THE WAY OF THE PESETA ON 'CHANGE

Steady Rise, Due to Government Economy, Taxes and Loans, Is Not Expected to Go so Far that Foreign Visitors Need Fear Results.

THE slow, steady rise in the value of the peseta is at first sight an alarming phenomenon to those who are living here on dollars, pounds, marks and francs. For a month, Spanish exchange has been going up, and the horrid prospect of par seems to threaten vaguely, very vaguely. The return to a rate of five or six pesetas to the dollar and twenty or twenty-five to the pound would deprive Mallorca of one of its chief charms in the eyes of some.

Of course that much of a rise is a very dim and distant prospect indeed, desired by the Spaniards quite as little as by the foreign visitor. However, between the cheap peseta of a month ago and the actual par value, there is a vast field for stabilization.

What has driven the peseta into this field and where will it finally come to rest? These are questions that a good many interested visitors to the Island have been asking at their banks. But no financial authority is so rash as to give a definite answer. He will not even permit his name to be used in connection with his opinions. Nevertheless, the experts have opinions, and they are based on experience and knowledge, although international finance is such a tricky business that the best laid calculations can be upset in a moment.

No Approach to Par

In the first place, they think it can be taken for granted that the peseta will not in the near future approach par. Any such sudden movement upward would disrupt Spanish trade almost as much as an equally sudden drop. In the peseta's present rise, no one who has followed the fluctuations of national currencies intelligently believes that there is any danger to the budgets of travellers in Spain.

Early last autumn, just before sterling went off the gold standard, it was the aim of the Spanish Government to prevent the peseta from going below about 55 to the pound or 11 to the dollar. At the time, it was impossible to check the drop, but now the Republic has been able to take control of the situation, and it is extremely unlikely that any attempt will be made to boost the peseta back to a higher value than that set as a minimum last year. Indeed, few think that the peseta will actually go so high.

Rise in Prices

The determination of the Government to stabilize the peseta sums up the reasons for the rise in the currency. Following the example of England, sacrifices were made to narrow expenditures to the amount permitted by receipts. Additional taxes have been imposed.

The prices of tobaccos, petrol and all the other monopolized commodities were increased. The tax on all liquors was raised from 80 to 90 centimos a litre and the internal revenue tax on beer was lifted from 10 to 15 pesetas per 100 litres. Other taxes were also increased similarly, tiny amounts on individual items, but providing handsome revenues when added together.

In addition, a more rigid economy than has been usual in Spain was instituted. Government expenditures have been greatly reduced, both in the military and the civil establishment. The «extras» which were once an important part of every official's income have been ruthlessly pruned.

The various industrial taxes have been increased, and although there is some complaint about the increased cost of commodities, the increased contributions and the decreased official salaries, the satisfaction over the resulting improvement in Spanish finance more than makes up for it.

But the greatest influence in the rise of the peseta seems to have been the successful internal loan of last month, the response to which clearly showed the confidence of the country in the essential soundness of the government. The loan was a 500,000,000 peseta bond issue maturing in two years and paying 5½ per cent. It was greatly and speedily oversubscribed, requests for 628,062,000 pesetas being received the day the books were opened. This result was achieved in spite of the fact that the entire amount of the bonds had to be paid at once. This is contrary to Spanish custom. Usually the bond purchaser pays only a part of the price down and the rest in installments.

The surprising over subscription of an issue that had to be paid for at once took place on April 12. That week the peseta started to rise and has been going up ever since.

Chopin Festival

The opening of the Chopin Festival last week by Arthur Rubinstein, the pianist, and the Choir of Mallorca has made it almost a certainty that this will be an annual musical event. Mallorca is now assured of music fully as good if not better than that of last year's Festival and, joined with it, benefits of a far smoother organization.

The greatest interest in the first programs was in the singing and playing in the Cartuja of Valldemosa last Thursday. Where Chopin and George Sand were once ostracized, music lovers gathered to pay tribute to the composer's memory; tribute which took the form of extremely good music.

