

GOLD CLAUSE DECISION GOVERNMENT UPHELD

RELIEF GENERAL

WASHINGTON, Tuesday

The eagerly awaited Gold Clause decision was delivered yesterday by the Supreme Court. According to the written decision the contention of the government that the gold clause does not apply to private bonds is upheld, while the decision relative to Federal bonds is adverse to the administration.

This means that companies which have issued bonds with a gold clause can pay paper dollars, but on Federal bonds the government must pay 1.69 paper dollars for every dollar of interest and capital represented and held.

Early comment on the decision, which is of the greatest importance to the financial policy of the administration and the nation, is to the effect that it is bewildering to the plain man, since the United States loses its case but keeps its paper dollar.

None Suffer

The Supreme Court has decided that no citizen has been wronged by the action of the administration in setting up paper dollars for gold, thus depreciating the dollar, since none can suffer when all other dollars are suffering similarly.

The contention of Mr. Roosevelt is thus pronounced legally wrong but actually unassailable. Though the judgment is fairly involved, its issue is straightforward. That issue, which is now clarified, is that the administration's monetary policy, the bone of contention for two years, is upheld by the highest court in the land.

EXECUTION OF WOMEN IN REICH

BERLIN, Tuesday

Frau Benita von Falkenhayn and Fraulein Renate von Natzmer, who were sentenced to death on Saturday by the People's Court, charged with betrayal of military secrets, were executed yesterday morning.

Herr Hitler was asked but declined to exercise his right to pardon. The sentence was carried out immediately thereafter, the accused being beheaded.

Two Polish nationals, Georg von Sosnowski and Irene von Jena, who were also charged with the same treason, were sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labour with no chance for remittance of the sentence or shortening of the term.

The sentences were carried out with lightning speed, the women sentenced to death being executed less than 48 hours after the sentence was pronounced. The other

SAAR TRANSFER ACCORD SIGNED IN NAPLES

NAPLES, Tuesday

An agreement on the outstanding questions concerning the return of the Saar territory to Germany was signed here yesterday.

M. de Chambrun and Herr von Hassell, French and German Ambassadors respectively in Rome, signed the agreement in the presence of the Saar Committee of Three of the League of Nations. Baron Aloisi, the Italian chairman of the Committee, presided at the meeting.

The agreement covers the cession by France to Germany of mines, railways and other properties, and contains provisions for the insurance of all French private individuals and workmen in the Saar district.

Baron Aloisi made a speech thanking the French and German delegates for their work. He likewise expressed gratitude to Mr. Geoffrey Knox, President of the Saar Governing Commission, and paid tribute to the assistance rendered by the members of the Financial Committee of the League of Nations.

The German and French Ambassadors both warmly thanked the Italians for their collaboration. After the signature of the agreement the members of both delegations, the Ambassadors and the members of the Committee of Three went to Capri, where they were the guests of Baron Aloisi at luncheon.

The transfer of the Saar customs administration to Germany took place at midnight yesterday, according to a message from Saarbruecken. The local Nazi organisations paraded with their band and sang patriotic songs when the German flag was hoisted. No incidents are reported.

COMMISSION ON ARMS STATEMENT IN COMMONS

NAMES GIVEN

LONDON, Tuesday

Mr. J. Ramsay MacDonald announced the composition and terms of reference of the Royal Commission on the Traffic in Arms in the House of Commons here yesterday.

Sir John Eldon Bankes, former Lord Justice of Appeal, is to be Chairman of the Commission. The other members will be Sir Thomas Allen, Dame Rachel Crowdy, Sir Philip Gibbs, Professor Gutteridge, Sir Kenneth Lee and Mr. J. A. Spender.

The terms of reference are, firstly, «to consider and report upon the practicability and desirability, both from a national and from an international point of view, of the adoption (1) by the United Kingdom alone and (2) by the United Kingdom in conjunction with other countries of the world, of prohibition of the private manufacture of and trade in arms and munitions of war, and the institution of a state monopoly of such manufacture and trade.»

Export Control

The Commission is also «to consider and report whether there are any steps which can usefully be taken to remove or minimise the kinds of objections to which private manufacture is stated in Article 8 of the Covenant of the League of Nations to be open.» Finally, it has «to examine the present arrangements in force in the United Kingdom relative to the control of the export trade in arms and munitions of war, and to report whether these arrangements require revision, and if so in what directions.»

