High Mass

HOLY Thursday, the day when every Mallorquin who can possibly get there visits the Cathedral, regardless of how he may feel about the political differences between Church and State. A constant stream of black figures passing in and out of the big doors. Rapid chatter, hushed as the devout enter, resumed as they emerge. It is the day of the grand procession, but this year there is no procession.

Inside the magnificent basilica the gloom is pierced with shafts of soft, delicate light. The candles on the altar gleam palely and the deep voice of the priest echoes gently over the heads of the worshippers.

At the foot of the entrance steps is a changing group of kneeling figures. Señoritas, lovely for this day in tall comb and graceful mantilla which gives charm to the plainest face. Young dandies spreading silk handkerchiefs to save their trousers. Children carefully imitating their elders. Old men and women bowed in passionate devotion, careless of their stiffening joints until at last they rise with much painful effort from the cold stone. More casual observers giving only a half curtsy and a bob of the head.

The bright beams shot down from the stained glass windows are fading; the candles take on additional brilliance, flickering proudly as the shadows of dusk gather under the lofty roof, softening the outline of the arches and flattering the attentive faces of the congregation. The chanting voices gain in solemnity and majesty of sound as the incomparable strains of Palestrina's music pour forth from the choir.

Suddenly among the black-clad, kneeling figures there is a man in rough tweed coat and gray trousers a white-haired, stern-faced northerner. A Scot, a Presbyterian and a soldier, he has succumbed to the mystic appeal of Holy Thursday in the Cathedral, and there are tears in his eyes as he bows his head in prayer.

Palma's Poblein.

PALMA's greatest need, a plentiful supply of pure water, is one of the simplest of engineering problems to solve, and need not be excessive in cost, especially in a country where common labor is cheap. This is the opinion of the American engineer, Mr. Huntington Harris, who in the two weeks he has been in Mallorca has taken a professional interest in the water situation.

The hills all over the island form a natural watershed and at the same time provide most of the natural barriers needed to impound the water which at present runs off to the sea in great quantities. The dry stream beds and gullies, so frequently encountered, are ample evidence of this waste.

Mr. Harris is well qualified to speak on such an engineering subject. He has recently built the elevated express motor highway along the west side of Manhattan, which has done much to relieve New York traffic congestion. He has built dams and tunnels and skyscrapers and bridge piers, and one of his jobs was to bore water supply tunnels 600 feet below the surface in New York.

The first step, he says, towards solving Palma's problem is to establish a dozen or so hydrographic stations to determine the areas of greatest rainfall. Nature has done most of the rest of the work in supplying watersheds and reservoir basins.

Mr. Harris is convinced that Mallorca's popularity as a tourist centre is just beginning, but in the present scarcity of water he sees the greatest obstacle to realization of the island's possibilities as a resort. It is impossible, he points out, that with the cess pools for sewage as close to the water tanks and wells as they now are of necessity, Palma cannot escape the consequences of exposure to disease, especially typhoid. This menace becomes greater as the city grows, and while the danger is not immediate, it must be taken into account by all who desire to see the island thrive as a popular Mediterranean resort.

A Direct Route to New York

While Mr. Fred H. Citriolo has been in Palma arranging for one of the ships of the American Export Lines to call here to make a direct run to New York, the deputy for the Balearics in the Cortes was proposing a measure which may make it easier to inaugurate the regular service which is planned between Palma and New York.

The passenger-cargo liner, Exilona, will call at this port April 10 to take on passengers and freight for New York via Alicante, Málaga and Seville. The proposal to the Cortes was for the abolition or at least great reduction of the heavy port charges which have kept many ships, including those of the American Export Lines, from making this a regular port of call.

The Exilona is of nearly 9,000 tons and has special accommodations for about thirty-five passengers. Several have already booked passage from here, and more are expected to take advantage of the direct route to the United States. Mr. Citriolo, manager of the passenger department of the Line, has been staying at the Grand Hotel while arranging for the Exilona's call. His ships have a reputation for making passengers comfortable; they have all-American crews, and they make Americans feel at home by providing a bar so much like a speakeasy that home-sick voyagers have been known to weep on beholding the little sliding panel through which drinks are served.

Schembri Agencia on the Avenida Antonio Maura are agents for the Exilona here.

Art Exhibits

Mr. Royden Wilkinson's exhibition of photographs taken in England, India, Norway and Mallorca continues in the English Tea Room, Terreno, for another week. Mr. Wilkinson is a member of the Professional Photographers' Association of London. The enlargements of his pictures were made by Charles in Terreno.