It was perhaps unfortunate that the performance took place in the corridors, although the acoustics were unexpectedly good. Another year, perhaps, it can be arranged to have the music in the Church, a more appropriate setting pictorially as well as musically.

The Choir, excellently trained by Don Juan Thomás in the comparatively short time he has worked with them, performed some difficult Spanish and Polish works very well. The men's voices were better than the women's, and the best of the afternoon's offerings was Guerrero's Villanesca Espiritual, sung by the male voices.

Rubinstein fulfilled the expectations of those who had known they were going to hear one of the best of the modern pianists. He was equally good at the Teatro Principal on Wednesday evening. Strong and sure, he puts great feeling into his work, and his rendition of the Chopin pieces was in the spirit of the occasion, although he was perhaps better with the Prelude, Choral and Fugue of Franck.

The Valldemosa audience was unusually large and appreciative, filling the corridors quite out of sight of the performers. It was composed, in the great majority, of Mallorquins, who thus showed their enthusiasm for the Festival.

The next event in the celebration of this musical fiesta will take place next Sunday evening, May 15th, when the Symphony Orchestra of Madrid will play at the Teatro Principal. There will, in fact, be three concerts by the Orchestra and in the same functions George Copeland, the American pianist, will appear.

The Orchestra will be under the baton of its own conductor, Enrique F. Arbós, and as guest conductors there will be Alexandre Tansman and Baltasar Samper. The concert on Sunday will begin at 9:30 p.m.; Monday's will be at 5 in the afternoon and Tuesday's at 9:30 in the evening. Tickets will be available at all the hotels and a good many of the shops that cater to the visitor.

OF PERSONAL INTEREST

The Football Club of Genova is giving a party tonight for Mme. Natacha Rambova, who has moved into that suburb and is a leader in its development as a centre for foreign residents. The former wife of Rudolph Valentino presented the Club with a handsome donation towards the purchase of the new football field which is being built for the use of the citizens of Genova. It is in appreciation of this gift that tonight's entertainment is being offered to her.

There were two parties going on simultaneously last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Friede in Genova. One consisted of a Mallorquin group of twenty, most of whom live in Santa Catalina. They were dressed in their peasant costumes and danced their folk dances to a native orchestra under swinging lanterns strung along the balcony, while the other group, made up of foreign residents, looked on.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Jacobsen, Mr. and Mrs. Jacobo Sureda, Mr. Whit Burnett, Miss Martha Foley, Mrs. Louise Beach and Miss Betty Brown.

Exhibits

Mlle. Helene de Marguerie opened at the Galerías Costa yesterday (Saturday) evening an exhibition of her photographic portrait studies, varied with one or two commercial pieces.

She has selected for her show a number of unusually interesting subjects. None of them were strictly beautiful, but every face mirrors something of the character of the person who sat for Mlle. Marguerie. At least that is the impression her work gives. The portraits would indicate that the originals were not flattered but that the artist had brought out the best in them. Her commercial studies are less interesting although they give good poster-like, decorative effects.

Mlle. Marguerie is transferring her studio from Paris to Palma. She expects to open her new quarters at No. 7 Calle de Sagrera during the coming week. Her show will continue at the Galerías Costa for ten days or two weeks.

Also at the Galerías is an exhibition of plans for small cottages and houses by Mr. A. E. Middlehurst. He has designed these buildings especially for the Mallorquin scene.

LATEST NEWS

Paris.—While attending an exhibition on Friday afternoon, President Paul Doumer of France was shot by a Russian physician who is believed to be mad. M. Doumer, who is in his seventy-sixth year and is almost unique among French statesmen in having no personal enemies, was wounded in the head, and on Saturday, all hope of his recovery was abandoned. The assassin when arrested explained to the police that he was a member of a Russian «fascist» organization, that France had been poisoned by bolshevism, that the French were the enemies of the Russians and therefore he had desired to kill M. Doumer.