The Royal Commission will be appointed under the usual form of warrant, which gives the Commissioners powers to call persons before them to give evidence, to call for information in writing, and to call for and examine documents.

GIRONES - MILLER

BARCELONA, Tuesday

Freddie Miller knocked out Gironés, the Spanish champion, in the first round of their contest in the boxing festival at the Monumental bullring here.

The fight lasted only two minutes, seventeen seconds, Miller opening with an attack that ended when he sent his opponent to the floor with a powerful left. Great disappointment is expressed at the poor showing of the national champion and the short duration of the long awaited match.

GENERAL CARMONA AGAIN PRESIDENT OF PORTUGAL

LISBON, Tuesday

General Carmona has been re-elected President of Portugal by an immense majority, according to the presidential election return announced here last night.

He polled about eighty-five per cent of all the votes cast, according to the first official figures published. His total was 462,000 votes out of 550,000.

The General's success was much greater in the provinces than in the capital. His poll in Lisbon was seventy-eight per cent of the total number of votes cast, while in many smaller towns the percentage was between ninety and ninety-three.

General Carmona first took office in 1926, when he overthrew the Democratic Premier, Senhor da Costa, and placed himself at the head of a military dictatorship. His presidency was confirmed by the result of the elections held in 1928.

The President's popularity is due principally to the fact that he has succeeded in restoring peace and order in Portugal after many years of revolution. That he is popular is sufficiently proved by his second reelection.

For six years Portugal has enjoyed the unaccustomed luxury of liquidating its budget with a surplus. That result is attributed largely to the close cooperation between the President and Senhor Salazar, the Premier, who have introduced a new spirit into the administration of the country.

Senhor Salazar has frequently been accused of exercising a virtual dictatorship, and indeed there is a Fascist flavour about many of his enactments, notably the creation of a Corporative Assembly. That body however has not encroached on the functions of the popularly elected legislature, but acts as an upper chamber.

GERMAN CATHOLIC CELEBRATIONS

BERLIN, Tuesday

More than 15,000 Catholics attended a meeting held in the Sport Palace here to mark the occasion of the thirteenth anniversary of the coronation of Pope Pius XI. Special efforts were made in Berlin and throughout Germany to celebrate the anniversary in a fitting manner, the efforts being forwarded and assisted by the government.

Papal Nuncio Archbishop Orsenigo in his inaugural address stated that it was not anticipating history to say that the Pope had won the love and respect of the whole world by his exhortations for international peace and his unequivocal stand in support of the purity of Christian belief and morals.

The Archbishop went on to say that amidst the general chorus of gratitude the voice of the German

CATTLE IN THE COMMONS EXTENSION OF SUBSIDY

NEGOTIATIONS

LONDON, Tuesday

Mr. Walter Elliot, Minister of Agriculture, moved a resolution in the House of Commons yesterday providing for a three months extension of the subsidy which was granted to cattle producers in the United Kingdom in view of the level of prices.

Negotiations with the Dominions and other cattle supplying countries, with a view to reaching agreement on a long term plan for a levy upon or regulation of imports, are still proceeding. Mr. Elliot explained that the extension of the subsidy would enable negotiations to continue in an amicable atmosphere.

He pointed out that in the case of the Dominions no import duty could be imposed without the consent of the countries concerned until the expiration of the Ottawa agreement, which takes place on August, 1937. Another agreement prevents the imposition of a duty on supplies from the Argentine until November, 1936.

Rush Impossible

Negotiations of such far-reaching importance, declared the Minister, could not be rushed. Trade and Imperial issues involved were such that it was vitally necessary that the supplying countries should feel that every possible consideration was being given to their views.

It had been hoped, Mr. Elliot explained, that a seven months period of subsidies would have allowed sufficient time for the conclusion of the negotiations.

EUROPEAN PEACE

The German Government has declined to the Anglo-French decision which was the fruit of the London conference, and the press of Europe has been commenting on the reply ever since.

At first sight, there seems little comment on. The German Government has not, indeed, said very much, but it is doubtful, however, whether there was much that could be said

at the moment. Germany has welcomed the intention of France and has again to seek agreements on armaments and security, and is trying to continue the negotiations to that end. Little more is to be expected until someone takes the initiative and places actual conventions before the other parties concerned.