There opened yesterday at the Galerías Costa, an exhibition of ceramics by Daniel Zuloaga. His subjects are mainly religious. The ceramics will be on view until the 31st of this month when the Galerías will open an exhibit of paintings and sculpture by Mallorquin and Catalonian artists, including Runñol, Mir, Carles, Anglada and Verité and Clarassó, the sculptor.

The exhibition of Erwin Hubert's paintings at the Hotel Victoria, closes today, Sunday.

Guild Rehearsals Begin

A.A. Milne's The Dover Road is the Palma Theatre Guild's choice for its first production, the night of April 27. The show, which enjoyed considerable success in London and New York, will be preceded by other entertainment.

Sybil Sutton-Vane, the Guild's producer, put The Dover Road in rehearsal, and the Guild has definitely acquired the use of the Bellver Theatre in Terreno (opposite Short's Tea Rooms) for the performance. In the cast will be Marlyn Brown, who has appeared in New York Theatre Guild Productions. He spoke the first lines in the first Guild production, Bonds of Interest, in New York.

Under the Guild system of management, the committee which is arranging the sale of memberships pointed out, there will be few tickets sold at the theatre or in the week or so before the performance. The best seats will go to members.

Easter Ball at Royal Tonight

By way of celebrating Easter Sunday, the Hotel Royal will hold a Gala Easter Ball. Dancing will start at 10 p.m. and as a special attraction, there will be Mallorquin dances, assisted by the Orquesta Mallorca. The ball room will be attractively decorated for the occasion and a large attendance is anticipated.

The President's Visit

Preparations for the visit of President Alcalá Zamora have been completed, down to the last petition concerning the needs of Mallorca. The cruiser which will bring the chief executive arrives Thursday morning, and the President will remain until Saturday night. The complete program for the three days was published in the MAJORCA SUN last week. In the President's honor, the railroad company announces, all tickets will be reduced 30 per cent in price during his stay.

OF PERSONAL INTEREST

A rhythmic interpretation of Brahms, Bach, Chopin and several Spanish harmonies will be given by Mlle. Nadine Lang at the Teatro Principal soon. Mlle. Lang is a disciple of the Rudolf von Laban school of interpretive dancing made so popular in England and America by Mary Wigman. Before she came to Palma for her health two years ago, Mlle. Lang gave several exhibitions of her art in Switzerland and in appreciation of her complete recovery here, she will give this particular performance, the proceeds of which will go to the local hospital funds.

Rhythmic expression of classical harmonies has always played an important part in music appreciation. Since the days of the Greeks there have been rival schools of interpretive and rhythmic dancing, but not until comparatively recently has the average person learned to regard it as part of the daily routine that makes for perfect health. Mlle. Lang illustrated what can be done in this respect when a group of children she taught here gave an exhibition last November at the Circulo Mallorquin.

Frau Lene Schneider-Kainer, the German painter, has returned to her home in Terreno from her trip to Barcelona. The exhibition of her pictures at the Galeria Layetana was widely acclaimed in the Barcelona press and there was an even more solid evidence of public appreciation in the way of sales. Frau Schneider-Kainer's lecture on her trip through Persia and Tibet, illustrated with her own pictures done at the time, was also extremely popular.

Col. N. Cartmell and Dr. F. Gilbert Scott, both of Terreno, left on Friday for Ibiza to spend two days on that island. They expect to return Monday morning.

Mr. James Lindo Webb, the former British Vice-Consul in Palma, has just completed his guide of Mallorca. Mr. Webb is one of the oldest English speaking residents here, and knows the island as do few foreigners.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Mappin of Terreno left suddenly for Marseilles last Tuesday. It is expected they will return soon.

WONDER OF THE WORLD

After a long illness, Lieutenant-Colonel W. A. Eaton, late of the Buffs, died last Wednesday at the age of sixty-two. Funeral services were held from his home in Terreno the following day, and a host of friends attended the interment at the Municipal Cemetery. Col. Eaton is survived by his widow.

Visitors and residents of Mallorca will have another opportunity to try their luck when the draw for the Derby sweepstake is held in Joe's Bar, Terreno, eight days before the race.

Tickets for the Irish Hospital Sweepstake on the Derby may be obtained from Mr. F. G. Short.

Mallorquin Dancing

The Boleros Mallorquines, the Mallorquin dancers who gave a performance at Victor's Snack Bar on St. Patrick's night, will present a matinee at the same place next Wednesday, March 30, at five o'clock. The dancing is being presented for those who find attendance at night inconvenient but who have expressed a desire to see the dancers.