Cairo.—An attempt to bomb a train in which Premier Sidky Pasha and others of the Egyptian Ministry were riding failed when the bomb exploded prematurely under another train, killing two railway employes and wounding three.

London.—The House of Commons passed the new high tariff law by 405 to 70 in the absence of Prime Minister MacDonald, who is recuperating from an operation on his eye.

Atlanta, Georgia.—Al Capone, the Chicago gangster, has been transferred from the Leavenworth, Kan., prison to the Federal Penitentiary here and has been assigned work in the laundry. Moving picture companies are making pretty offers for the privilege of filming the gangster engaged in honest toil.

Washington.—President Hoover, in a message to Congress, has urged that body to take immediate action in voting new taxes in order to quiet the unrest in the country which has reached such proportions that Senator Reed of Pennsylvania is crying that the United States needs a Dictador.

Vienna.—The Austrian Cabinet, which has for some time been faced with the most difficult problems arising from the financial crisis, has resigned.

New York.—Gaston B. Means, former Department of Justice agent who was involved most unpleasantly in the scandals of the Harding Administration, has been arrested on a charge of swindling Mrs. Edward B. MacLean, wife of the newspaper magnate, to the extent of 100,000 dollars. He told her that he knew who had kidnapped the Lindbergh baby and could recover the child if he had enough money.

London.—J.H. Thomas, Secretary of State for the Dominions, made it clear in the House of Commons that his Government will take the stand that President de Valera of the Irish Free State has deliberately broken the Treaty of 1921 by abolishing the oath of allegiance to the King. Mr. Thomas pointed out that Mr. de Valera had made no effort to reach an amicable understanding before proposing the abolition.

A TRANSLATION FROM DEBUSSY

Music has always been expressed in other forms than sound — in color or movement, each in itself an independent means of translating the composer's theme. Primitive men used first of all rhythm and sound and then developed the interpretation by color.

Still later all three were combined, and thus was evolved the art of rhythmic dancing, an orchestration which can be rendered by a single performer. An exponent of this art, Mlle. Nadine Lang will give a recital, the first of its kind ever seen in Mallorca, next Wednesday evening at the Teatro Principal. The performer is a disciple of the Rudolf von Laban school which produced Mary Wigman, one of the most popular classic dancers in England and America.

Mlle. Lang will illustrate her own interpretations of such composers as Rachmaninoff, Debussy and Poldini. Her costumes, designed by Frau Lene Schneider-Kainer, the German painter, are in keeping with the originality of her dances, among which there will be a fantasy called Groteska, a Largo, and the artiste's conception of how a Vals de Viena should be executed.

The proceeds of the performance will be given to the local hospital funds as an expression of gratitude on the part of Mlle. Lang for the recovery of her health in Mallorca. The various public utili-

Tennis Finals

Two Americans will meet this morning (Sunday) at 10:30 to decide the tennis championship of Palma for the year of 1932. At 10:30 on the courts of the Mallorca Lawn Tennis Club Matthews and Gray will play a three out of five set match, in which Matthews, an American writer now living in Deyá, is the favorite although Gray has displayed some excellent tennis in disposing of the Club tournament finalists, Servera and Calafell, in the first two rounds.

Matthews defeated Dominguez the only Mallorquin to enter the semi-finals, without much difficulty after losing a hard fought first set. Although the tournament was an open one, there were only sixteen entrants for the men's singles and five in the women's singles. In the latter, Miss Windom and Miss Spittall will meet in the finals.

The summaries are as follows:

Men's Singles

First Round: Dominguez defeated Jimenez, 6-1, 6-1; Borel won from Amoros by default; Matthews defeated Roig; Alomar defeated Estrany, 6-1, 8-6; Gray defeated Calafell, 8-6, 6-4; Servera defeated Satal, 8-6, 6-2; Clay defeated Fortesa 6-0, 6-0; Gavett defeated Estena 2-6, 10-8; 6-4.