Everything will depend then on the interpretation that is placed on the expression «equality of rights», which has been recognised by the governments of Italy, France and Great Britain as the only possible

basis on which a halt can be called to the armaments race which threatens to overwhelm Europe.

The German interpretation of the case is clear enough; what is so certain is how far the Wilhelstrasse can persuade the other powers to grant its demand.

To maintain that the rearmament of Germany is the only way of disarmament appears at first

to be contradictory and absurd.

Nevertheless that is the fact.

Any agreement for the limitation of arms which does not include

theoretically disarmed Reich

could be impossible to secure, and useless if it were secured. And disarmament is prepared to disarm to the extent to which Germany is supposed to be disarmed

by treaty.

Any possible arms convention therefore must prescribe

a level of preparedness higher than that prescribed for the vanquished by the peace treaties, and never than that which the victors

have been permitting themselves.

The task of getting such a convention not only framed, but signed and ratified, will be long and dif-icult, but not impossible provided the essential facts and conditions are clearly realised and acted upon.

Out Of My Head

by HARRY GALLAND

Apropos of nothing at all, the week's best simile applies to a certain popular young man whose knowledge of Spanish and Mallorquin is as complete as his cherubic face is round and his hair curly. It seems that a dear lady saw him in Terreno a day or so ago,
and later reported that she had encountered him «strutting down the street like a robin, wearing his breast on his face.» Well, well!

Apropos of the recent visit to Mallorca of Dr. Alekhine, the famous chess champion, is the story told by Norman Jacobsen of an American chess marvel.

The American has since dropped out of sight and publicity blurbs,
but at the time, a few years ago,
he was famous. He was nine years old, and his name was Samuel Szeszceski—or words to that effect.

For a year or two Samuel astounded the chess world by his apparently effortless prowess with the knights and pawns. He not only played a game which any adult could be proud of, but he played the kind of game of which adult champions are proud.

He appeared in a tournament or two, and wiped up the board with his opponents. Having heard or noticed that the top-notchers gave exhibitions in which they played from ten to thirty games simultaneously, Samuel promptly emulat-ed them, with the greatest success.

At the height of his fame, when he was still nine years old, he was invited to the New York Chess Club. None of the graybeards there would risk losing a game to a nine-year-old, champion or no champion, but they all wanted to see him play. And Samuel was willing.

This impasse was met by the suggestion that a series of twenty problems be laid out on boards, and that the child marvel should walk down the row and solve them
as he went.

The suggestion was followed, the knotty problems set, and the boards laid in a row. When all was in readiness the prodigy was told to begin as the graybeards stood by and watched.

Samuel did his chore with his usual air of assurance. He marched straight down the line and indicated the moves to be made for each problem. At one he hesitated a moment, then passed it by and went on to the end. When he was finished he came back, looked again at the board he had not solved, and calmly said that the problem was wrong. Just like that.
Well, they ran for the book from which they had taken the problems, and sure enough, they found they had set that one incorrectly.
They haven't invited a child chess prodigy to the New York Chess Club since, for some reason.

ARMY BAN ON MASONS

MADRID, Tuesday

Membership of a Masonic organisation is now incompatible with the holding of a commission in the Spanish army, according to the provisions of a law which has just been passed by Cortes.

The ban on freemasonry is an extension of the law which forbids army officers to belong to political organisations. The Masonic lodges of Continental European countries are frequently active behind the scenes in politics, and those of Spain are reputed to be no exception to that rule.

Nevertheless Señor Vaquero, the Home Minister, declared in an interview here that political activity of Masons in Spain, if it exists, is so slight that it is not noticeable.

The Minister confirmed the news that municipal elections are to be held in Spain next month. The Government's decision on that point has been eagerly awaited, as many municipalities whose members were implicated or suspected of complicity in the October revolts are now being administered by Government appointees, and it is desired to replace these with popularly elected councillors as early as possible.

Señor Vaquero added that the parliamentary commission dealing with the bill defining the rights and responsibilities of the press will work without intermission until it has completed its task, and the Police Bill will also be pushed forward. Another bill is to enact the nationalisation and reorganisation of the Municipal Guard.

