fomentar el turismo encauzándolo hacia esta maravillosa isla de Mallorca. Acertada la idea y digna de agradecimiento. Yo puedo decir que no habré llegado a conocer los portentos de la Naturaleza hasta que pueda ponerme con ella en contacto en Mallorca. Es algo superior a toda imaginación. Tienen, además, los extranjeros que nos visitan, la ventaja de encontrar aquí un clima benigno y una gente acogedora, hospitalaria y servicial. El turismo ya es en Mallorca cosa bien establecida y encauzada, que cada día crecerá más y que no ha de ceder en importancia a ninguna otra de las regiones más privilegiadas de Europa. Saludo, pues, la aparición del Semanario "THE MAJORCA SUN", deseándole grandes éxitos para satisfacción propia y por las ventajas que puede proporcionar a esta Isla.

JUAN MANENT, Gobernador Civil de Baleares.

To: THE MAJORCA SUN.

I consider very fitting the idea of publishing a weekly paper in English to facilitate the guiding of tourists the marvellous Island of Majorca. The idea is fitting and worthy of congratulation. I can say that I did not realize the wonders of Nature until I came to Majorca. They are beyond the imagination. Further, the foreigners who visit us have the advantages of mild climate and a protecting, courteous and hospitable people. Tourist traffic in Majorca is an established and organized thing and every day is growing so that it will not lag behind the more privileged regions of Europe. So I greet the appearance of the weekly paper "THE MAJORCA SUN", wishing it great success for itself and the advantages it can afford the Island.

JUAN MANENT, Gobernador Civil de Baleares.

Preface We offer this little paper not only as a shopping and amusement guide but to chronicle and forecast matters of interest to residents and visitors to the Island of Mallorca.

As the value of an idea depends upon its usefulness and development we earnestly solicit suggestions and criticism to this end.

We take the deepest pride in submitting the letters which the Governor of the Balearic Islands and the Mayor of Palma de Mallorca have so considerately given us and for which we wish to express our appreciation.

IMPRESIÓN

Mallorca, por sus condiciones climatológicas y su espléndido paisaje, se vé de continuo visitada por una importante colonia extranjera, la que encuentra amable y hospitalaria acogida por sus moradores. En la actualidad hállase provista de los mejores hoteles, enclavados en los mejores y mas pintorescos sitios de la Isla, especialmente a orillas del mar, donde refleja su azulado y el verde de los bosques que pueblan los vecinos montes.

Uno de los primordiales asuntos para la expansión turística es la dotación de inmejorables carreteras y vías. Entendiéndolo así nuestras Corporaciones trabajan constantemente, al unísono con los representantes en Cortes, por Baleares, aprovechando el actual Gobierno de la República, siempre dispuesto a atender las necesidades del pueblo, para que muy pronto sea un hecho, que Mallorca se halle dotada de buenas carreteras que enlacen sus restantes pueblos y sean el complemento para que el turismo pueda satisfacer sus mejores aspiraciones.

Yo he de felicitar a los iniciadores de este Semanario THE MAJORCA SUN, que siempre ha de contribuir para el logro del mayor florecimiento de nuestra encantadora Illa d'Or.

FRANCISCO VILLALONGA, Alcalde de Palma.

Majorca, due to it's climatic conditions and it's splendid landscapes, is continually visited by an important foreign colony, which finds an amiable and hospitable reception by the Island's inhabitants.

At present it is provided with the best Hotels, situated in the best and most picturesque spots of the Island, especially on the seashore, where both, the sky-blue and the green of the forests of the near mountains, are reflected.

One of the primary matters for the expansion of travelling is the construction of better highways and roads; with this understanding our Corporations are constantly working in unison with the Balearic Representatives in the Cortes, and with the advantages of the republican Government, which is always ready to look to the necessities of the Nation, and act so that Majorca be endowed with good highways which will connect all the other villages and which will, when completed, satisfy all desires of the tourist.

I have to congratulate the founders of this weekly THE MAJORCA SUN which always will promote the greatest prosperity of our enchanting "Illa d'Or".

FRANCISCO VILLALONGA, Mayor of Palma.

Lotería de Navidad.