Second Round: Dominguez defeated Borel, 6-1, 6-2; Matthews defeated Alomar, 6-1, 6-1; Gray defeated Servera, 6-3, 8-6; Gavett defeated Clay, 6-2, 0-6, 7-5.

Semi-finals: Matthews defeated Dominguez, 6-8, 6-2, 6-3; Gray defeated Gavett, 6-4, 6-1.

Women's Singles

First Round: Miss Windom defeated Miss Duviillard, 7-5, 6-4.

Second Round (Semi-final): Miss Windom defeated Mme. de la Bruyere, 8-6, 0-6, 6-3; Miss Spittall defeated Miss Walker, 6-1, 6-1.

The Light That Failed

For nearly two hours early yesterday evening, a good part of Palma was without electric light or power, and a good deal of inconvenience was caused because, shortly after the current failed, the skies darkened for a heavy shower.

There was a general movement towards the electric light switches, and then a general hunt for candles and oil lamps which are never altogether discarded in canny Palma households for the uncertainty of the electricity supply is pretty well known.

Discussion of the gloom that descended upon so many places in the heart of the city was enlivened by a good many choice bits. There was the story of the man who had soaped himself thoroughly under the shower just as the water failed. When he called out to have the motor which pumped water turned on, he was informed that there was no current. Another spoke even more feelingly of having decided to cook with electricity, and having missed his dinner.

A third recalled that things used to be worse; several years ago before the present management of the Gas y Electricidad took over, Palma was without current for nine days.

An American made a few remarks about Spanish industrial efficiency, and a Spaniard reminded him that the local company is manned by foreigners, at least in the positions of chief responsibility.

But at last the light came on again, the gloom was dissipated, the rain stopped and glad cries rang out in the Comandancia de Carabineros, which was one of the places deprived of light.

It turned out that the trouble was caused by a few boys playing in the street. They accidentally broke one of the cables, and once the repair man got on the job, the damage was speedily fixed.

Service Villas

It is proposed as the latest development in real estate in Mallorca to put up a group of small villas with service, the idea being in general that of service flats. The site selected is Calamayor, and the tenants of the houses would be able to ring through to the main buildings for anything they wanted.

British Club Annual Meeting

On Friday evening the British Club held its twelfth annual meeting at the Club under the chairmanship of Mr. Norman King, H.M. Consul General. Despite a slightly decreased membership, the Club enjoyed an extremely satisfactory year, according to the report of the Governing Committee.

The seven vacancies on the Committee were filled by the election of the following members: Mr. G. Currell, Mr. H.G. Dennes, Mr. H.L. Gagnon, Mr. T. Hall, Mr. J. Thomson, Mr. S.A. Morris and Mr. A.G.F. Heather. These committeemen will serve for the year 1932-33.

The Hon. Auditors, Messrs. McAuliffe, Davis and Hope, were given a vote of thanks for their work of the past year and re-elected, and Mrs. Hughes was also given a vote of thanks for her work as Hon. Librarian.

In the course of his report, Mr. Dennes, the Hon. Secretary said:

«It is with great pleasure that I am able to remind you all that our Club, an organization now proved beyond any possible doubt to fulfill a definite need in the Colony, has, on the 21st January last, completed the 12th year of its existence.

«During these 12 years the Club has occupied three separate premises and has passed through more than one very critical period. In at least one of these periods it was generally feared that the Club would have to come to an end, but, mainly due to the great goodwill shown by all its members and to the energetic and helpful attitude displayed by certain individuals in particular, it became just possible to avoid such disaster.

«Up to the present we may be indeed satisfied that the faith and goodwill, which alone made it possible to carry on, has been fairly justified, and, without wishing to be unduly optimistic, I think that the present position and prospects of the Club may be considered as being definitely favourable.

«I will continue, therefore, if I may, to comment briefly upon the Club's general affairs during the preceding 12 months. I feel that I must very especially call your attention to one exceptionally important item. And that is that we have, for the first time since 1924 been able to take definite steps towards the liquidation of some long outstanding debts in the form of Club bonds - Pts. 3,000 of the remaining liability of Pts. 30,100 having been paid off.