Señor Calafell, who is the favorite to win on Tuesday, took his semi-final round after a hard struggle with Dr. Francisco Servera on Wednesday afternoon. Both played cautiously and steadily through three long sets, Calafell being just a bit more reliable in the emergencies. In the other semi-final round Salas defeated Loth in a three set match.

In the women's singles, Miss Kusterko will play Miss Spittall for the championship, also on Tuesday.

Nearly all the losers get another chance to do better, as the Club tournament is followed by tournaments for the championship of the Balearic Islands.

The results of last week's play follow.

Men's Singles

2nd Round. Salas beat T. Alomar 9-7, 6-3; Reloorsley beat Forteza 6-0, 6-1; Servera beat Sanchez.

3rd Round. Salas beat Reloorsley 6-1, 6-0; Loth beat Roig 6-4, 4-6, 6-2; Servera beat Dominguez 6-4, 6-4; Calafell beat Clay 6-4, 6-4.

Semi-finals. Calafell beat Servera 5-7, 6-4, 6-4; Salas beat Loth 4-6, 7-5, 6-1.

Men's Doubles

Alomar-Calafell beat Covas-Ramis 6-3, 3-6, 6-3; Servera-Dominguez beat Gavett-Page 6-1, 7-5; Amoros-Roig beat Morey-Sanchez 6-1, 6-4.

Women's Singles

2nd Round. Miss Kusterko beat Mme. de la Bruyere 6-2, 6-2; Miss Atkinson beat Miss Windom; Miss Austin beat Miss Walker 6-2, 6-4.

3rd Round. Miss Kusterko beat Miss Atkinson 6-2, 6-3; Miss Spittall won from Miss Austin by default.

Mallorca Inspires Some Lyric Prose.

The enthusiasm for Mallorca has spread as far as the Antipodes. A young Australian journalist who visited the island has sung the praises of the Balearics through the medium of a Sydney newspaper.

She tells how, in the Middle Ages, the people on the mainland referred to Mallorca as the "Calm Island" because of the peace and quiet that prevailed here while all around raged political and religious battles. She recommends to our compatriots whose lives are a continuous political turmoil, the beauty, comfort and peace of Mallorca, "where the people are simpatico and where indolence is not regarded as a sin."

Homage having been duly paid to the natural beauties, the costumes and customs of the people, this young woman paints a vivid picture of the dietetic attractions of the place. She described the lusciousness of an ensaimada:

"To the Anglo-Saxon who has never been initiated into the mysteries of this particular product of the culinary art it is merely a sweet bun—a kind of pastry. But it is nothing like a pastry as we know it at home—it makes one think of pastry only because it is so superior to any mixture of flour and water that has ever been baked in an oven outside of Mallorca."

Those who were at the Exposition in Barcelona in 1929 will readily assent to that. Did they not send over from here the prize bakers of that delicacy—a little band of people who have held the secret in their family for generations, and who have had the honor of satisfying royal palates with that comestible in Mallorca? However, it was agreed at the Exposition that only one hundred miles away it was impossible to turn out an ensaimada of the same downy texture, the same glossy crispness, and the delicacy of flavor as those served for breakfast every morning on the island.

It was not their ovens—they had their own sent over to Barcelona—nor was it the flour nor the rain water that is used here. Those, too, had been shipped to the mainland. And so they decided it was the air over there that was at fault!

That is why, every night when the Barcelona boat sails, you can see messengers running along at the last minute with the big round, flat boxes in which ensaimadas are packed, for after all Barcelona must be fed.

Mallorca's Gift to California

THE visit of the President of the Republic to Mallorca will mark the final stages of the work of restoring the house in which Junipero Serra, the Mallorquin founder of San Francisco, Cal., was born. The little rustic cottage will then be presented to the American city.

The Rotary Club of Mallorca, which bought the house and has financed the restoration, announces that the work will be completed by May in time for the meeting of the Rotary Clubs of Spain. For a year the Club has been engaged on this project, and a local architect, Don Guillermo Forteza, has been in active charge of the reconstruction in the little village of Petra, which will be one of the points of interest President Alcala Zamora has desired to visit. He will be able to see the little cottage, which was a crumbling ruin when the Rotary Club took it over, now restored almost to its original condition.