During the last few weeks signs bearing the notice "Sorteo de Navidad," under which appears a number, have been seen in many of the shop windows. This notice refers to the greatest Lotería of the year, with a "Gordo" or thick prize of 15,000,000 pesetas. As is well known, the regular lotteries are run at ten-day intervals throughout the year, but the Navidad (Christmas) Lotería is by far the most important, and overshadows all others in interest as well as in possible return. It is safe to say that hardly a family in Spain is without material interest in this event, and tickets find their way to all parts of the Spanish-speaking world as well.

As a full ticket for this classic costs 2000 pesetas, naturally those in moderate circumstances must have means for the purchase of fractional tickets. These fractions of a full ticket may be obtained at the places displaying the "Sorteo de Navidad" signs. As a return on the capital invested by the seller, a charge of five to ten céntimos is made on each fractional share sold.

The results of the drawings are announced on the 22nd of December, and so keen is the interest, that in the large cities of the mainland, such as Madrid, Barcelona, Valencia, and Sevilla, loud speakers are set up in the public squares to broadcast the results of the drawings.

The Rock of Gibraltar.

From the very interesting booklet "The Rock of Gibraltar," published by the Prudential Insurance Company of America, we glean the rather astonishing information that for nearly three quarters of a century following the capture of Gibraltar by the allied British and Dutch fleets in 1704 its possession was not highly prized or valued by the English. In the British Parliament it was often referred to as a "barren rock" and "a useless charge". Further, Admiral Sir George Rooke, the hero of Gibraltar, was treated with scant regard. The Court showed him coldness. In the House of Commons an address of congratulation to Queen Anne over the capture was carried by a bare majority, and only after an acrimonious debate; but the House of Lords maintained a sullen silence. Subsequently George I. was ready to surrender the fortress to Spain as a bribe, to get Spain to join the Quadruple Alliance-Great Britain, France, Austria, and The Netherlands. The offer was made by England, and it was haughtily and contemptuously rejected. Spain, not England, was mistress of the Mediterranean at that time. During the next fifty years three proposals were made to Spain to surrender the Rock for considerations, but all fell through like the first. In 1757 a fifth offer to surrender was made by the British Cabinet, William Pitt directing Sir Benjamin Keene, British Minister at Madrid, to offer Gibraltar to Spain as the price of a Spanish alliance to be contracted with the object of wresting Minorca from France, which had captured the latter place from the British the year preceding, after a siege of seventy days. Sir Benjamin made the offer, and it was promptly rejected.

The sixth and last offer to restore the Rock to the Spaniards was made by the Shelburne ministry in 1783. The price demanded was Porto Rico and Trinidad. This offer was also rejected, Spain insisting then, with vigor and determination, as she had always, that Gibraltar belonged to her of right and should be ceded unconditionally.

Another Speed Record for England.

With the restoration of its former schedule, the "Cheltenham Flier," of the Great Western Railway, has regained the title of the fastest start-to-stop train in the world. The run from Swindon to Paddington, a distance of 77½ miles, is made without a stop of any kind in 67 minutes, or an average speed of 69.18 miles per hour. It is reported that the run has been made in one hour flat. Previous to the resumption of the present schedule the "Royal York" of the Canadian Pacific held this honor, with a run of 124 miles in 108 minutes. These speeds greatly exceed any schedules attempted by trains in other countries. The next best performance is the run of the "Steel City Express," of the Pennsylvania Railroad, U. S. A., which steams for 104 miles at an average of 59.6 miles per hour, or almost 10 miles per hour slower than the "Cheltenham Flier".

"Bacia."

Although the red and white pole as a sign of the barber shop in England and the United States seems destined in the near future to become as rare as the picturesque cigar store Indian, the symbol of the Spanish barber guild continues to be in general use, not only here but throughout the mainland. This interesting symbol, called a "bacia," usually displayed in duplicate over the doorway of the shop, is a small replica of the basin which used to be employed for cleaning the face after shaving. The rather curious shape is occasioned by the cutting away of a semi-circular section from the rim in order to closely fit the basin around the throat. Perhaps the desuetude of the barber pole may be due to the fact that it is a symbol of duties no longer practiced by barbers, namely, that of cupping and leeching.