«Membership has, during the last year, tended to decline slightly. On the 31st of March of this year the figure was 232 compared with 256 in the same month of 1931. There are now 100 lady and 132 men member as against 118 and 138 respectively last year. The cause of this decrease in membership is, I think, not difficult to seek when one takes the present general economic conditions into consideration and when one realizes, also, the number of families who have left Barcelona.

»The Library Section has continued to function successfully as a result, very largely, we all know, of the capable management and self-sacrificing labour of Mrs. Hughes. To her, as also to those valuable helpers who have worked with her, the Club owes a very large debt of gratitude.

«The Bar has again had a successful year. As a result of the close control and careful buying and general administration I am happy to announce a substantial increase, amounting to 20 per cent, in the gross profits over the previous year's figure. This has been obtained, I would remark, without there having been any general increase in the selling prices of drinks or even any curtailment in measures. With the present advantageously purchased stocks on hand there is every hope of being able to continue for a while, at least, without any general increase in tariffs, although in some special cases, perhaps, it may become necessary to adjust prices in order to meet higher costs.

«Definite steps have now been taken to improve the patio at the back and make it more usable during the summer months by the purchase of several tables equipped with large sunshades. These will eventually be provided with electric light fittings with a view to making it more pleasant to sit out of doors for teas, reading, etc. than has been the case in the past. Further improvements are also under consideration and these may include the erection of some screening around the walls which would thus shut out something of the unsightliness of the present outlook and also provide a certain amount of very desirable privacy.

«The Club service has, I think, continued to entire satisfaction throughout the year, and I believe, in saying this, I am voicing the general feeling of all members.»

Advanced English Course for Spanish Students

Second Lesson

Grammarians have technical names for the various tenses, but I consider it better to disregard these and to use names more applicable to the order in which we will deal with the various tenses and their uses: names which will have a meaning for the student. There are two tenses which are used referring to the present: I call them:

First present: I go to the Cine every day.
Second present: I am going to the Cine now.

The first is used referring to actions which we are in the habit of performing every day or regularly, not necessarily actually doing.

The second refers to some action which we are actually performing, though not necessarily in the habit of doing. This tense could also be called «the actual present».

I go to the Cine every night with my friend.

I am going home now because I am tired.

I write many letters every day; now I am writing one in French.

I read the newspapers every morning before breakfast.

My sister is reading a novel in the dining room.

Somebody (some one) is knocking at the door.

If it is my cousin, tell him I am taking lunch.

He always comes when I am occupied with something.

I speak very much every day, consequently every night I am tired.

In what language are they speaking; I think it is Russian.

My cousin speaks to me always in French.

Why are you speaking to me in German; you know I do not understand you.

He never understands what I say to him.

Who is coming in? I think it is your brother.

What are you reading? I am reading THE SPANISH TIMES.

Where are you going now? I am going home because I am tired.

Where do you go every night? Sometimes I go to the Cine and sometimes to the Theatre.

What are you looking at? This lovely sky.

Do you read English papers? No, I do not, because I do not understand English well enough.

Who is that walking along the street? It is my brother, he is coming here. He comes here every day.

Tired Eyes

By Lynette

At this time of the year, I am always inundated with requests for the treatment of tired eyes, especially from our northern sisters whose eyes, unaccustomed to the trying glare of continual sunshine, are more apt to form crow's feet, puffiness, corner wrinkles, inflammation — in short, everything that pertains to tired eyes.

To beat this bogey, take two pieces of cotton wool, large enough to stretch across the face but only wide enough to cover the eyes. Dip one piece into very hot boiled water to which has been added a few drops of benzoin. Lay this over the eyes and leave it for five minutes, allowing the pores to open thoroughly. Next apply a good skin food, very generously patting it well into the eyelids and below the eyes.