Explaining the motives which inspired the project and the means by which it has been carried out, the Club has issued a statement which reads in part:

"The Rotary Club has desired, through the medium of this distinguished figure in our history, to signalize by some definite act the friendship and ties which unite California and Mallorca. Fra Junipero Serra was born in Petra and in that village there still remains the house in which the enterprising Franciscan was born. For months the Rotary Club of Mallorca cherished the idea of buying this house, and at last the owner agreed to sell it. The Club is today the proprietor of the birthplace of the great California missionary. The Club has acquired it with the purpose of presenting it to the city of San Francisco and thus to establish a close bond of fraternal union between the country where the colonizer was born and the country which was the scene of his chief labors.

"The first step was to restore the modest dwelling to the character which it possessed in the eighteenth century. Then the Club requested the Rotary Club of San Francisco to act as intermediary to present our offer to the municipality of that city.

"But we have thought that this ought not to be merely a building, a cold, inanimate collection of stone and mortar. The Club has aspired to infuse into it the breath of life, a living spirit, and for this we wish to make the house a museum, not a museum personal to Fra Junipero Serra, but a museum of the civilization and colonization of California, housed in the humble cottage from Petra. We have been able to secure the coöperation of California Rotarians to this end. The reconstruction of the house and the installation of the Museum we must complete by May, for in this month will be held in Palma the conference of the Rotary Clubs of Spain."

The purchase of the house, the work of restoration, the assembling of the Museum have represented a considerable financial outlay, all of which has been borne by the Rotary Club of Mallorca.

The work of Fra Junipero has spread the name of Mallorca more widely than that of any other man. Born and educated in Petra, his studies in the library of the Franciscan monks inspired him with a desire to emulate the achievements of the great Catholic Spanish missionaries to the heathen. He was sent to Mexico, and his success with the Indians was so marked that he was charged to bring Christianity to the natives of California. Besides the mission which was the nucleus of San Francisco, he established others at San José, Santa Barbara and other California cities. His body now lies in Monterey.

The importance of his missionary activities has been recognized in the United States in the form of monuments and statues, and a bust of the Mallorquin friar was recently placed in the Hall of Fame in Washington.

LATEST NEWS.

London.—Parliament has adjourned for the Easter recess until April 5 with the promise of having to consider what Minister of the Dominions Thomas called a very serious communication from Ireland as soon as the Houses reassemble. Meanwhile President de Valera of the Irish Free State is insisting that his election proves the desire of an overwhelming majority of Irishmen for the abolition of the oath of allegiance, regardless of treaty stipulations.

The Irish situation, however, is no longer considered the life and death affair that it used to be before the establishment of the Free State, and there is little alarm about the consequences.

Paris.—The banks of France have reported that they have encountered two million counterfeit ten-dollar bills. The bills are said to have been made in New York and shipped to France.

Washington.—To safeguard American labor in much the same way that England safeguards English labor, President Hoover has signed the bill which prohibits foreign musicians from playing in American theatres, hotels, etc. Exceptions will be made in the cases of musicians "of exceptional talent".

Madrid.—The Railroads Commission and the Ministry of Finance have agreed on an additional expenditure of 50,000,000 pesetas for Spanish railroads.

Bucharest.—It is reported, but not confirmed, that there have been risings against the Russian Government in Moldavia and the Ukraine. The reports add that Soviet troops have been sent against the rebels.

Berlin.—According to reports received here from Rio de Janeiro, the chiefs of the Brazilian coffee industry have decided to negotiate for acceptance of an offer to exchange their product for Ruhr coal.

Paris.—As a measure of relieving unemployment in France, many churches are being built. The amount spent in this way is comparable to the sums being spent in other countries for public works in efforts to give employment.

No U.S. Tariff Change

Washington.—In spite of a narrow Democratic majority in the House of Representatives, no reduction of the high American tariff rates is to be expected. Senator Reed Smoot, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, made that plain in a speech before the Upper House on Friday. Rejecting all arguments that a lowering of tariff walls would encourage world trade, the Senator expressed the majority view that this is no time to lower any sort of taxes, especially such as, in his opinion, tend to protect American industry.

Animated by the same tender feeling for the country's hard-hit industry, the House of Representatives rejected a proposal to place a two per cent tax on all business transactions.

Berlin.—Germany celebrated on Friday the fiftieth anniversary of Robert Koch's discovery of the tuberculosis germ.

New York.—The hurricane which devastated large sections of Alabama last week left a death list of about 400 in its wake. There were over a thousand persons injured, and the property damage has run into uncounted millions.