WORLD EVENTS IN BRIEF

LONDON, Tuesday

The twenty-first British Industries Fair opened at 10 o'clock yesterday morning at Olympia, 140,000 buyers from all parts of the world having arrived. According to newspaper reports, the opening of the fair is to be the signal for a new English offensive on world markets.

LONDON, Tuesday

The weather yesterday was dull, with a minimum temperature of 41 and maximum of 51, and no sunshine.

LONDON, Tuesday

The Arsenal Association Football team has been invited to play matches in Leningrad and Moscow at the conclusion of the present season, but Director Allison states there is only a remote possibility of the invitation being accepted.

WREXHAM, Tuesday

It is considered unlikely that the Gresford pit will be reopened before Saturday, but 500 volunteer rescuers have already presented themselves. Many of them are unemployed miners now undergoing oxygen mask training.

FRANKFURT, Tuesday

The group of the Twelfth African Expedition which is being personally directed by Professor Frobenius, left Frankfurt yesterday morning for Suez, where the Professor will meet them. The Libyan Desert will be the main group's field of exploration.

LONDON, Tuesday

In the House of Commons Sir John Simon yesterday said that the British Minister at Addis Ababa had from the beginning given his good offices to promote the amicable settlement of the present difficulties between Italy and Ethiopia. The Foreign Secretary added that he understood conversations had begun in Addis Abbaba between the Italian minister and the Ethiopian government.

CATTLE IN THE COMMONS

that hope had not been fulfilled.

The Government's policy with regard to food supplies was to encourage the maximum supply of produce to the consumers at the lowest prices consistent with reasonable remuneration to the home producer.

That policy, the Minister claimed, had succeeded. Food consumption was going up.

The policy which the Government desired to bring into operation as soon as they were in a position to do so was to assist the livestock industry of the United Kingdom, according to the needs of the market, from the proceeds of a levy on imports, not with a view to stimulating artificial expansion of Britain's livestock production, but in order to secure a reasonable return to the efficient producer.

GOLD CLAUSE DECISION

Following the announcement of the decision, which went first to the White House, Mr. Roosevelt and his advisers decided that no legislation or action is required.

Wall Street greeted the announcement with relief. Immediate frenzied buying was the result, and a substantial rise in the market was recorded. Grain market trading was temporarily suspended owing to the impossibility of handling the overwhelming activity.

The decision, it is now known, was by a majority of five to four. The name of the justice who wrote the actual decision of the court has not as yet been announced.

COMMISSION ON ARMS

The Commission's proceedings and findings will be followed with extreme interest, as all the questions mentioned in its terms of reference have been keenly discussed in the press and elsewhere during the past few months. The Minister's announcement of its appointment has evidently been timed to coincide with the reassembly of the Disarmament Conference Committee on Arms Manufacture and the Arms Traffic, which takes place at Geneva today.

The Committee is to consider the American proposals for making all the stages of arms manufacture and trade subject to license, which were adopted as a basis of discussion last week. Lord Stanhope, Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs and leader of the British delegation, has promised to bring forward alternative proposals.

DEATH IN TRAM COLLISION

BARCELONA, Tuesday

Nine passengers were injured, one of them fatally, when two tramcars collided in the Calle de Urgel at the corner of the Calle de Tamarit here.

Doña Felisa Rodríguez Serrano, aged 40, died of her injuries on arrival at the hospital. The other victims were Raimundo Blanco, Antonio Fábrega, María Martínez, Luis Pons, Ramón Cladells, Luisa Villa, Juan Pons and Doctor Emilio Ribes.

Doctor Ribes injuries are described as fairly serious. The others sustained only cuts and bruises.

The accident, according to eyewitnesses, took place when both cars were travelling at high speed. Each driver, apparently, expected the other to pull up and give him the right of way, with the result that both arrived at the street crossing at the same instant.

Both cars left the rails and fell on their sides. The crash of the fall mingled with the shrieks and cries for help of the imprisoned passengers, and the tinkle of broken glass.

Every pane in the cars was shattered by the impact. As many injuries were caused by splinters of glass as by the fall.

Police and passers-by came to the assistance of the passengers, and assisted them free of the wreck. The injured were taken in cars to the nearest first aid station.

Tramcar lines numbers one and four were interrupted for some hours until the wreckage was cleared away.