Then lay the second piece of cotton over the eyes, leaving it on for ten minutes. Remove the surplus cream with a very soft towel, always with an upward and outward movement, and «slap» a little astringent around the eyes—rose water and eau de cologne.

If you possess an eye cup, fill it with plain rose water and bathe the eyes with this. It will smart a little at first but it leaves the eyes very brilliant and clear afterwards.

Contract Bridge Rules and Problems

By Felix

Readers and correspondents who have learnt to make a certain call on one hand and find that on repeating the same call with a somewhat similar hand, things do not turn out according to schedule, may be interested to know that the chances of having four hands dealt again in an exactly similar way are 53,644,737,792,839,237,440,000 to 1. Thus no definite calling can be settled on any hand but a certain definite system of calling used in conjunction with common sense and «card sense» can and has been established.

Having learnt the remote chances of having the four hands distributed in the same manner, my readers should if possible avoid making those absurd remarks so often heard after the play of a hand. «Culbertson says call one heart; Manning-Foster say three hearts. Last night I followed Culbertson and made a small slam, tonight I tried to do the same thing and went down.»

The fatal mistake of those players who study bridge from the books is that they pay too much attention to the chapters on calling and not on the play of the hands and the psychology of the game. After all, calling is the easiest part of the game. Master the book first so that you are not caught if you come across a partner who has done the same thing. How many players really have studied completely any system? Very few, I answer, and the best players are those who have grasped the fundamentals of all systems and know when and where and with whom to use them. Size up your partner first and don't try to play above him, which is what many so-called good players do. Never underrate your partner.

It is a serious fault to confuse your partner by using methods with which he is unfamiliar, as will happen if you try to play above him.

The solution of the problem published in the issue of April 24th is given below. Lack of space prevented its being printed in these columns last week.

S leads Club 2 and:

I. If W discards diamond, N discards diamond. S leads Club 3. If W discards another diamond, N discards heart and leads Heart 4, taking in N with Q, then leads Diamond 7 and trumps in S then leads small spade taking in N with K and leads K of Diamonds, then Diamond 8, discarding losing hearts and spades in S.

II. If W discards heart or spade, N discards the same, leading suit discarded, taking in N, then leads K of diamond and discards the low card of suit not first discarded in N. Then follows with diamond and trumps. S plays out balance of clubs, forcing W to discard so that after last trump is led, either one heart and one spade will be good in S or two hearts or two spades will be good in N.

East's play has no effect on results.

III. If W discards a heart, N also discards a heart. S then leads a heart and takes in N's hand who leads back the King of Diamonds. S discards a spade. N. then leads a small diamond which S trumps. If on this trumped trick, W discards a diamond, S leads a spade. If W has discarded a spade, S makes either two spades or one spade and one heart.

(Questions concerning the rules of Contract Bridge, the solution of problems and knotty points in the playing of hands will be gladly received from readers.)

Inter-Club Golf Match

Last year the Pedralbes Golf Club challenged the New Barcelona Club of San Cugat to a match, eight a side, by singles and foursomes, and successfully defended their challenge. On Sunday last the San Cugat Club with a slightly stronger team had hopes of turning the tables on their opponents on the first day's play, but the result showed that they will have to play very much better golf today on the Pedralbes course in order to obtain their revenge.

The Pedralbes team on Sunday confirmed the good impression they made last year. Sr. Macaya, who is undoubtedly the best of the Pedralbes players at the present time, disposed of Mr. Wihl with some ease, and Sr. Juliá won by a handsome margin against Sr. Batlló, who is one of the most promising of the younger San Cugat players. Sr. López Sert, who is undoubtedly the most aggressive match player of either side, won another match for Pedralbes by beating Mr. George St. Noble at the last hole. Of the San Cugat wins, Mr. Cretchley's was the best. Winning the 17th by a difficult putt he went to the 18th tee one up. Both he and his opponent, Sr. Giro, were over the barranco with their second, but Sr. Giró was lying in the thick grass on the bank at the top of the green. The latter, however, played a magnificent shot to within an inch of the hole, but Mr. Cretchley, nothing daunted, ran up close to the hole from 10 yards short of the green and holed the putt with perfect precision for the half and match.