Friedrichshafen.—The dirigible Graf Zeppelin has finished the first of its regular flights across the Atlantic, telegrams from Pernambuco announced. The great airship is inaugurating a regular service from Germany to South America.

Display of Spanish Ceramics

Señor Juan Ruiz de Luna has brought to Palma an exhibition of ceramics, typical products of Talavera, the centre of this craft in Spain. His plaques and vases are on display at Vidrierías Gordiola in the Calle Victoria and will remain there all of this week.

Señor Ruiz de Luna has transferred to clay some of the best known works of such artists as El Greco, Velazquez, Goya, Rafael, Rubens and Botticelli. Some of them are on vases, some framed like paintings, which they rather resemble at a distance. For centuries Talavera has been famous as the centre of Spanish ceramic art, and the products of the Ruiz de Luna factory are carefully compared with the output of sixteenth and seventeenth century craftsmen, whose works are preser-

Some of the exhibits here boast a wonderfully delicate coloring, achieved by men working in the old traditions of the artisan guilds. Many of the portrait heads are good, and there is a vase splendidly decorated with three Goyas. Perhaps the best bit in the show is a reproduction of Rubens' Satyrs in which the expressions are fine. The more elaborate pieces, especially the Grecos, are a bit too pretentious. A number of the exhibits have already been sold, the prices ranging from fifty to three hundred and seventy pesetas.

Variety Show for Palma Charities

A variety entertainment, which is being arranged by Lady Sheppard, who is living at Fornalutx near Sóller, will be given in the Teatro Principal, Palma, on the afternoon of Wednesday, April 6, at three o'clock. The proceeds of the entertainment will be devoted to local charities.

Among those who will take part in the performance will be Mme. Renée Mattez-Eldere, the pianist, a pupil of Massenet. Mr. Roydon Wilkinson will play some Hungarian melodies which he has harmonized himself.

Another part of the show will be a one act play, The Rest Cure, by Gertrude Jennings, which will be acted by the Sóller Players Club. This comedy was extremely well received when the company gave it at the Hotel Ferrocarril in Sóller on the first of this month. Mr. Dudley Dean Bigelow, of the New Yorkers Repertory Company, will play the lead in Palma, a part taken in Sóller by Sir Norman Kemp, who has since left Mallorca.

The play will be explained in Spanish for the benefit of those in the audience who may not understand English, it being hoped that many Spaniards will attend.

"As this is, we believe, the first entertainment of the sort held in the Island, we hope that it may be well supported by both visitors and residents", says Lady Sheppard.

Letters from Readers

To the Editor:
 Why is it that every resident of Santa Catalina and points nearer Palma wait patiently for half an hour to enjoy the privilege of riding on the crowded Ca's Catalá trams? Returning to Ca's Catalá or San Agustin for luncheon or dinner, one sees large crowds waiting for the tram, and most of them go no further than Santa Catalina, while the Santa Catalina trams are empty. This situation could be remedied by charging a minimum of 25 céntimos on the Ca's Catalá trams, and foreign visitors would have a far better impression of Mallorca if they could be accomodated with at least standing room on the trams, which are now as bad as any in the largest cities of the world.

After all we who bring Palma her prosperity do not need to find here the same conditions that make home unbearable.

Bull Fights Begin May 8

The bull fight season for Palma will begin on Sunday, May 8, a little earlier than last year, it has been officially announced. Three good matadors will take part in the first show of the season. Although the most acclaimed fighters seldom get to Palma, and then at the height of the season, the Plaza de Toros here is one of the best in Spain.

Not all the fights use horses, which is the feature to which most Englishmen and Americans object, but the May 8 spectacle will not be of the new-fashioned sort.

Col. Wood Replies

To the Editor:
 I have read E.A.C.'s protest to my letter. It is useless to argue with a mentality which he apparently has; i.e. unsympathetic and averse to any reforms towards better treatment of birds and animals. I take it that he is a resident of Palma and so has become used to the sights of cruelty that I and other visitors have noticed.

If he thinks that every shilling is needed in England, why does he not do his bit and spend his pesetas there.

It is true that we nobles indulge in legitimate sport, but as Englishmen who do not torture or maltreat birds and animals. He forgets that there is a difference between sport that is not cruel and downright cruelty.

I can assure E. A. C. that most of us English visitors would rather see the partridges wild and free, and we have no wish to eat the partridges or the poor songsters, thrushes, blackbirds and starlings that I have seen in heaps in the market and which I hope no one will buy.

I am leaving Palma and my sincere hope is that some one will take this matter up and remove the
