

A black and white photograph showing the lower portion of a ship, including its hull and a single mast, as seen from the perspective of someone inside another ship looking out through the waterline. The water is dark and calm, and the sky is light and overcast.