In the foursomes played in the afternoon San Cugat met with disaster, losing three out of the four matches. Messrs. Witty and Wihl playing against Sres. Macaya and Giró won the only point for San Cugat on the 18th green, the other matches being never in doubt.

The scores were:

| | | | | |
|------------|-----------|---------------|-----------|---------------|
| Singles: | San Cugat | 5 | Pedralbes | 3 |
| Foursomes: | » | $\frac{1}{6}$ | » | $\frac{3}{6}$ |

During lunch Mr. Eddy, the Captain of the Club, presented the Madrid Cup to this year's winner, Sr. A. Batlló, who, although only a newcomer to the game has, as a result of assiduous practice, carried off a number of prizes, and is likely to be one of the best players the New Barcelona Golf Club has produced.

The Ladies' Championship of the Club commences today when the present holder, Contessa de Salvoni, defends her title.

Concerning Dreams

To the Editor:

I read with very great interest the article entitled DREAMS which appeared in the last issue of your paper, and I would like to put to the writer a problem on the subject, and would be pleased if he could solve it for me. I feel certain that dreams are something more than the effect of an overloaded stomach (I have had most exciting ones after going to bed with an empty one).

My dreams are almost always of bulls; sometimes I chance (dreaming of course) to stray into a field where the dangerous animal is feeding, and I am chased by him, and I am just cornered getting over a fence or a gate, and he has his fell weapons in the seat of my trousers, when I wake up in a cold sweat to find myself safe and sound in bed. At other times this bovine enemy is chasing me upstairs or in a room and I am always saved just in the nick of time.

Now! I don't know why I should dream of this animal more than any other, or why some other enemy should not haunt my slumbers. I have attended some bull-fights, more from curiosity than affection, and I have neither affection nor dislike for animals with horns, and I should very much like to know why I am worried by their shadows in this manner.

Next Wednesday

Next Wednesday in the Teatro Olympia two English pugilists will meet two Spaniards. Douglas Parker, a featherweight and one of the best of his class in England, will meet José Gironés, the champion of Europe. Parker beat Johnny Cuthbert in his last fight.

Percy Dexter will come up against Carlos Flix, the lightweight champion of Spain. Both Englishmen arrived in Barcelona last week with their manager, Cavalli.

On the same program will appear the Spanish welterweight champion, Roberto Sanz, who is just back from a successful tour of South America. Sanz will fight the Cuban, Larrinaga.

Parker and Gironés are expected to provide the best bout of the evening, for the Englishman has a long list of victories to follow up and the Spaniard has a little to defend.

Parker has been in more than 130 fights, and among the list of his victims, all beaten by knockouts, has been Nick Bensa, the champion of France, Francois Matchens, the champion of Belgium, and such battlers as Kid Nicolson, Benny Sarkey and Lew Pinkus. Gironés has a reputation equally formidable, and both are fast, hard fighters with plenty of science.

Col. Wood Resumes the Cudgels

Several weeks ago, Col. H. S. Wood began in these columns a discussion on cruelty to animals. In the midst of the controversy, the Colonel departed for Italy where he received his copies of THE MAJORCA SUN. In answer to some of the communications published therein, he writes:

«Regarding letter received from the lady in India by ex-Captain A.E.F., I take it that she has been imprisoned with others for waging war against the King—in fact, a follower of the fanatic Gandhi. If so, she thoroughly deserves imprisonment and may consider herself lucky in not receiving severer punishment that was meted out to such traitors years ago. As for saying that her cages are small and foul, I was Governor of Jails for many years in India and all I can say is that all the jails were better than any seen on the Continent.

«As regards the letter from a Spanish gentleman regarding lynching—in my opinion, these brutes who assault and murder girls deserve the cruelest punishment that can be given for such offences. Hanging and the electric chair are too merciful deaths. It is not necessary that some high Indian official should go over to supervise these lynchings. With the consent of my Government, I should like to go over.

«I notice that your Tres Gentil correspondent has got fed up with this correspondence. For my part, I do not feel that ex-Captain A.E.F. has abused me in any way, whatever and I hope he has the same opinion of me. I trust Tres Gentil will survive this, my letter.»

Palma has become such a popular calling place for tourist liners, that the Red Star Line has decided to send four of its cruisers here during the coming summer. The Red Star have never before sent any ships to this port.

In addition the White Star Line proposes to include Mallorca in the itinerary of the Homeric's summer cruise. The dates for the four Red Star ships and the Homeric have not yet been settled.

With these five vessels, the total number of such liners planning to call at Palma during July and August is brought up to about twenty.

Palma and the Machine Age

Very unobtrusively, industrial progress is advancing upon Mallorca. The rumble of heavy machinery is beginning to be heard in the island, but unlike most places, which were completely conquered by the machine, hand work continues to flourish.

Cement plants are thriving in these days of intensive building; carpenter shops have brought in machinery and are employing more men; the heavy presses which are used in making tiles are never still. Inca and Manacor are importing machinery from Barcelona.

There is even a modern mechanical laundry, which has just brought over and set up the latest types of Spanish and foreign machinery. Huge tanks in which the clothing of many families can be washed, big presses to do the ironing will substitute in the city for the more picturesque but less satisfactory method of hand work.

The sentimentalist may resent the intrusion of modernity, but most of the visitors to Mallorca and all the permanent residents are glad to welcome the machine age as it has come to the island, bringing with it power and modern conveniences and additional comforts.

Mail Connections for U.S.A.

The fastest possible mail service from Palma to the United States for the coming week will be provided by the ships listed below. The name of the liner and the port from which she sails should be included in the address of all letters and parcels to insure their going by this route.

Wednesday, May 11th, mail closes at the Palma postoffice at 8 p.m. for the Bremen, Cherbourg, due in New York May 19th, or for the Berengaria, Cherbourg, due in New York May 20th.

Every day except Sunday mail for these ships can be posted at the gangplank of the Barcelona boat up to the moment of sailing at 9 p.m. On Sundays, mail goes to Barcelona via Alcudia.

Pugilism in Mallorca

Gregorio Vidal, one of the most popular boxers in Europe, is expected in Palma in the near future to fight an Italian not yet selected. Vidal has been offered two fights in Spain, one in Madrid and the other here, and it is believed that he will accept both.

Vidal is a bantamweight and will probably meet the champion of Spain in his class in Madrid. Reports received so far do not indicate which fight will take place first, as the dates for Vidal's bouts have not been fixed.

Americans Homeward Bound

The Exochorda of the American Export Lines called at Palma yesterday (Saturday) afternoon and carried towards New York six Americans who are returning home, and Miss Helen Ellis of England, who will make a visit in the United States.

The Americans who left were: Mr. Fermin Calan, the artist; Mrs. Nina Duryea, who has written extensively concerning Mallorca; Mrs. Grace Bigelow, Mrs. Anna R. Weeks, Miss Mary C. Wheelwright and Miss Lucy S. Cabot.

Water for the Suburbs

The Water Commission of the Ayuntamiento expects to start work soon on a system of supply for Son Serra, La Vileta and Son Rapiña. It is recognized that these sections are badly in need of such a supply, perhaps more so than other districts around Palma, especially in the summer.

There will be no delay in starting the work, it is said, for the authorities are eager to advance the project.

Expedition to Ibiza

In the next few days Sr. Costa of the Galerias Costa plans to lead another archaeological expedition to Ibiza, which has already been the scene of much of his research, to excavate the sites of the ancient civilizations on that island.

For nearly thirty years, Sr. Costa has been interested in archaeology in Ibiza, and he has brought to light many extremely interesting and significant relics of the past. A great many of his finds are turned over to museums here and on the mainland and a few he keeps for his private collection.
